School At All Ages Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The provincially - appointed commission on post-secondary education in Ontario today proposed to reshape Ontario's educational system.

Four years in preparation, the commission's federal report calls for more opportunities for a lifetime of learning for everyone "from school years to old age."

Courses should be offered "in factories, schools, meeting rooms, store fronts, hospitals, libraries and senior citizens' homes," says the report.

Legislation should provide time off for those in the work force to enable them to study. Employers of adult students should be subsidized financially if necessary.

Entitled The Learning Society, the report proposes an "Open Academy of Ontario" to supplement the educational programs already offered by some radio and television outlets. Such an academy would offer more radio and television courses as well as tape-cassette education. It would provide evaluation of the students' performance and progress.

The professions, it states, should be opened to anyone who can pass qualifying examinations whether or not the applicant has attended a conventional university or college.

A total of 126 recommendations are made by the commission, under chairman D. O. Davis, retired vice-president for engineering at Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. The recommendations range from university financing to ways of ending discrimination against working students and faculty members.

Persons choosing an alternative to formal education should be recognized by the granting of credits in appropriate cases and degrees should be granted by the open academy, the report states.

Federal - manpower training programs were described as "far from satisfactory."

New programs with "a pretrained objective" were called for in which persons would be trained for a new line of work by advance of losing their jobs because of technology or economic situations.

The elimination of Grade 13 was called for. Grade 12 students would be allowed to enter all forms of post-secondary education upon graduation.

Somalia Employees Must Learn to Read

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — The 60,000 government employees in this tiny African country have been warned they'll be fired unless they learn to read and write their language.

It's a new problem for Somalia. Only four months ago there was no way to get the Somali language in writing, even though it was spoken by most of Somalia's three million inhabitants.

Last October the president of the Supreme Revolutionary Council adopted Latin script. With a few adjustments to allow for peculiar Somali sounds, he ordered his people to use the new letters in all official communications.

Almost everyone could speak the language, but no one knew how to read or write it. The sounds had never been written or put into alphabet.

As a result, most Somalis spoke in their own tongue but resorted to the colonial languages of Italian or English in writing. Some used Arabic—particularly the country's many Moslems.

President Mohammed Siad Barre said all public employees will depend mainly on existing development.

It says one has already been designated on the escarpment near Burlington, e

Another belt is expected to stretch across the top of Metropolitan Toronto while another will separate Metro from a proposed city east of Toronto near Pickering that the governments is building to house 200,000 persons.

Winter Queen

Parks Will Divide Lakefront Centres

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says the provincial government is preparing to announce a new land-control policy, part will include establishment of a 165-mile-long ribbon of parkland from Hamilton on the west to Cobourg in the east.

Under the policy, the newspaper says north-south park belts will separate the main centres in the industrial area along the north shore of Lake Ontario.

As well, the government will purchase and preserve large parcels of Niagara escarpment land.

The newspaper quotes a government source as saying the land-control policy is scheduled to be announced in five weeks.

The program for the park belts, the newspaper says, has been in preparation for three years since it was set out as a concept in the Toronto-centred region plan. The program for the Niagara Escarpment has been under study even longer.

The aim of the park belts is to curb urban sprawl and preserve the identities of individual communities, the newspaper says.

The park belts will vary in width in different areas, some being 500 feet wide with others 2,000 feet or more. The width

Police Lose Drugs Worth $60 Million

Ulster 'War' Bomb Kills 9

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorists threw a hand grenade into a busload of Roman Catholic workers in a Belfast suburb today, killing one and injuring nine, as Northern Ireland's Catholic and Protestant guerrillas squared off for an all-out war against each other.

Security chiefs believed the bus ambush was the work of Protestant extremists. They anticipated retaliation by the Catholics of the Irish Republican Army.

The bus was passing through a quiet Protestant suburb of Belfast, taking the workmen to the site of a new Catholic school. A man with a stick limped in front of the vehicle, and the driver slowed almost to a halt. Two men ran up, lobbed a fragmentation grenade through an open window and escaped.

Two of the wounded were reported in critical condition, and the injuries of three others were "extremely serious," police said.

The bombing raised to 697 the confirmed death toll in 3 years of religious warfare in Northern Ireland.

The militant Protestants of the Ulster Defence Association announced Tuesday that because of Irish Republican Army "provocations," they could no

Report Denied

SAIGON (AP — The U.S. command and other official sources denied a report today that three United States prisoners of the Viet Cong had been released and flown back to Saigon aboard a U.S. helicopter.

Command spokesmen said they checked with every available source within the system set up for prisoner recovery under the Paris peace agreement and found nothing to substantiate the report.

Boy Kissing in Car Dragged Out to Die

The men dragged him from her arms and bundled him into a car as he screamed in terror. They drove away, shot him through the head and left his corpe in a ditch.

Savage was the third Roman Catholic teen-ager slain in Northern Ireland this week, presumably by Protestant terrorists. Two others were badly wounded.

Peter Watterson, 15, was the first to die. He was standing with another 15-year-old Monday in the doorway of his widowed mother's store in the Falls Road district. A spray of bullets from a speeding car cut the two boys down. Watterson died on the spot. His friend survived, badly wounded.

Philip Rafferty, 14, left his home in the Andersonstown district Tuesday night for band practice. His mother said she encouraged the boy to join the band because he had asthma and blowing the trumpet might help expand his lungs. His body was found several hours later at the Giant's Ring, a circle of prehistoric stones outside Belfast. Police said he had been made to lie on the ground, the blood from his coat was pulled over his head, and two bullets were fired into his brain.

Truce Work Starts Friday

SAIGON (CP) — The four - country international commission set up to supervise the Vietnam ceasefire agreed today to send its first observers out of Saigon, the head of the Canadian contingent announced.

A team of 24 soldiers from Canada, Hungary, Indonesia and Poland are expected to leave Saigon for the countryside Friday to inspect facilities being made available to them.

Canadian Michel Gauvin, acting chairman of the supervisory body, said inspection teams will be sent to three centres across South Vietnam.

Gauvin said three teams of eight soldiers each will visit facilities in Hue and Da Nang in northern South Vietnam and Pleiku in the central highlands.

Each team consists of two soldiers from each commission member country.

The three sites are among seven regional centres established under the 23-day peace agreement for supervising the ceasefire.

Earlier today, a Viet Cong general who held the key to when the prisoner exchanges would be sent to inspect alleged ceasefire violations arrived in Saigon.

He is a years old. Identified as Tran Van Tra, who directed the 1968 Tet offensive against Saigon as deputy military commander of COSVN, the Central Office for South Vietnam. Tra is the chief Viet Cong member of the four-party Joint Military Commission (JMC), made up of the United States, South Vietnam, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese. U.S. helicopters picked Gen. Tra up in a jungle rendezvous today and took him to the capital.

Because of Tra's absence, the group had been unable to start arranging the security safeguards that must be set up before the four-country International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) can send out its first observers to police the ceasefire.

Employees To Control Donations

VANCOUVER (CP — Businessman Julian Smith believes the government rather than corporate political contributions is unfair because employees have no voice in the decision.

Wednesday, he announced a new approach.

Smith, president of Harry Smith and Sons Ltd. and chairman of Centurion Industries and Resources Ltd., said that in the next federal election, 1978 will be dropped with a trust company for each of his 1,400 employees.

Arrangements will be made to enable each employee, communicating only with the trust company, to determine a candidate or party his or her $78 should be given."

Mr. Smith said in an interview the donation per employee will be 57 for provincial elections and $5 for municipal elections, under the same conditions.

Hard for Glass Eye To Respond to Drink

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Retired investor Keith H. Lidgerwood's eyes were bloodshot, glazed and watery when he was taken to a police station to be charged with drunk driving, a Launceston, Tasmania, magistrate's court was told today.

Counsel for Lidgerwood asked a police witness, "Both eyes?"

"Yes," said Police Sgt. George Atkins.

"Were they both the same?" persisted the lawyer.

"Yes," said the witness.

Seconds later Lidgerwood, 64, removed his glass right eye and placed it on the edge of the court dock.

The case was dismissed.

Winter Carnival Queen From Sunny Bermuda

After Mayor Robin Jeffrey declared the carnival open, a packed auditorium sat back to be introduced to the 15 Carnival Queen entrants from area high schools.

It was a Bermudan girl, 18-year-old Marsha Paterman of the Ontario Business College, who stole the attention of the judges with an invitation to sample the sunny pleasures of her homeland, and it was she who won the title.

Marsha came to Belleville just seven months ago to attend business college. She intends to stay in Canada "for a while" after graduation, before returning home to work.

She said she had always planned on being in the Miss Bermuda contest. "This really helps," she said. "I'm so proud to be Belleville's 1973 Winter Carnival Queen."

First Princess is Sandy Spry of Moira' Secondary School and Second Princess is Marie Zanner a mere bundle nine won long apstairs. Marie Zanner attends Ontario School for the Deaf.

Music was provided by a grant from the music performance funds of the recording industry through the Belleville Federation of Musicians.

St. Agnes Manor Tenants Hang On

Demolition of the old St. Agnes Manor, scheduled to be razed to make way for a new highrise apartment structure, could be delayed by possible court action.

This was indicated today as three tenants of the old East Bridge Street apartment block have retained legal counsel to represent them in their claim that notice received to vacate the premises were invalid.

Ian Brady, Front Street solicitor, said he had been retained by the tenants and they were still claiming tenancy with instructions to ask for an injunction if demolition went ahead.

Tenants were given notice to vacate by Jan. 31 but Mr. Brady said two tenants slept in their apartments Wednesday night and still retained their keys.

Notices for tenants to vacate were mailed out by registered letter late in December but some tenants were away over the Christmas holidays and claim they did not receive their notices until after the New Year.

Because of late receipt of their registered letter, these tenants are claiming they did not receive the required one-month notice.

However, C. E. Schwab, local representative for J. Basch Investments Ltd., Toronto firm which owns St. Agnes Manor property and have a permit for construction of a 79-unit apartment structure, said Wednesday night that all tenants were now out of the building.

None of the tenants had leases, he said.

PACE Meets Tuesday

Is Belleville in the hands of the developers?

The issue will be debated next Tuesday night, Feb. 6 at 7:30 p.m. at Sir Mackenzie Bowell School when PACE (People Against a Contaminated Environment) holds its monthly meeting.

Gary Rust will moderate a panel comprised of developer Maurice Rollins, Quinte Home Builder spokesman Clifford De-Mark and defeated aldermanic candidates Ken Hunter, Ivan Bach and Rick Williams.

Special environment awards will be presented by radio station CJBQ and to announcer Lee Jourard for editing a half an hour paper recycling drive. The meeting is open to the public.

Quality Key To Rezoning

A five-to-four vote last night has left the fate of city condominium housing in the balance, with the current certainty of Ontario Municipal Board intervention before a solution is found.

Belleville developer Maurice Rollins showed plans last night to the subordinate planning advisory committee during certain standards would be followed in his development in the Elizabeth Crescent — Bridge Street area, local homeowners were concerned the townhouse - condominium development would become a plastic prison and owner tax school, water and sewer facilities. They claimed it would also jeopardize the quality of life in that community.

After four hours of deliberation, Alderman Roger Porter moved the application for re-

Seniors Kick Off Carnival

Senior citizens were the first to celebrate the 1973 Belleville Winter Carnival Wednesday with an afternoon sleighride, a pot-luck dinner and an evening's square dancing.

Below zero temperatures failed to deter the 20 senior citizens who took the 30-minute sleighride at Shannonville. One woman was heard to remark on the bus back to the Recreation Centre, "But I did feel sorry for the horses."

The ride put the edge on appetites and an eagerly anticipated pot-luck dinner was on the thing.

Dinner was followed by two- and - a - half - hours of energetic square-dancing. Music and calls were provided by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Marlok.

As a result of the entertainment shown at the dance, Mr. and Mrs. Marlok have been invited back on a regular monthly basis to conduct and instruct square - dance to Belleville's senior citizens.

The activities were organized by Mrs. Wilma Sommers of the Belleville Recreation Centre, working with a senior citizens' committee. They ensured a lively start to this year's Winter Carnival.

Provincial police said he was northbound travelling at a high rate of speed and apparently missed a curve just north of the Canadian National overpass.

His car, a 1968 Camaro, went through a guard rail before coming to a halt at the bottom of a steep embankment. It was completely demolished.

The accident occurred at 9:45 p.m.

Service Offered

The Bank of Montreal at the corner of North Front and College Streets has offered its services to students from Hastings county who are taking the Mediterranean cruise in March. The manager, I. A. Porter, is arranging traveller's cheques and foreign exchange on pocket money the students take with them. The students deposit the money with their individual schools and Mr. Porter sees that the correct currency and cheques are delivered to them at their schools. More than 300 students are leaving on the educational cruise.

This was the decision Monday of city council members as they turned down a recommendation calling for hand clearing of downtown walks — but at the expense of the Downtown Improvement Area members.

Council approved a 1973 budget of $25,000 for the improvement area group and also for a $2,000 per month advance from city coffers.

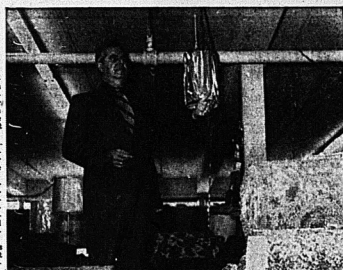
However, the motion to continue downtown walk shovelling at the expense of merchants was turned down following a request from Alderman Roger Porter, who said merchants did not want to accept the cost.

The recommendation was that the estimated $10,000 cost of the snow shovelling be deducted from the $25,000 downtown improvement area budget to be raised through a special levy from members.

There was, however, considerable pressure to have the hand shovelling done as a city expense.

Ald. Porter noted that many city operations such as the chamber of commerce and industrial commission were all in the downtown area.

And Alderman John Stock said the downtown core was used by all citizens and merchants should be encouraged.



Alderman Arthur Keegan, however, pointed out that merchants in the east end Belleville Plaza and those at the Quinte Mall paid for their own snow clearing.

He said it would not be fair for these merchants to subsidize the downtown area.

Alderman Paul Russell said the downtown area already had sidewalk snowplowing. In view of the fact the Malls did their own snow removal it would be wrong to give the downtown area any better service, he claimed.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell today said policy would be, continue the normal downtown snow removal program.

Moira Students Return With Mixed Impressions

Moira Secondary School music students have returned from England with a new perspective on the Commonwealth's mother country.

"The biggest difference between England and Canada is the tradition they have," said one. "They've got class. We haven't."

The 19 students spent seven days in London on what began as a music tour and ended as total immersion in history.

"They probably learned more about British history in four days there than in all their years at school," said music teacher Ronald Mason, who accompanied his students.

Mr. Mason estimates the students took in four tours or musical performances a day and kept going with only four hours' sleep a night.

Although they managed to see almost every famous tourist site in London and some relatively unknown, one student admitted, "When you see everything all at once, you can't appreciate it."

There was agreement on some topics, disagreement on others.

But about the renowned English Bobbies they differed.

Some found them more friendly than Canadian police, others said "some weren't so nice".

The Moira group stayed together in a hotel, travelled on free passes and were issued food vouchers for their meals. Highlight of their visit was attendance at a rehearsal and performance of the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

They found British tourist attractions were relatively free of the taint of commercialism and clothing cheaper than in Canada.

They grew used to being mistaken for Americans.

Some students reported a general dislike for Americans among the British, but others disagreed.

"We went expecting to get to know English people, but half the people we met were foreigners," they said.

"Mozart was messy; Beethoven wouldn't write," they say.

Monat, they discovered at a music museum, was an artist as well as a composer. He embellished his scores with cartoons.

Now that the first trip has proved a success, Mr. Mason hopes to make it an annual event.

The seven-day package including airfare, accommodations, meals, transportation in London and a theatrical performance every night cost each student $285.

Everyone Happy?

"The (postal) settlement makes everyone happy," to quote Bill Findlay, national general vice-president of the Letter Carriers' Union.

Mr. Findlay's confident appraisal of the situation rather compounds the arrogance of the mailmen which brought about the strike in the first place. There is no mention of the inconvenience to which the general public were put by this unwarranted stoppage.

No concern either for the pensioners who had to pick up their cheques themselves by special arrangement at the post office.

And no troubled consciences over the countless items of essential mail involving not only government cheques but hospital and doctors' office mail regarding patients.

Yet "everyone," in the union view, is happy." Mr. Findlay had better think again. This strike may be over, but how much time will elapse before some other flimsy excuse is raised for another stoppage?

Here are some extracts from readers' letters which have not yet appeared in print but which are relevant to the postal situation: from Mrs. L. K. Parcells — "The postal service is an essential service and no essential service should have the power to strike.

"For rather a long period of time the postal service has been disrupted by strikes throughout the nation. Certainly the union and its locals, especially postal employees, have an ability to be responsible to the general public, who like themselves pay for this and other services as taxpayers. . ."

From "Disgusted Taxpayer: "Somewhere along the line the letter-carriers seem to have forgotten that the taxpayers are paying their wages. . ."

Even with the mailmen back at work the public is far from happy with what has been happening. Once again, moreover, we see the essential uselessness of Government in the face of strike action. The mailmen have got what they want and this appears to be all that matters.

From 'Down Under'

Australia has two articulate young ambassadors in Rotary exchange students Deborah Charters and Rosemary Downs.

It was appropriate that at Rotary the other day they should talk about the matinstay of the economy of their home town of Bundaberg as well as about life in the city itself.

We refer of course to sugar cane. While tobacco and small crops are also grown, life revolves to a large extent around the cane fields and the rum industry that is a principal by-product.

Our report of their illustrated talk referred to the "semi-tropical region" around Bundaberg. The map does indeed show the city to be south of the Tropic of Capricorn which bisects Australia. A government handbook, however, refers to Australia's "tropical cane lands." In any event, aside from fields in January the climate seems to be comfortable.

The cane is grown along a 1,250-mile stretch of coastal land between Grafton, New South Wales, and Mossman, Queensland. About 95 per cent of it though comes from the latter state where Bundaberg is located.

In 1968-69, according to the 1970 handbook, Japan was the largest market, followed by Britain, while the United States, Canada, New Zealand and Malaysia are also described as important buyers.

Skilled labor work the cane lands according to the handbook, and this was borne out by the advanced methods depicted in the students' slides. They described one giant harvester, manufactured in Bundaberg itself for use in Hawaii, and capable of cutting more than 200 tons an hour, as "the world's largest."

There are no fields of sugar cane in Belleville, but as our report suggested the other day, there are many similarities between the two communities. We shall come to discover more of them as the two young visitors, like their South African predecessors, speak to groups here and come to know the community better themselves.

Chairman George Street Seeks Clarification

'Hansard' Sets Facts Straight on Parole Issue

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — In resolving argument and settling dispute, there has to be nothing so useful—or decisive as the official written record.

Which is perhaps one — or even the main — reason why both the Commons and the Senate have their Hansard and printed records of their committee proceedings.

Recently, Chairman T. George Street wrote that the Parole Board was "concerned" over a report in this paper being too "negative".

He complained that some facts had been "selected" and others "ignored," to cast an unfairly unfavorable light on the Board.

He argued—giving the "other side" — with the facts he thought had been "selected," but did not claim they were wrong.

But there was one he did nail as being in error.

And that one, taken out of a news wire service report of a Senate committee, had cited the case of a man who had been convicted 20 times of an indictable offence and then got full parole.

It had been based on the evidence before the Senate Legal Affairs Committee of K. A. Holl, Assistant Director of the Judicial Division of Statistics Canada.

What Mr. Holt had said, wrote Mr. Street, was that in setting up its crime studies, "Statistics Canada did not foresee that five years after a person could be released on parole, he could be convicted of 20 indictable offences . . ."

Which was not the same as a man with a record of 20 offences being paroled, he alleged.

Right.

But Mr. Street made it sound as if Mr. Holt had been talking of some hypothetical case in which a man who "may have completed parole later "could be convicted 20 times".

The record shows it was not a case of "may" or "could," but of "did" and "was".

The offender had been a 19-year-old who, after being released on parole, committed and was convicted of 20 separate criminal offences.

Now, this is how the subsequent questions and answers went in the Senate committee:

Senator Harper Prowse: How does this happen? Were these hangover (offences) before he was convicted?

Mr. Holt: No.

Senator Prowse: Did he just go on a (crime) spree?

Mr. Holt: That is right.

Senator Prowse: And he committed 20 offences before they caught him?

Mr. Holt: No, they were all separate.

Senator Prowse: He was caught on each one?

Mr. Holt: Yes.

Senator A. E. Thompson: How many parolees have you studied?

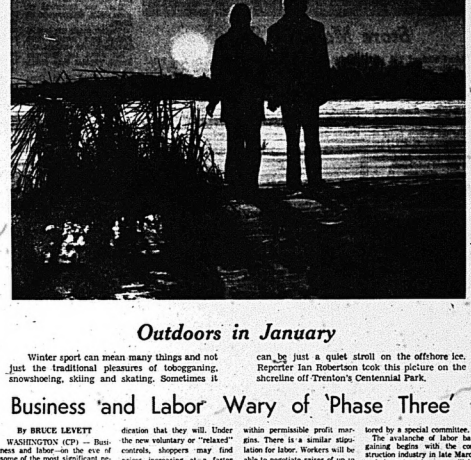
Senator E. A. Hastings: It would be 5,000 a year?

Mr. Holt: Yes.

Senator Thompson: How many of these get 20 indictable offences?

Mr. Holt: Very few. This is the extreme example. A considerable number get three, four and five . . . What it comes out to is that about 40 percent of the people who are released on parole have been convicted of an indictable offence. That is roughly the figure.

His calculations, explained Mr. Holt, were based on 1969 statistical studies.



(Since then, he has disclosed, the percentage of paroled prisoners returning to crime has increased sharply.)

Figures on file with the Parole Board and at the Judicial Division of Statistics Canada reveal a 54 percent increase from 1969 to 1970 in parole violations and an 82 percent jump in parole forfeitures.

Violation involves the breaking of the terms of the parole, and may or may not — at the discretion of the Board — result in its revocation.

Forfeiture of the parole results from a conviction of another indictable offence and is beyond the jurisdiction of the Board, being mandatory under the law.

It might be interesting for Senator Harper Prowse, chairman of the Senate committee, to reconvene it this session in view of the apparent escalation in the Parole Board's failure rate.

Business and Labor Wary of 'Phase Three'

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — Business and labor—on the eve of some of the most significant negotiations in United States history—are taking a long, careful look at President Nixon's new voluntary wage and price restraints.

They seem unprepared for the sweeping changes and relaxations known as Phase three announced by the president two weeks ago.

There was initial shock on the stock exchange and fears of runaway inflation expressed by industrialists. In response, Treasury Secretary George Shultz has stated:

"We give you a reasonable standard and say to you, 'It's up to you—we will be watching.'

"We can come out with our ball and bat and want to have to."

A government seems to suggest, in other words, that industry and labor must control their appetites. They must not seek too big a jump in prices and wages.

A number of economists seem to have reached a consensus, however, that the Nixon plan is not really coming to grips with living costs and that the final result of shadowy government threats of imposing a lid is that prices will go up.

Farmers will be able to charge what the traffic will bear and there is every indication that they will. Under the new voluntary or "relaxed" controls, shoppers may find prices increasing at a faster clip than in the previous years.

Tenants will pay more rent but landlords, free from any standards or controls, will be advised to exercise restraint.

Businessmen can generally raise prices to cover cost increases as long as they remain within permissible profit margins. There is a similar stipulation for labor. Workers will be able to negotiate raises of up to 5.5 per cent. In some cases the increase can be higher.

Food processors can raise prices to cover increased costs but must get government approval in advance.

Construction workers will continue to have their pay monitored by a special committee.

The avalanche of labor bargaining begins with the construction industry in late March and thereafter the pace will increase with more wage negotiations than at any time since the 1971 freeze.

The 5.5-per-cent standard for wage increases is a hold-over from the previous and more stringent phase of Nixon's controls and many observers feel it is likely to be abandoned.

Government enforcers w i l l no longer have comparisons for excessive wage or price increases. But they can ask privately for price or wage reductions using the threat of mandatory controls if demands are not met.

Observers see these as less effective measures reinforcing views that the United States is facing inflation problems — and only the severity of the inflation is to be measured by events in 1973

Australian Race Relations

Aida Parker in The South African Financial Gazette

Very often (and increasingly often) one feels that someone should hold Dr. Chris Barnard aside and tell him not to be daft . . . plainly, to shut up.

Certainly, before rushing so confidently to the defence of Australia's new Labour Premier, lawyer Edward Gough Whitlam, Dr. Barnard would have been well advised to swot up on the Aussie's own distinguished racial record.

This would soon have persuaded him that Whitlam is in no position to cry "stinking fish"— that in his attacks on South Africa, this ruthless political opportunist is simply doing a slippery old trick on a power-up for his own embarrassments.

Two aspects of the Australian case deserve study.

The handling of their own aborigines. As is well known, the much - vaunted Australian spirit of fair play seems to stop abruptly when it comes to these people, a troubled, downtrodden group whose life patterns both past and present have been described as "a dossier of tragedy." Compared to the fate of the aboes, South Africa's Blacks live in paradise;

Australia's famous "Keep Australia White" policy — a policy Whitlam now coyly insists does not exist, but which is dissatisfied South African Coloured, Asian or Black could quickly test for himself by applying for permanent residence Down Under.

Today In History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Viktor Quisling was made minister-president of Norway by the Germans 21 years ago today—in 1942 during the Second World War. He had attempted a seize power in 1940, when the Germans occupied the capital, but his government collapsed. When the Germans gave him power, he dissolved the constitution within a week and ruled as a personal dictator, attempting to turn Norway into a Nazi state and shipping about 1,000 Jews to the death camps. He was executed for treason after the war.

1932—West Germany ratified the Schuman Plan, joining five other European powers in the Coal and Steel Community.

1949—Hungary was proclaimed a people's republic.

1964—The Dominion Railway Commission was established.

A Radical Solution?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

By the time you receive this the driving cause for it must have passed at least temporarily. The reference is to the local postal strike. It must be known that there is only local opinion there will be more petty strikes and more petty rebuttals.

An obvious solution is at hand — and there is but one. With rising costs and wages it is apparent that personal postal delivery is archaic. It is not practical in this age and will become less so in the future. Therefore the answer is to refund the many sub post offices by adding customer boxes. People would have to pick up their mail a block or two from home — an inconvenience to shutins, who would have to rely on friends.

To start the ball rolling the public should go on strike. Obtain change of address cards and have all mail redirected to General Delivery or a Postal Box. Then put a sign on the front door saying "No Postman May Call."

Whither Community Identity

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

Most of us have agreed, if somewhat reluctantly, that regional government, because of the reforms it brought about, was necessary.

But when towns with the historical background and strong community roots of Port Hope and Cobourg are to disappear entirely, as is now proposed, then you have to wonder.

There must be something, if not actually rotten then at least not right, about the whole program.

And with this there is the thought that those of us who did accept it, and this includes the government, perhaps were much too quick off the trigger.

The one key point that add us on regional government was the need for planning.

Urban areas were slopping all over the place, good rural areas were being ruined, municipalities in contests for new assessment were spoiling their communities and generally there was a crying need for order.

So regional government it was, which it appeared would bring about such order, was approved.

But then, and it started here in Metropolitan Toronto which was the first regional government, we began to be met with the results and to a good many people they became more and more unpalatable.

The first of them, of course, was bigness. Very few people any more met their mayors and councillors and fire chiefs and police chiefs in grocery stores and barber shops and on the street. With bigness local government became remote. It was no longer a companionable thing, but something more like store on a pedestal.

Then there came comfortably, or "paternism." Communities became rows of modular houses and supermarkets, of similar store-fronts. The physical character of our communities became regimented. Character was disappearing.

And now as the older areas of the province are being reorganized we are seeing the character of history and long and deep community roots being cast away. It is in some ways as though the entire province is being headed towards the gutless mundanity of a big modern abstract painting.

Some people may be satisfied with this, but certainly the great majority in spirit in no way want it.

Unhappily, looking back now, it perhaps needn't have happened this way.

Which is something I will talk about another day.

NDP Back Status Quo

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The reaction is beginning to flow in now, and the New Democratic Party appears to be getting overwhelming support for supporting the government and preventing another general election.

After the NDP decided to support the government on confidence issues, most party members sent questions from constituents asking for comments.

The results, so far, indicate that about 80 per cent of those replying approve the stand. And in reply to questions about what party should be supported, there appears to be close race between Liberal Conservatives and "no preference."

The NDP's 31 MPs, both the present balance in the House of Commons and the number reported raises of less than 40 in favor of the party's approach.

Party Leader David Lewis in Belleville, Ont., addressed and his York South riding and about 1,200 respondents approved support of the present government in the circumstances. Another 40 disapproved.

In that riding 208 persons said support should go to a Liberal government while 900 would prefer supporting a Conservative government. There were 250 with no preference.

But on it Prince Edward-Lennox-Addington (Regina-Lake Centre) reported similar findings.

"There are bound to be regional differences in this respect," said a Prince Valley West. "But there is little regional difference in the desire to avoid having another general election soon."

Must Repay Welfare When Benefits Paid

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has plugged a loophole in its legislation to prevent welfare recipients from enjoying the simultaneous benefits of unemployment insurance and welfare payments.

The provision forces welfare recipients to reimburse the municipality any welfare payments they received while eligible for unemployment insurance.

In another major provision, a welfare applicant will have to satisfy welfare officers that he is making reasonable efforts to realize any financial benefits to which he may be entitled. This is to check cases of persons receiving welfare who may be entitled to a pension, or workmen's compensation benefits.

Both provisions were contained in regulations published Wednesday in the Ontario Gazette.

The double payments resulted from delays in unemployment insurance payments to eligible persons who sought welfare as a means of getting them through a difficult period.

But prior to the new regulation, effective immediately, the municipality had no way of being reimbursed when a recipient received his unemployment benefits for the period he was on welfare.

Under the new regulation, a person seeking welfare to carry him through the delays in receiving unemployment insurance must agree in writing to pay back the money after he receives his unemployment payments. He can only apply for this welfare assistance after the two-week waiting period.

B. C. Indians Planning World Court Appeal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Nishga Indians said Wednesday they will ask the World Court at The Hague to rule on their claim to 4,000 square miles of heavily-forested land in the northern section of British Columbia.

"We are determined to go right to the top," Frank Calder, president of the Nishga tribal council said in Victoria shortly after the Supreme Court of Canada, in a 4-to-3 decision, handed down a ruling rejecting the tribe's claims to the land in the Nass Valley.

"Now that we have heard the 4-to-3 decision, we now are heading to the international court at The Hague," said Mr. Calder, who is a minister without portfolio in the New Democratic Party administration of Premier Dave Barrett.

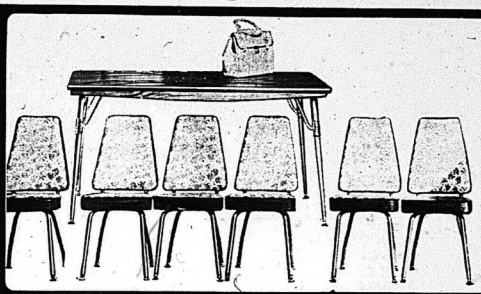
Mr. Calder said band members were prepared to dig "further into our pockets" to appeal their claim to the World Court.

"This is the only tribe in North American that exists by its own fund. We don't have to depend on any government fund to fight this battle."

He said that although the majority decision was a disappointment, the Nishgas were "most gratified" about the three dissenting judgments backing their claim.

The Nass River Valley, located about 500 miles north of this provincial capital, is the historic home of the 4,000 Indians of the Nishga tribe.

The Nishgas base their claim on aboriginal rights and the fact they have never signed a treaty relinquishing these rights.



In Toronto, the Union of Ontario Indians remained optimistic on the future of aboriginal land claims despite the ruling.

The Ontario Indian group said it understood "three of the judges voted against the case while three voted in favor and the seventh judge was more or less neutral."

India Will Restore Statues of Britons

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Statues of the Britons who ruled India for more than 200 years are to be restored in West Bengal.

The statues, known as the India-Victoria Memorial, have been in storage five years.

The state's first leftist government, headed by Communists, came to power in March, 1967, and decided immediately to banish the monuments, targets of many anti-British demonstrations in the first two decades of independence. The deputy chief minister then, Jyoti Basu, said removal was necessary because they were "reminders of colonial enemies for whom we have nothing but condemnation."

The Communists were almost wiped out as a political force in West Bengal in the 1972 state elections. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party took over.

The government has assigned two Indian historians to write legends for the new pedestals in English and Bengali, to relate good and bad points of the rulers. The statues, of white stone or bronze, sculptured by British artists in England, will not be changed.

Toddlers' Transportation More Than 'Just a Bus'

LONDON (CP) — If you are in London's West End and the double-decked bus has children's faces and letters of the alphabet painted all over it, wait for the next one. You have just seen a Mobile Toddlers Club bus run by the Westminster Health Society.

Instead of weary passengers straphanging in the aisles, the bus has hitchfeeds and animals bobbing up and down on strings.

No destination is given on the front, but the bus is on its way from its morning site in one part of Westminster to its afternoon parking place in another, where more pre-school children aged three to five years will attend their own club.

The bus was bought from London Transportion December, 1971, by the Westminster Health Society — a charity founded in 1903—with money raised as a memorial to its past chairman, Nellie Paton Walsh, founder of the first Toddlers Club in 1959.

There now are eight Toddlers Clubs in the Westminster district, catering for up to 400 children a day.

The idea of the Mobile Toddlers Club is to give children in areas where here are inadequate nursery facilities a chance to learn and play with other boys and girls. If it appears that the district can support a permanent pre-school group then the society will try to raise the money to set up one of its ordinary Toddlers Clubs and move the bus on elsewhere.

At present the bus is parked in Paddington close to a large housing estate in the morning. In the afternoon it moves on to a high-rise housing estate in Pimlico, where mothers welcome its arrival.

The children are captivated by the novelty of going to a nursery school in a bus. When they enter the downstairs compartment they find the seats have been removed and a slippery play dip installed. And one of the long seats by the door has been turned into a sand pit.

Upstairs a toilet and wash basin have been installed directly over the back platform and down one side of the top deck there are drop-leaf tables so the children can paint and draw while they look out of the windows.

The vehicle is able to take up to 18 children at a time, supervised by three nurses. A small fee of about 60 cents a half-day is charged for each child and this includes their morning snack of orange juice and an apple. If a mother is unable to afford as much money it may be reduced.

In its early days the society pioneered maternal and child welfare in Westminster. Today it still has an important role to play in relieving many of the stresses faced by women in bringing up children in built-up inner-city areas. Although its basic work is now subsidized by the Westminster city council the society still depends on fund-raising activities to pay for extra facilities such as the Mobile Toddlers Club.

WANT LETTER

Members of the Children's Car Safety Committee of the Consumers' Association of Canada are pressing for a letter to be enclosed with the monthly baby bonus cheque, calling the attention of parents to the dangers of allowing a child to ride unrestrained in a moving vehicle. There's More to 'Mother Courage' Look Behind the Stage Scenes!

Opening night!

The visual effect is as important as the spoken.

Claire Gorcey is in charge of making the costumes for Mother Courage and Her Children, the next play to be produced by Belleville's Theatre Guild.

Admittedly it's a challenge. It simply isn't a case of making a costume. The portrayal of a character is involved. And that requires an understanding of the play and the author, in this case, Bertholdt Brecht.

Mrs. Gorcey, who previously had some experience in millinery in Quebec, considers this to be her biggest challenge. And a great responsibility.

"It's important to know where to draw the line — not to have the costuming too precise and yet not to go too far. The play is set in the seventeenth century and it requires worn-looking clothes. One must portray the feelings of poverty, and misery and dragging. And a dragging effect."

The play calls for the creation of approximately 30 seventeenth century costumes. To prepare for the task Mrs. Gorcey made a trip to the library in Toronto to study portfolios of the play.

Mrs. Gorcey works in conjunction with Tony Lassing, designer of the costumes and Jim Alexander, producer.

What's involved is portraying the characters and the times? To give a worn look and effect, Mrs. Gorcey and those making costumes use patches, chalk, paint and mud.

Character - transitions also must be felt by an audience. One example is the coats of the old colonel who must be given a younger feeling. Here, costuming plays a part in making that transition. Desperation of the soldiers and peasants must also be known and felt.

Where do they find the costumes? Second-hand shops are handy. And of course there's the papier-mache helmets and other items of clothing that must be hand-made. Armour is still a big question as well as boots that must be sanded and painted. Then there's the dyeing to be done, a long process.

Mrs. Gorsey, who has assisted in costuming for various theatre plays considers the play a great challenge.

The end result? As for everyone involved in the play, on stage and behind the scenes and in the audience—it's Opening Night.

Newsmaker

Designing costumes for Mother Courage and Her Children isn't all fun and games. Mrs. Claire Gorsey, who is responsible for the making of the costimes, didn't expect the fire engine to have to make an appearance. But when she put burlap peasant pants into her drier a fire resulted and the pants were lost. No other damage was done and it was a case of the show having to go on.

Shirt styled jacket with drawstring waist, polka dot scarf wrapped around the head like a turban and a pair of Yves St. Laurent sunglasses are trend - setting accessories. (CP Photo)

Highest Award For Two Guides

The highest award in Guiding, the Canada Cord, was presented to two Belleville Girl Guides, last evening at a special ceremony preceding the regular Company 9 meeting at St. Colomba Presbyterian Church.

Moira &Division Commissioner, Mrs. Beth Mason, assisted by Co. 9 Captain, Doris Stailkovich, presented the Canada Cords to Beverly Hinton and Vicki Guthrie. To date in the enlarged Guide Division, that include: Madoc, Stirling, Marmora, Tweed and Foxboro, eight girls have qualified for this honor.

Guests at the meeting witnessed Company 9 Guides trying for Hostess badge: Beth Ramsay, Michelle McBride, Debbie Lees, Kim Bolter, Jill Dunford, Susan Laidly, Karen Dryer and Cheryl Carscadden. Taking the collectors' badge test was Sherry Hoffard, with Mrs. Stailkovich and Guide Lieut. Barbara Vandervelde conducting the tests.

'Big Sisters' Helpful For Children Everywhere

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have graduated from teachers' college. Since there is no work for me here, is there any chance of getting work in another country? When I think of all the children in Pakistan that need help and here I am doing nothing. I have no family ties here in Canada. To me the money is immaterial. The experience would be worth it.

If it is not possible to teach abroad, could you give me the names of places here where I could help with children? I thought I might like to be a big sister. They have big brothers so why not big sisters? — Just Dorrie.

Dear Dorrie: You don't need a university degree to go overseas with CUSO (Canadian University Students Overseas), but you do need some specialized training, and teaching is certainly that. Write them at 141 Slater Street, Ottawa, Ontario. If you can qualify, the Pakistanis are not the only children who need help.

Big Sistering is another noble effort which has meant a better chance in life for many youngsters right here in Canada. But Big Sisters are volunteers. Did you know that? The only paid workers are likely to be social workers or office staff.

Child care is a big field. I'm sending you some addresses to find out where you can fit into it, if you decide to.

• • •

Dear Doris: Now that my daughter is on her own, working in town, she has this boy I used to like around all the time. He is a sponger. Eats most dinners there; is often there for lunch. Never brings a thing.

At Christmas he hawked her out for spending money on her nephews and nieces; even for buying a dress for herself. He spent a lot on a motorcycle and is saving for that — but I can see that she is the one who takes the rap.

I tried to talk to her and so did her aunt, but we made matters worse. She turned more towards him, I think she is aware of his failings and sorry, but she doesn't say anything — Worried.

Dear Worried: First, get off her back, and shush the other relatives. That's she won't find herself having to defend him.

Some marriages eventually take place just because two people get used to each other — not because they really click. And it means something to any girl to have a steady. Perhaps she hangs on for fear no one else will turn up.

So I'd say invite her often to have dinner or her weekend with you, away from him. Encourage her to join in group fun where she will meet other young people. Help her throw a party at home. Don't nag. Just stay in there pitching.

• • •

Confidential to Good or Bad? Blest you. I am not a private detective and would hate the job. If a busybody has steered you away from a new friendship by saying someone is "bad", I'd still say take your time to form your own opinion.

Most folk will react to friendliness. There are degrees of badness and goodness and the estimate of which predominates is usually, like beauty, in the eyes of the beholder.

• • •

(Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris in care of this newspaper, can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)

Ordination Celebrated

School Bomb Threat

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP) — A nine-year-old schoolboy found a rusty, 10-pound bomb and brought it to a show-and-tell class. The other pupils were envious but the headmaster confiscated the bomb and called police. They found the fuse still intact.

Meat Prices High? Change Buying Habits!

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The only thing the consumer can do to alter meat prices is change buying habits, merely changing the demands for steaks.

Then it would take time for a change to show, says G. H. Dickson, executive vice-president of Canada Packers.

At an information session for the press, Mr. Dickson said it takes three years to change the level of beef production because it takes that long to produce a calf and grow it big enough to market. The poultry industry can respond to market changes in two to three months, pork in six months to a year.

But the Canadian consumer, in spite of complaints about the price of food, keeps on buying beef.

Statistics Canada figures indicate Canadians are eating three to four per cent more beef every year. In 1971 they ate 81.5 pounds of beef per capita, in 1972 it was up to 90 pounds. Pork dropped to 58 or 59 pounds from 65.9 pounds.

Mr. Dickson said people buy beef because they want to and are able to afford it and be cause of habit.

"It's a amazing how little change takes place in buying habits. You get a short-term reaction, but people go back to their usual habits.

"People can apparently eat beef day and day out and never get tired of it. They switch to pork sometimes, but they don't seem to stay on it.

"Earning power is pretty good related to five years ago.

"And the marketing of cattle is only equal to consumption. Farmers have been cautious. population, but that's about it. They've matched the increased Canada and the U.S. until recently had the highest beef market. Where are you going to go from there?"

He said there are some indications that cattle producers now are building breeding herds up a little, which should mean a greater supply.

Mr. Dickson said his firm would welcome a government inquiry into food prices.

"A better understanding of what contributes to the high cost of food has to be good for us. If we can get uniform (price) cycles, I think everyone would be happier."

He said he would accept price controls with wage controls.

"In certain circumstances price controls are necessary. Whether we've reached the point where they are necessary, I hesitate to say.

"I don't like them as a principle, but sometimes they're the only answer. Unfortunately, I think wage controls must go with them."

Tubular Daring-do

By ALISON LERRICK

PARIS (AP) — The frightening thing about my dresses is their total indifference", says Jean-Jacques Martelli.

A 31-year-old Corsican, he arrived in Paris last year and now has finished his first collection, to be shown in New York next week.

The question is, will women dare to wear a Martelli?

"My dresses are not for certain women but for a certain climate of women," says Martelli. "The essential is a good set of shoulders and a state of mind."

In any case, the ideal is a long experience in balancing books on the head and a body built like a Masai warrior.

They are tubular, well over the knee and skinny, but never clinging, and as architectural as a piece of fabric can be. And as Martelli means layer upon layer, color upon color, but always neutrals.

A long beige crepe sheath comes with a short white linen bolero, whose collar juts up like tiny wings, on top, a long and loose black Chinese jacket.

The black crepe pants come with a matching short-sleeved sheath. The collar, stitched in white, dangles from the middle of a fraud necktie.

There is no waist and definitely no hips. The head is as small as possible in a felt helmet.

In the feeling of Indonesian dress is over pants, there are cylinders in gray crepe, with underskirts in black, and just a hint of the trousers beneath. The tops are extra-short and wide boleros dangling laces.

For more sporty occasions, there is linen, while on white or white with black. Even the simplest sleeveless dress looks bizarre.

We Want Vitamins

CAC headquarters are at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa. "Job for me," she says.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Can anyone say 'no' gracefully?

NOT anyone; only a person who believes in himself as a human being can turn down a request or favor, loan, etc., with such assurance that he can do it without causing ill feelings. The individual he must say "no" to will go away empty-handed, of course; but at least he won't feel humiliated. And the one who had to refuse won't lose any self-esteem because he only did what he had to do.

Is jealousy a sure sign of love?

NO: In fact, jealousy can be the means of getting the message across that love has cooled—if it ever was there at all. A man, for instance, who grows more apprehensive about marriage as his planned wedding grows nearer and nearer, may have extreme attacks of jealousy whenever his fiancee gets anywhere near another man. The jealousy can be—aware of his cold feet—may be saying indirectly that he doesn't want to marry.

Do parents feel superior to a child?

NO—or at least the mothers and fathers who love their child don't believe they are. Of course, concerned parents know their youngster sometimes feels frustrated and angry because he is not as big and strong as they are. This is something that cannot be avoided. Skilful and loving mothers and fathers, though, foster in their child a hope that he will grow up to be the same kind of parent to his children as his parents were to him.

Ann Landers

Parents Nervous Wrecks Over Son and Divorcee

Dear Ann Landers: Here's the situation and it's amess. A 16-year-old boy ran away from home five months ago. He was gone for three months and made no effort to communicate with his parents. They nearly went out of their minds.

When he returned he acted as if he had done nothing wrong. He couldn't understand why they were so upset. While he was away he had lived in a commune in Chicago with a bunch of hippie dropouts.

The boy has settled down somewhat since his return. He's in school now and doing fairly well. He takes an occasional trip to Chicago and returns bedraggled and disoriented. He says he is in love with a 28-year-old divorced alcoholic and he must make these trips to see her. He claims he is helping her "get her head together."

Recently his parents laid down the law. No more trips to Chicago. He wants to make a deal. He will give up his hobbies, remain in school and get a part-time job. But he refuses to give up the girl.

What are the parents' legal responsibilities? The boy insists the law says they must support him until he is 18. Is this true? Are parents obligated by law to support a kid who is defiant and refuses to do as they say? Advise, please.—A Friend

Dear Friend: A 16-year-old boy who takes up with an alcoholic girl 10 years his senior is in need of psychiatric counseling. This is what the parents should be thinking about rather than how legally to escape supporting their son. Since you did ask the question, however, I will answer it. Yes, there are some legal steps the parents can take but I don't give that kind of advice. They should see a lawyer.

Dear Ann Landers: My closest friend is fi[illegible]r. I know from experience the only winners in cases like these are the lawyers. How I wish when I was in her spot that someone had given me some practical advice. I listened to my relatives "Hang on. Don't let the dirt rest 'f-' All they were interested in was seeing to it that the guy was "punished properly."

The way the laws are changing it won't be long before anyone who wants a divorce will be able to get it — which I believe makes sense. In California all an unhappily married person need say is, "There are irreconcilable differences." How much better this is than the old New York law that granted a divorce for one reason only—adultery. That New York law made liars out of thousands of people because it was the only way they could get out of a miserable marriage.

Nothing is so self-defeating or so degrading as hanging on to a man who doesn't want you. No marriage is worth a damn unless both people value it and will work at it. By the time the judge gets into the act, it's beyond saving. And so is your face, dear Lady, so let the man go, maintain your dignity and make a new life for yourself. I did and I'm content for the first time in years.—My Head Is High In Denver

Dear Head: Circumstances alter cases and no two are exactly the same. Generally speaking, I am inclined to agree with you. If a marriage is dead, you might as well bury it.

Confidential to Should I Do It: Hope For The Best: No! If you get caught the price will be enormous. Moreover, the guilt would turn you into a nervous wreck. Forgit it!

Brotherhood in Family: Regardless of Color

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — The large old home on the outskirts of Sackville reverberates with the laughing voices of six children, some still incomprehensible.

That's probably because two are Vietnamese and one is a Mic Mac Indian. One is a Canadian Negro and the others are white. They're the children of Dennis and Juanita Chipman, a couple who "simply love children, and we have no financial hardships."

Dennis is a 30-year-old accountant who is secretary-treasurer of a Sackville firm. Juanita is a former teacher who taught school in Shearbrooke, N.S.

Even while their own children—Wesley, 6, and Crystal, 4—were being born, the Chipmans were thinking of adopting others.

Nelson, a slender Negro child, was the first adopted son. He's three now and came into the Chipman fold in 1970.

Faith, an 18-month-old Mic Mac Indian girl, became an adopted daughter in 1971, while the Chipmans considered steps to take a Vietnamese orphan under their care.

In August that year, the couple started the proceedings in New Brunswick and in November, 1972, went to Montreal to receive not one, but two boys—the offspring of Negro American soldiers and Vietnamese mothers.

Trieu, now a husky five-year-old, and two-year-old Noel have become the newest stars in the Chipman house-hold.

Mr. Chipman recalled recently the first night with the boys in Montreal. The four of them slept in a hostel in the city and Noel kept insisting on climbing a stairway.

On his third trip up the stairs, Noel found his way blocked by tries, who refused to let the tyke go any further. Trieu resolved the language barrier.

"Speaking in Vietnamese, he seemed to explain that he (Noel) must lie down and go to sleep," Mr. Chipman said. The night's sleep was resumed without interruption.

Noel was formerly named Benjamin but six-year-old Wesley changed the name to Noel, because the newest addition cache borne close to Christmas. But Mr. Chipman still refers to the boy as "little Benjie."

The other three children readily accepted their new brothers, said Mrs. Chipman. "Wesley was terribly pleased to have a brother. Trieu's age and Nelson was happy to get out of his crib and let Benjie in."

Things aren't specially difficult with six children of four different races, Mrs. Chipman said. The toughest problems are at meal time and bed time.

At the table "I think the little fellows are trying to make up for lost time since there hasn't been a single thing they have refused to eat in large quantities."

Neither of the Chipmans has found the pressure great enough to give up their outside activities. Mrs. Chipman is a member of several women's clubs and is an advisor on the local family planning committee.

Mr. Chipman continues his work in counselling penitentiary inmates and a number of other social services projects.

Besides the six children at home, the couple also support three foster children—Yolanda in the Philippines, Bryan in India and Edson in Brazil.

Will there be more?

"Not for a couple of years," said Mrs. Chipman, "but we'll be thinking about it."

Spent 25 Years Learning; Then Wrote Short Stories

VICTORIA (CP) — When the census-taker asked Alice Munro her occupation and was about to jot "housewife" in the blank before she even answered, for the first time ever she said "writer."

"The lift it gave me was tremendous," said Mrs. Munro, author of The Dance of the Governor-General's Award, and of Lives of Girls and Women, winner of the 1971-72 Canadian Book Award.

But if the incident with the census-taker stands out as memorable, Mrs. Munro admitted that success was a long time coming.

"I suppose I've spent almost 25 years preparing to write really seriously, thinking and working things out in my head," she said in an interview. "I had the classic writer's childhood of being lonely—perhaps lonely enough to sharpen the perceptions.

"My mother was sick for a long time and we were very poor, but I don't look back on it as an unhappy time. I don't think I've ever had an unhappy time in my life. And being poor gives you certain freedoms—there is no expectation that one will do the correct thing, marry the right boy, be popular at dances. . . .

"There was no pressure on me to do more social things, so I wrote."

Stories sent to publishers were returned in a steady stream. "I couldn't face that constant rejection today, but in those days, when I was just in my 20s, one story sold every two or three years was enough to keep me plugging away," said Mrs. Munro.

"My children were born, and it was difficult to write, but I tried never to lose sight of what I was one day going to do. I wrote bits of stories and kept them, even if they weren't good, thinking one day perhaps the whole thing might come together. And it did."

The result was The Dance of the Happy Shades, a collection of short stories that marked Alice Munro as a writer to be reckoned with.

"That book gave me confidence," Mrs. Munro said, "and decided to tackle a novel."

Liberals Confer

PCs to Fight Redistribution

By HARRY MUEHALL
Staff Reporter

MADOC — A petition protesting a voter redistribution that would virtually abolish Hastings riding, has begun circulating throughout the constituency.

The formal protest, originated by Madoc Deputy reeve Kel Kincaid, emerged here last night at a riding Progressive Conservative Association meeting where the Madoc store operator defeated Belleville businessman Jack Ireland for the organization's presidency.

The electoral-boundary issue almost overshadowed the election contest between both men at a session which heard from Gordon Ritchie, MP Dupphin national Progressive Conservative spokesman on distribution.

Mr. Kincaid brought copies of the petition to the meeting at the Kiwanis Centre for on-the-spot signatures and later distributed them among party supporters for canvassing throughout the riding.

The signatures will be passed to constituency MP Jack Ellis for presentation to the federal boundary commissioner responsible for proposed redistribution of Ontario constituencies when it meets in Belleville Feb. 20.

The commission's proposal: call for addition of Hastings — which reaches from Belleville to Bancroft — and its redistribution by Prince Edward-Hastings and amalgamation of Prince Edward County, Belleville and several townships south of Highway 7.

The rest of Hastings, including this community, the villages of Tweed and Marmora would be joined to Lennox, Frontenac and Addington, centred on Napanee.

"The ties of these communities are with Hastings," Belleville is our major shopping and hospital centre," Mr. Kincaid told the meeting. "What in the world have we in common with Napanee?"

His views were echoed by other speakers at the first public meeting where the controversial redistribution issue has been discussed since its proposal some weeks ago.

Among them was Clarke Rollins, MPP for this provincial Hastings riding, who told the meeting the entire county, including its main urban centres of Belleville and Trenton had enough people (96,000) for a riding in itself. Population criterion for redrawing boundary lines is slightly more than 86,000 — with a 25 per cent maximum difference tolerance permitted either way.

"We don't want this county divided," said Mr. Rollins, who feared if the proposed federal redistribution outline was accepted it could become a factor in any future provincial redraft.

If the commission is to function it should listen to local opinions, Dr. Ritchie said. Hence, constituents "must make your representations and hope for the best".

From experiences of past redistribution commissions they shouldn't expect "that you will get everything you want".

Boundary proposals were bound by population and the 25 percent tolerance with a recognition of lighter rural densities and distances.

Present population factors may not be what they seem, he said.

For one thing Canada's population growth "has slowed down immensely now". Migration to big-city centres also is have a relatively slow growth in the next decade in the whole country."

"Unless we have massive immigration we'll have a much slower population growth. And I don't think this has been taken into consideration."

In theory, the new boundaries could be established by the year's end, but with objections likely from MPs "it's going to be a considerably long time" before the issue is settled.

Mr. Kincaid's petition objects to the proposed new riding boundaries because they don't make for "satisfactory representation".

Mr. Ireland had been president of the riding when it was created — also by redistribution — in 1966.

Other association officers named last night: vice-presidents Ewart Wannamaker, Bancroft; Fred Dickson, Allan Wickett, Mrs. Dorothy Howell, Mrs. Wes Gray, Belleville; Ken Thompson, Tweed; Mrs. Cecil Neal, Marmora; Mrs. John Donnelly, Bancroft; treasurer — Mrs. Dorothy McCullough, Deseronto; finance chairman — Hastings County Administrator Carl Bateman, Belleville.

Election Expenses Revealed

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

That new political trend to personal confrontations and debates hasn't cut the cost of getting the message across to the voters.

Talk may seem cheap. But despite the new, personalized style of electioneering, it still costs old-fashioned money to to run a campaign, figures released today by federal returning officer Reginald Dunham showed.

The three candidates who fought for Hastings riding in last October's federal election filed official expense summaries totalling $33,200.

The summaries must be filed by each candidate's financial agent and advertised in detail by the returning officer.

Candidates accountings:

Frank Follwell, liberal runnerup spent $18,287; Jack Ellis, Progressive Conservative victor $12,360; Elridge Bresbour, New Democratic Party, $1,537.

Major expense factor appears to have been advertising — anything from radio spots, newspaper space to signs, buttons and balloons.

However, Mr. Dunham believed Mr. Ellis' campaigners underspent than listed under the advertising since promotion items like signs and watches had been inadvertently placed under the heading of goods supplied.

There's no doubt about it that getting the message across is still the most expensive part of the campaign, said Mr. Ellis' campaign manager, Gerry Brennan.

He estimated about a third of his team's budget was spent on press and radio.

Even at a time when campaigns are supposed to have more sophisticated, with personalized confrontations and so on, you still have this big outlay on advertising and promotion," he said.

Despite chanding trends and a lessening of the hoopla of former times, he said, this is a necessity for such traditional promotions would continue.

Mr. Ellis agreed about the sizeable amounts spent.

"It's a lot of money — but I still don't want to see government supported campaign..." he said. (Possibility of public funds being used to finance elections becomes topical from time to time). It's a lot of money — and it's not going to get any cheaper."

There are some ways expenses could be curtailed, he believes. If the law, for instance, were to make air time an available to individual candidates as to parties "it would help.

Mr. Brethour, Bancroft-area fuel distributor could not be reached for comment. His advertising expenses were listed at $633.

Mr. Follwell, whose summary showed $7,344 for advertising, agreed electioneering — but there's no successful federal election in the late 1960s — "really keeps getting expensive."

But then he pondered, is the answer that much higher because of inflation generally?...

Part of the problem, the veteran politician summarizes, is that life styles are speeding up so much it's getting harder to reach people. "I think it's getting to the point actually, if you want to preserve democracy you have to pay for it."

But might such costs discourage an individual seeking a candidacy?

Mr. Follwell thinks it shouldn't; "If they or their party don't have the money —that doesn't mean you won't get elected. You try harder."

Mr. Ellis says one man's chances are as good as another depending — upon himself and his party.

Beer Delivery Price Rising

It is now going to cost 50 cents to have beer delivered to your home, rather than 25 cents, it was announced today by the Brewers Retail.

Effective Feb. 5, the levy will cover delivery of any amount of beer plus pickup of empties.

This is the first raise in cost in the past six years, which the Brewers Retail says will offset the high cost of providing delivery service.

Church to Mark Anniversary

Eastminster Church, at the corner of Herchimer Ave. and Bridge St. East celebrates its sixteenth anniversary Sunday, Feb. 4.

CBC TV Man Alive host, Roy Bonisteel, is to speak at the 11 a.m. service. Mr. Bonisteel is a well known journalist, lecturer and commentator, especially on current church affairs.

Liberals Out of Touch At Annual Meeting Is Told

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

BATAWA — What members of the Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal Association lacked numbers, they made up for in enthusiasm at the annual meeting here last night.

Less than 20 showed up for the meeting — much to the disappointment or organizers — but they spent more than two hours discussing everything from the recent defeat of federal Liberal candidates, alleged bigotry campaigning by Conservatives, return of political patronage, the Liberal image and the election of a new association executive.

Anthony Dalcar, returned president of the association, said as he travelled across Canada at the time of the federal elections, he learned that the party itself was not especially disliked, it was the Prime Minister. "But our biggest strength was strength. We went out en past performance. People don't believe in the past, history. They want to know what we bring us them now.

"We need better co-ordination with Ottawa".

Outlining steps for Liberals to take between elections, Dr. Wilson said in the days of the Diefenbaker regime, the minority government was closer to the people. They had to be fully responsive to the people. No party was there by legislation, without the support of at least one minority group.

"Trudeau is in the first majority government since Diefenbaker, 10 years before. He spiked of the just so-priests.

"Philosophically this was a very fine, but they got farther away from the people. They didn't have to listen to minor (in parties)," Dr. Wilson said.

He said grassroots Liberals across Canada didn't think to inform the government of the growing dissatisfaction. "They never get through to groups, or complained. We people have to bear a significant measure of the blame for the downslide of Liberal popularity."

The Cobourg surgeon urged association members to study all government white papers and legislation, mingle with their neighbors and get reaction to forward through local MPs. "We have to be very, very sensitive to people's attitudes at their own level," he said.

Without this communication, he noted, the average voter's contact with the government will be with federal civil servants, who he says are not the average ret geared to local problems. Most of them are centred in the cities.

Dr. Wilson then pointed out the ease by which Liberals in her rose to power. He said Hitler was elected democratically and rules were changed the same way "because people allowed him to do it." No large group objected.

Gerald Weaver, an unsuccessful candidate for the 1971 provincial election, said as an all very well to urge contact with ministers and government, but he pointed out the suggestions of grassroots Liberals at the annual convention in Ottawa last year were, for the most part, ignored.

Mr. Weaver also urged more co-operation from local association members. "Not passive approach," indicating the small turnout last night. "is the undoing of Liberals in this riding," he said.

In commenting on his bid for a federal seat, Preston High School teacher George Cunningham said the election was "one of the highlights of my life."

"It was hard work, but we had fun. Sometimes there were three or four things going on each night, 18-20-hour days were normal.

"Sure, there were times when we wondered why we were knocking our proverbial heads against the wall," he said, stressing the fact that contact with people is what makes it all worthwhile."

Mr. Cunningham also urged more active participation by local Liberal supporters. He did not reveal what his plans for the future were, but he did indicate he would remain active.

Canadians Said Alienated By Liberal Government

MADOC — A "frightening" sense of alienation has spread among Canadians who feel their government system has failed them. Canada's second youngest MP claimed here last night.

Such estrangement is no longer confined to minority groups, youth or the poor, 22-year-old Perrin Beatty, elected last October for Wellington - Grey - Dufferin - Waterloo told the Hastings Progressive Conservative Association annual meeting at the Kiwanis Centre.

"For the first time it's very frightening. There's a sense of alienation not the part of the senior citizen . . . the farmer, the small businessman, the working man, the housewife.

"There is a feeling that somehow, the system just does not seem to work any 'more for the average person.' said Mr. Beatty.

"Canadians are concerned about the future of Canada," he said.

Among major worries was an unemployment insurance scheme by which the government has become a competitor to the small businessman.

People have turned down work because of the unemployment insurance benefits they could obtain.

What was happening was the government was taxing the small businessman, the family farm, so that they could bribe them," charged the young MP.

A humane society must have such unemployment insurance scheme. But the present system penalizes initiative and encourages people not to work.

"For the first time in our society we're starting to implant this idea in a person's mind that he's really better off if he doesn't work, if he doesn't contribute to a society. What if he does."

Every fundamental reforms have to be made in the unemployment insurance scheme to make sure it serves the needs of Canadians.

There is no question that society has a responsibility to see its needy doesn't suffer.

PERRIN BEATTY

"But at the same time, each individual in our society has a responsibility to the others . . . that if he's capable, he pulls his load in the society, he said.

"I think that changes have to be made and we will make changes which ensure that this is done."

Among other issues for which he criticized the Trudeau government:

Family farm .... Capital gains tax made it "extremely difficult" to hand down family farm property through generations.

Small business — Government loan programs have charged usurious interest rates. Last August saw the highest number of small businesses failures in Canadian history since the Great Depression began in 1929; future generations may be forced to work for bureaucracy or large corporations with no other initiative, individuality.

Senior Citizens — People should be able to grow old without fear. Pensions have not been keyed to living costs. "If you're just too old there is no justice in the just society."

Liberals Accuse Bigotry Strategy

BATAWA — George Cunningham, defeated Liberal candidate in the recent federal election, last night accused local Conservatives of "creating a bigotry factor" in their campaigns.

"People in this area were told recently that I was going to Quebec," he said, referring to recent DREE (Department of Regional and Economic Expansion) development grants. "Unfortunately, the correct information was not available in time from Ottawa to counteract this information."

Mr. Cunningham outlined the details of the federal grant program, including almost $370 million to Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. To this he compared a $218 million grant program for Quebec.

According to the former federal candidate, the cattle were based on so many dollars per person, depending on population. Quebec's rate ran low, at $26.28 per person, up to PEI at $243.80.

He told members of the Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal Association at their annual meeting here last night "to say this is all going to another province is to create a bigotry factor."

"They meet certainly did this during their campaign. If Jack Ellis and those other fellows say 'Oh, no'." I'll take them into North Hastings by Prince Edward and show them where they did do it," he charged.

Licence Plate Logo

A distillery has figured out a way to beat the provincial government at the permanent licence plate game. The company's salesmen across Ontario now have the initials OFC for Original Fine Canadian, their prestige product, on their licence plates. W. J. Sargent, Belleville representative of the distillery, says the personal plates were each obtained by individual applications on the part of the company's 36 salesmen. He says he has heard of other companies attempting the advertising ploy but so far his is the only one known to have succeeded with 100 per cent of their cars tagged with the logo.

Alarm Box

Constellation Canada Now Canadian-owned

The firm is Constellation Canada Ltd., which manufactured its carpet dying, printing and finishing processes in Belleville three years ago.

Today George A. Long, president of Canadian Gypsum Company Ltd., announced, one of its subsidiaries has acquired Constellation, hitherto a Chemedey American Corporation, a diversified United States organization.

William J. Pettigrew, Constellation's managing director in Belleville, indicated the change would not affect local operations or personnel, but afforded expansion opportunities.

"It affords us the opportunity of greater continuity of operations, greater use of facilities and a greater appreciation of the facilities here in Belleville," he said.

The Constellation acquisition, which immediately supplement Peterlit' carpet finishing capacity, he said.

Debut by Ingarfield

Islanders Blow Lead

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For the first 20 minutes of his National Hockey League coaching career, Earl Ingarfield was a winner.

Then New York Islanders who have won only twice on the road and six times over-all in their initial NHL season, brought their new pilot back to reality by dropping a 5-3 decision to the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Elsewhere in the league, New York Rangers spotted the lowly California Golden Seals a first-period goal before defeating them 3-1 and Pittsburgh Penguins moved up a notch in the West Division standings by downing Los Angeles Kings 4-1.

Seven games are on tap tonight as the Islanders entertain Chicago Black Hawks, the Leafs visit Boston Bruins, the Kings move to Buffalo against the Sabres, the Seals play the Red Wings at Detroit, Atlanta Flames are at home to Minnesota North Stars, Montreal Canadiens tackle the Blues at St. Louis and Vancouver Canucks oppose the Flyers at Philadelphia.

Ingarfield, who replaced Phil Goyette as the Islanders' coach Monday had to move Ed Westfall, his No. 2 scorer, to a defence spot and bring up three other players from New Haven Nighthawks of the American League to replace injured regulars.

The patchwork lineup looked good in the early stages as former Leaf Brian Spencer twice beat Toronto netminder Gord McRae, making his NHL debut, and Billy Smith kicked out everything the Leafs threw at him at the other end.

Garry Monahan finally put the puck past Smith 20 seconds before the first period ended and the Islanders' fortunes declined steadily as the Leafs scored five times in a row before rookie Billy Harris jammed the puck home through a maze of players for the third Islander goal in the closing seconds.

Paul Henderson had a productive evening for Toronto, setting up two goals by Monahan and one by Norm Ullman before scoring one himself.

PAUL HENDERSON

Meloche but the 22-year-old Montreal native stopped 20 of them in the first period as Walt McKechnie staked him to a 1-0 lead on one of only five shots the Seals got away against Gilles Villemure.

Brad Park, Bobby Rousseau and Meloche closed the door again in the third, blocking 23 more New York drives.

The victory was the Rangers' fifth in a row, prolonging their undefeated streak to 11 games and moving them within three points of the Canadiens at the top of the East Division.

In the West, where a merry-go-round has been the order of the season, the Penguins pulled into a tie for second place from seventh, defeating Darryl Edestrand powered the Penguins past Los Angeles with two goals and an assist to move them into sixth place, a point behind the Kings.

Both Edestrand and Ron Schock beat Los Angeles goalie Gary Edwards for short-handed goals. Another defenceman, Neil Komadoski, robbed Pittsburgh reminder Jim Rutherford of his shutout by scoring his first NHL goal with less than four minutes remaining.

Hornets Lose 7th Straight

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP — Galt Hornets suffered their seventh consecutive loss when they were defeated 5-3 by Brantford Foresters in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game here tonight.

Foresters moved into a third place tie with Hornets but Galt has a game in hand.

Terry McKnight led Brantford with three goals. Tom McCarthy assisted on all three and also scored one.

Dave Nicholishen got Brantford's other goal.

The teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and Brantford went ahead 4-2 in the second.

Group Formed to Aid Montreal Olympics

TORONTO (CP — A group calling itself Olympic Concern said Thursday controversy concerning the financing of the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal has obscured the real value of the Games to Canada.

The group, made up of present and former Olympic athletes and "friends of the Olympic spirit," said anti-Olympic voices have made themselves heard and it was about time some pro-comment was aired.

The group called a news conference and outlined why it thought the Games were important to Canada.

It listed a number of points in favor of the Games, including:

1. The Games offer the experience of observing, first-hand, excellence in athletic performance.

2. Canada had been represented at the Games since 1900 and it now was our turn to act as host. In this context, it was Canada's obligation to make "innovative and creative changes that will allow future Games to be viable . . ."

What changes should be made and how the Games would become viable would be explained at a later date.

3. Since Canada was awarded the Games, there has been a response from all three levels of government to provide greater budgets for sport development. This response emphasizes the respect these governments have for the Olympic Games and the importance of them to Canada."

The group said in a news release:

"We support the Olympic Games most whole-heartedly. We believe Canada has the capability and maturity to sustain the 1976 Games as host country. . . ."

Former Olympians in the group include Harry Jerome, a sprinter from Vancouver; Nancy Greene Raine of Ottawa, former World Cup ski champion, Bruce Kidd, a middle distance runner from Toronto and Roger Jackson, a rowing champion from Toronto.

Jackson said the Olympics give athletes from varying philosophical backgrounds a chance to talk about world problems "with no political overtones."

A suggestion that the slaying of 11 Israeli athletes by Arab guerrillas in Munich had not unduly concerned Olympic athletes last summer, Miss Hoffman said that was not the case.

"I was gravely concerned," she said. "As some Scandinavian athletes left and wouldn't compete . . . as they were by no means unmindful of what had occurred."

Granston said it was obvious that such an occurrence could be repeated in Montreal. "but that's not a valid reason not to hold the games."

Golden Hawks Beat Bayside

The Napanee Golden Hawks midget basketball team increased their games won total to eight with a home court 48-29 victory over Bayside Secondary.

Brian McArthur topped the Hawks pointgetters with 13 points while Dan Hunt, Wayne Elliott, and Rick Davis followed up with 12, 11, and eight points respectively. Bayside's Darlow hit the basket for eight points while Kidd dropped seven.

The Napanee midgets will be playing some "tough games" against BCI, Quinte, and Moira in the coming weeks, and coach Lou Summers says that "we're not trying to kid ourselves" about the competition.

Bayside took the other half of the Junior Bay of Quinte basketball action Wednesday as the visiting team defeated the Hawks 42-36. Another double figure pointgetters were Rick Dasilva and George Eedie, both with 12.

Canadian Grid Stars Picked in NFL Draft

NEW YORK (CP) — Two Toronto Argonauts, a British Columbia Lion, an offensive tackle from Windsor, Ont., and two of the fastest men in the world were among the 442 United States collegians picked in the two-day National Football League draft.

Donn Smith, a 23-year-old graduate of Vincent Massey High School in Windsor who plays hockey as well as football for Purdue, was the seventh round pick of Kansas City Chiefs.

The Chiefs will be bidding against Ottawa Rough Riders, who hold the Canadian Football League rights to the 6-5 251-pounder.

Rod Milburn, an Olympic gold medallist in the hurdles, and leading quarter-milers, were claimed in the 13th round Wednesday by Los Angeles Rams and Dallas Cowboys respectively. Both were listed as wide receivers.

The two Argos, running back Leon McQuay and tackle Ron Mikolajczyk, both of whom left the University of Tampa as juniors, were picked in Tuesday's fifth round. New York Giants' word after McQuay and Mikolajczyk was chosen by Oakland Raiders.

Argonaut hopes of landing another Tampan, defensive end John Matuszak, dimmed abruptly when Hoston Oilers made him the No. 1 pick of the entire crop. His lawyer, Bob Woolf of Boston, predicted he would be the highest-paid lineman in football.

Monroe Eley, the running back from Arizona State who joined British Columbia Lions last season, was Kansas City's 11th-round choice.

Two rounds later, Los Angeles took Milburn and Dallas went for Smith.

The tournament had been established by Bob Hayes, the 100-metres champion at the 1964 Olympics who went on to an illustrious career as a pass-receiver with the Cowboys.

But it doesn't always work out that way.

John Carlos, a silver medallist at 200 metres at the 1968 Games, tried his luck in pro football on both sides of the border. He retired when he was cut by Montreal Alouettes and the Argonauts the two worst teams in the CFL.

Refs Coming to Blows?

Junior house league referee Brad Miller (left) is not punching fellow icemate Mark Moynes in the nose, but simply demonstrating the proper manner to indicate a roughing penalty. Mark, on the other hand, indicates a high sticking penalty at the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's fourth referee's clinic this year. Last year the two young refs patrolled the tyke house league ice, while this year they've moved up to referee the novice games.

Minor Hockey Referees Get Officiating Tips

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter

A hockey coach standing behind his player's bench told Tom, Dick and Harry on the ice, but when the tots down on the ice is the responsibility of the referee.

Williams presented slides and quoted from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's referee's rule book in order to emphasize to the 25 junior and experienced referees the responsibility they have once they step foot on the arena ice for a game.

"Look sharp, act sharp, and be sharp," quipped Williams, "if you call plays distinctly you won't get into trouble. You set the tone of the game."

"You have to be consistent in your calls," said the referee, "if you start tight then you have to stay the same throughout. I — call the cheapies, then the big one's don't count."

Williams, who has been refereeing for 17 years now, chose times at which to explain a point about the tone of a novice game. A referee's job, according to the second-year, chief referee, is to see that a game is played cleanly. "Let the guys play the game," he said "don't let the game escalate into one in which the referee has no longer control the players with calls he makes. Basically, if a ref shows by his calls that he means business, then he has control of the game and no one will require hospitalization.

But Williams and Blake Moynes, vice - president of the BMHA and also a referee, agreed that they worked under a certain disadvantage due to the fact that both men have worked in Belleville games in the past, the "word gets around among the players" concerning the types of calls that the two men, and also other referee's, make in slow down. According to Williams, players, as a result, move cautiously where they know the ref likes to tread.

But this situation also helps to keep games clean. "Some people would say that this is wrong, that you're antagonizing the players," but you know what some players will do, they have a gleam in their eye, and you watch with a little closer.

"You have to do it, to keep the game clean," said Moynes, "but you know that the kids guys are normally agitators."

"I like to give them what's mine, a referee shouldn't prod a player into a penalty, according to Williams. The referee in chief was speaking to referees present, but he cautioned his fellow referees to give them only when necessary and not to look for them.

"I don't come too close to the penalized player," said Williams. "he may be angry already." The call, according to Williams, should be made at a distance from the player in order that he might not have to be given a match misconduct for molesting an official.

Though the 14 junior referees, boys who fill the lower ranks of house league hockey, still have this ahead, the older referees have had to acquire thicker outer shells to ward off the criticisms often received from fans and coaches alike.

"A coach can see an infraction, but the ref's got to see it," said Williams. As an example, Williams mentioned an episode in a Gas House game this week. "You could see it coming, one guy was blarring and he nails another guy.

"Bob Howe turns around, (an OMHA referee) and this guy is lying on the ice, but that can be a call, if he didn't see it."

Cats Must Play Well To Miss Peterborough

"While the cats sway the mice will play" goes an old adage that the Belleville Bobcats will be too busy to take notice of this week.

The fifth placed Metro Junior "B" hockey club hits the road this afternoon for a key game against Whitby Tiremen as the season draws near its conclusion. Besides tonight's game, the Bobcats meet Whitby and Pickering this weekend in games that will decide whether the Belleville team can pull themselves out of fifth spot into fourth.

If the Cats take hold of fourth they will avoid a series of playing the Peterborough Lions in the Metro group playdowns. The Bobcats have failed to win in their three meetings with the first place club, having dropped 4-3, 5-4, and 9-1 decision this season.

Last year the Bobcats finished third season with a 23-1 won - lost - tie record against the Lions. Though the Lions had a bigger team last season, this year they have lost the goaltending in the person of Terry Wasson, according to the coach.

Hunter said that having to play the Lions in the playoffs if the Cats remain in fifth place "should be enough incentive for them to want to win."

Wayne McGeachy will be appearing on the left wing with Mark Coates and right winger Andy Kerr, while defencemen Wally Diamond, who received a match misconduct in the Cats home game against the Lions, will be sitting out the Whitby contest.

Bobcats general manager Jim Matthews said that if the OHA "make a decision today, they will notify me tomorrow by telegram" regarding the status of Diamond. "I feel that he'll be out at least six games."

Colts Tried To Trade Bubba

BALTIMORE (AP — General manager Joe Thomas of Baltimore Colts admitted Wednesday he tried to trade defensive end Bubba Smith for Houston's No. 1 draft pick, but criticized Oilers' owner Bud Adams for revealing the offer.

"That's very bad ethics," Thomas said of the published comments by Adams. "It disturbs me, because something like that can have a bad effect on a football team.

"If every draft started revealing who was discussed in trades, there wouldn't be enough room in the papers to name all the players."

Adams said he was offered Smith, a former all-pro who sat out the 1972 season following knee surgery, and Baltimore's first-round draft pick for next draft pick for next year in exchange for Houston's No. 1 choice in the current draft that began Tuesday.

Houston kept the spot, using it to draft 275-pound defensive lineman John Matuszak of Tampa. The Colts had promised Matuszak they would take him at the first chance.

"Yes, I offered Bubba," Thomas said. "I'll trade anybody on our football club if I get the right price. I've told Bubba that, too."

Smith announced a few days ago that he would sell his Baltimore home and move to Los Angeles, saying he wanted to tackle Billy Newsome and a fourth-round choice to New Orleans for the Saints' top pick which followed Houston in the first round.

Giants Will Wait For Argo Star

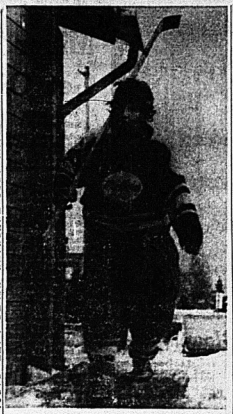
The Giants, gambling in the National Football League's two-day draft, picked McQuay, currently playing for Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.



"What it amounts to is that we drafted McQuay as a possible future," Giants coach Alex Webster said Wednesday. "He's a great back. He'll have to wait a year or two, but we're willing to wait." McQuay has one year left on his contract with the Argos, in an option on a year beyond that.

"We feel we can get him. Sure, it's a gamble, but we're pretty sure it's worth it. We're pretty sure he'd like to play down here in the States.

"We'd like to put him in the backfield with Ron Johnson, even though it would mean we'd have to change our style somewhat. The only thing is that his blocking is a question mark."

PASSES FOR POWS

NEW YORK (AP — Each prisoner of war returning from Indochina will receive a gold-plated lifetime pass good for any professional baseball game, commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Wednesday.

Bourassa Plans Florida Test

MONTREAL (CP) — Jobyrne Bourassa, proclaiming her knee operation Jan. 9 a success, is planning a weekend excursion to Florida to test it on the fairways, the professional golfer said Wednesday.

"I just can't wait any longer to start practising," said the Shawinigan, Que., native whose 16,000, rookie season on the women's pro golf tour made her The Canadian Press female athlete of the year last year.

"In fact the doctor took a look at it yesterday and asked how come I wasn't in Florida."

Miss Bourassa underwent surgery in Trois-Rivieres to remove damaged cartilage from her left knee. She was on crutches for 30 days and then switched to a cane which she discarded earlier this week.

MADIGAN MOVES

ST. LOUIS (AP — St. Louis Blues announced Wednesday the acquisition of defenseman Connie Madigan from Portland of the Western Hockey League for an undisclosed amount of cash and the loan of a player. The National Hockey League Blues, then assigned Madigan to their farm team in Denver and sent defenseman Andre Aubrey from Denver to Portland.

BERRY A LION COACH

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (CP — Raymond Berry, a former Baltimore Colts receiver of the National Football League, has joined Detroit Lions as a coach. He will be succeeded at Arkansas by Don Trull who also will coach quarterbacks. Trull played quarterback for Edmonton Eskimos in 1970 and 1971 before being cut.

SHARP MOVES UP

NEW YORK (AP — New York Raiders of the World Hockey Association brought up right winger Ted Sharf from Long Island of the Eastern League Wednesday because of injuries to several forwards.

White Rescues Cold Celtics

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We were so cold I was waiting for the Eskimos to show up," said Boston coach Tom Heinsohn.

Then along came the rescue team of Don Chaney and Jo Jo White to thaw out the Celtics and give them some breathing room in their tight race with New York Knicks.

"We played as bad as you could play," said Heinsohn after the Celtics played well enough to beat Cleveland Cavaliers 94-89 and take a one-game lead in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division over the Knicks, who were upset 94-91 in Detroit.

Kentucky topped Dallas 109-99, Denver thrashed Memphis 134-105, Utah downed Indiana 122-107 and Virginia nipped New York Nets 100-96 in the American Basketball Association.

Chaney scored 14 points, nine of them on three-point plays, and White scored seven and turned in a top defensive effort in the final period to pull the Celtics past Cleveland. Chaney finished with a season-high 28 points.

Bob Lanier scored 30 points, including two foul shots that clinched the victory with seven seconds left as the Pistons snapped a six-game losing streak against New York. Walt Frazier topped the Knicks with 20 points.

Keino May Lose Amateur Status

NAIROBI (AP) — The amateur status of Kip Keino was clouded Wednesday by reports in the Nairobi Daily Nation that the Olympic track star from Kenya accepted free air passage to the United States.

The newspaper quotes sources as saying Keino accepted an air ticket in Lagos, Nigeria, from a Ghanaian athlete currently studying in the U.S. The athlete was not named. Keino had been in Lagos competing in the All-Africa Games.

Keino is slated to run in the three-mile event in the Toronto Star Maple Leaf Indoor Games in Toronto Friday night.

He competed in Los Angeles, Jan. 20 and in Albuquerque, N.M., last weekend.

The newspaper said Keino received an offer from an U.S. group to turn professional for an initial fee of $4,800, but Keino has not said whether he would accept it.

If he were declared professional on the technicality of accepting the airline ticket, he would be banned from amateur athletics anywhere in the world.

A spokesman for the Amateur Athletic Union in the United States confirmed that his organization "had not issued a ticket for his participation" in U.S. meets.

First baseman-outfielder Ron Fairly, third baseman Coco Laboy and pitcher Joe Gilbert were the latest three to sign.

DURBAN, South Africa (Reuter — Britain's Warren Humphreys hit a five-under-par 67 to take the lead after the first round of the South African Open golf championship Wednesday, one stroke ahead of Ken Trowbridge of Toronto.

Where Energy Involved Popeye Out of Spinach

The American dream is wrapped in an electric blanket, says a shrewd observer as the United States faces an energy crisis amid tremendous waste. Peter Buckley, senior Canadian Press Washington correspondent, discusses the promotional dilemma in the second of his two-part series on this major issue.

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP)—"Popeye is running out of spinach."

This description of the United States energy dilemma comes from former commerce secretary Peter Peterson.

It means domestic supplies of oil and natural gas have started to decline at a time when:

—American demand for energy is doubling every 15 years.

—Exports of oil and gas from such convenient suppliers as Canada and Venezuela can't keep pace with U.S. needs because of their own growing requirements.

—Popular concern about the environment has reduced use of the country's 500 year reserves of coal, severely disrupted timetables for atomic energy and offshore drilling and scuttled plans for refineries, hydro plants, pipelines and transmission lines.

—Exotic new sources of energy—the sun, the tides, the earth's internal heat, nuclear fusion, the shale and synthetic fuels—all are at least 10 years away from significant production.

The shock of running short of fuel, as many communities are doing this winter, probably is no greater than the shock to the public of discovering that the "energy crisis" faces the U.S.

There is no easy answer. But anyone exploring the U.S. plight is struck by such factors as lack of planning, waste, irresponsible promotion of energy use and irrational price structures.

Among the most frequent targets for criticism has been the U.S. government. Sixty four federal agencies and departments have some responsibility in the field of energy, without a single over-riding boss or over-all energy program.

President Nixon is working on a new energy policy. And Congress is preparing its own set of alternatives after hearings conducted by Democratic Senator Henry Jackson of Washington.

They must decide how to lessen the impact of the domestic shortages and the increased imports that are inevitable for the next decade. They also must determine which alternative fuels to develop most vigorously for future needs, and how the economy can finance the massive expenditures required.

If past performance is a criterion, the new policies will give only a token nod to conserving energy and reducing waste. Administration spokesmen, including Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, seem to suggest that a lack of headlong growth is un-American. The oil and gas industry with profit margins at stake, is even more ready to support that argument.

Yet the waste is phenomenal. Energy experts calculate that more than half the energy produced is wasted in one way or another.

Electrical energy in the U.S. is produced mainly by burning oil, coal or gas. The process uses 25 per cent of the national energy supplies—and wastes 70 per cent of the fuel through conversion and transmission.

Nevertheless, 25 per cent of all new office buildings will be heated and cooled by electricity. Because most also will be fitted with glass, the temperature-control systems will be constantly at war with the climate and with each other, cooling the sunny south side and warming the shaded north.

Automobiles get the same 12 miles on a gallon of gasoline that they got 20 years ago. There are 100 million cars in the U.S. and they consume 13 per cent of all energy supplies, wasting up to 87 per cent of their transport efficiency. Typically, a 4,000-pound car will carry a 115-pound housewife five miles to the store for a 10-pound grocery order.

Transportation department officials estimate that, in terms of fuel consumption, a train can be 2½ times more efficient than a car and six times more efficient than a plane. Yet in the congested Northeast Corridor between Boston, and Washington, 75 per cent of inter-city travel is by car and 17 per cent by air. Only eight per cent is by rail.

Even the gas range in the average U.S. kitchen manages to waste one-third of its fuel just feeding the pilot light.

The history of the energy industry's promotional efforts also becomes pertinent.

For years, as various sections of the industry fed statistics into he government about declining reserves and strained facilities, the same industries promoted an increasing use of energy through discount rates for volume consumers and aggressive campaigns for new customers and new uses of their products.

One result of the early promotion of atomic fuel was to retard the coal industry, which hasn't opened a new underground mine since the Second World War. Lower-priced natural gas scooped up more of coal's customers when a cleaner fuel became important.

Although accessible U.S. reserves of oil have been declining steadily since 1967, the industry has continued to promote gasoline and other fuels as aggressively as ever—even today, when heating oil shortages crop up.

However, an equally skilful campaign of "institutional" advertising has begun on television and in print, aimed at public concern about fuels.

It is backed by industry pressure on government for "reasonable" environmental standards, more "balanced" safety laws, higher prices, greater tax concessions and easier access to resources on federally-owned lands.

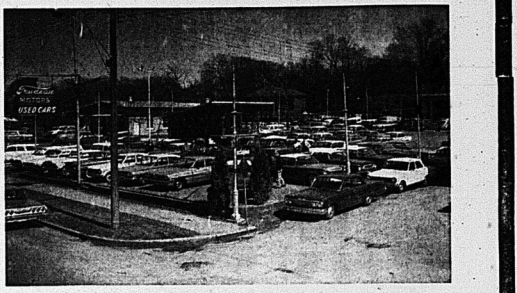
"There are the warnings that the price of all kinds of fuel must go up, the blackmail over keeping oil import quotas and the lamentations about how government is robbing the big corporations of their appetites for profit.

"And of course, there are those television commercials with the national heart counting sharpety-thumps on an oscilloscope and the voice-over suggesting if the energy industry doesn't get what it wants, America will have cardiac arrest."



The suspicions of people like von Hoffman are reinforced by the fact that 75 major oil companies control three-quarters of U.S. oil and gas production, half the uranium reserves and 20 per cent of coal output.

Lost Love

BRISTOL, England (CP) — Passionate kissing has been banned from Bristol's jail—to prevent wives and girlfriends smuggling drugs to inmates. Wardens have found it increasingly difficult to detect drugs passed from mouth to mouth.

"Some addicts are so desperate they swallow the drugs and retrieve them when they pass through their system," one warden said. Inmates now are allowed only a peck with their loved ones.

Dramatic Phrases Used To Back Death Penalty

OTTAWA (CP) — "Let us close the book of 19th century transgressor quickly, cleanly and finally," said Lorne Arrol (PC—York East) Wednesday.

Using some of the most dramatic language so far in the Commons capital punishment debate, he called for a return of the death penalty—not necessarily hanging, if people object to that mode of execution.

The teacher MP urged an end to what he termed twisted social values that give the criminal the break.

He was one of 10 speakers Wednesday in the debate on a government bill to extend the partial ban on capital punishment for another five years.

The debate was suspended until Monday and today the Commons will turn to Vietnam. The government will submit a motion seeking approval of its decision to send Canadian observers to Vietnam on an interim basis.

Since Friday there have been 25 speakers, 21 for abolition of capital punishment and 14 for retention. There have been some qualifications.

It is expected there will be a few votes next week, perhaps Monday, on the bill that would suspend hanging for all killers except those of policemen and prison guards.

Jean-Marie Bolsvert (SC—Drummond) also said he would vote against the bill while Antonio Thomas (L—Montreal-Maisonneuve-Rosemont) said he wants capital punishment retained for premeditated murder.

Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) said he has been a regular criminal for years but would consider supporting a bill that would abolish hanging but put killers in jail for life.

John Reid (L—Kenora-Rainy River) said he has been an abolitionist but is concerned for the feeling of insecurity of he public about the release of prisoners on parole and on leave.

Mr. Arrol said: "The doers of society . . . are sometimes held up to derision and ridicule, while the whiners and social delinquents are presented as the pure gems of society.

"The lost, the social orphans, the nuts and fruits of society, at least as generally depicted by the movies, newspapers, magazines, radio and TV—have become the heroes.

"The more someone spits on society, the more society coddles him.

"It's got so now that a person who defecates on the floor blames society for not cleaning it up.

"The indolent, the far-out, the emotional blackmailers are pampered by sociologists, psychologists, psychiatrists, many of them as mad as the people they serve.

"Evil, it seems, no longer exists.

"If someone whose life has been one of violence, aggressive, anti-social activity, and whose career in crime culminates in the murder of an innocent person in society, that social misfit should be done away with, indeed for his own benefit as well as that of the society he has rejected."

Mr. Reid said he voted against capital punishment in 1966 and 1967 but is finding it more difficult this time. The arguments of abolitionists were more academic and reasonable than those of the retentionists.

But he said abolition is largely opposed by the public, and Parliament has failed to reform the prison system to reduce violence in society. Prisons had become "criminal schools for advanced criminals."

Mr. Crouse said killers must remain in jail until they die.

He had opposed abolition for 15 years and would vote against the government bill unless there were changes in sentencing.

2 Quebec Labor Chiefs Will Go to Jail Friday

QUEBEC (CP) — At least two of three Quebec labor leaders who lost a bid Wednesday for a Supreme Court of Canada appeal against contempt of court citations will probably go to jail Friday, says Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

"There have been discussions between their lawyers and the justice department," Mr. Choquette told a news conference Wednesday, "and it seems that at least Mr. Yvon Charbonneau and Mr. Marcel Pepin will present themselves voluntarily Friday."

Mr. Pepin is president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) and Mr. Charbonneau, president of the Quebec Teachers Corp. (QTC).

The third labor leader, Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, drove to Florida recently on vacation and is not expected back before next week.

The three were cited for contempt last May for asking hospital workers to ignore injunctions ordering them back to work during Quebec's public service strike.

They spent about two weeks in jail and Quebec workers resented with a wave of illegal and general strikes before the three leaders were released pending appeal of their sentence.

Ruling on the appeal Nov. 14, five justices of the Quebec Appeal Court upheld the sentences.

Three justices of the Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that the Quebec Appeal Court decision could not be revised. They gave no reasons for this decision.

Spokesmen for Quebec labor movements said there would probably not be a massive wave of protests from unionized workers against the return of the three to jail.

Mr. Choquette said that "under normal conditions" with good behavior, they would have to stay in prison another seven months."

Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, and Camille Laurin, the party's leader in the national assembly, issued a statement Wednesday calling on Premier Robert Bourassa to commute the prison sentences, which they said could only compromise the existing political situation in the province.

Linguistic Ombudsman Criticizes Government

OTTAWA (CP — Canada's linguistic ombudsman has made his annual assessment of the bilingualism controversy and pins much of the blame for backwardness and backlash on the government.

Appointed commissioner of official languages two years ago, Keith Spicer enforces equitable implementation and observance within the public service of the Official Languages Act.

His second annual report, presented to Parliament Wednesday, had the ring of a warning.

Though not within his jurisdiction, Mr. Spicer dwelt on teaching second-language skills in Canada, and called it "a country-wide catastrophe."

Funds given the provinces to help pay for language training to reach $300 million by 1974 have not produced the desired results, the report says, and Mr. Spicer has received many complaints about misuse of such funds by the provinces.

To help improve language-teaching programs Mr. Spicer suggests formation of a "linguistic volunteer corps" of students to act as native-speaking assistants to language teachers, an idea used successfully in West Germany and France.

The federal government is considering a pilot program of 200 such volunteers who would receive about $3,500 a year each, the report says.

The fears and backlash raised by bilingualism policy were largely due to poor communication of government intentions, the report said.

"I am convinced that if bilingualism remains controversial in some quarters it is precisely because too many public officials, in spite of some honest efforts, have not fully met their responsibilities to explain."

He urged top administrators to become "models of the bilingual" willing to travel and explain policy to public servants across the country.

Mr. Spicer also recommended the second year creation of a bilingualism information centre.

Spicer Spicy

OTTAWA (CP) — Keith Spicer once advised Canadians that the best way to learn a second language is to love it.

It was plain from the start that Mr. Spicer's term as the country's commissioner of officials languages would be anything but dull.

Judging from the report he presented to Parliament Wednesday, Mr. Spicer's flare remains undampened after two years of ombudsmanship. The language sounds like pure Spicer.

Supersonic Planes Receive Setback

NEW YORK (AP) — Decisions of the two largest international airlines in the United States not to exercise options to buy the controversial Concorde has probably ended the possibility of U.S. carriers using supersonic planes in the next few years.

Pan American World Airways announced Wednesday it will not exercise its options to buy two of the British-French planes because studies showed the aircraft "has significantly less range, less payload and higher operating costs" than a current wide-bodied jet.

Besides, the carrier added, the Concorde would require "substantially higher fares."

Trans World Airlines said it will recommend that its board of directors not exercise its options on six Concordes because "first priority must be given to the improvement and expansion of our present subsonic fleet." The airline also said it had "some serious questions as to the economic viability of the Concorde on TWA's system."

Pan Am and TWA are regarded as industry leaders particularly in overseas routes where Concordes would be useful, and their decision to scrap the options is expected to affect the thinking of other airlines.

Four other U.S. carriers hold options on the planes, scheduled for commercial use in 1974. By that time costs are expected to total about the $56 - million mark for each plane. American and Continental have options to buy six planes each; Braniff and Continental have options on three planes each.

All Quebec Rentals To Be Under Controls

QUEBEC (CP) — All rental housing in Quebec will be subject to rental controls in 1974 under legislation to be presented in the national assembly when it reconvenes Feb. 20, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Wednesday.

Mr. Choquette said the legislation resulted from "a very considerable number" of rent increases across the province.

In Montreal Tuesday a spokesman at the local rental control board said more than 50,000 calls have poured into his office since Jan. 1 from tenants protesting rent hikes of up to 50 per cent.

Mr. Choquette told a news conference the bill, called a "law to prevent abusive increases in rents in 1973," will enable tenants who feel they are facing unreasonable increases to take their case before a Quebec Rental Board.

New Grain Rail Cars Too Heavy

OTTAWA (CP) — Two thousand big grain-carrying hopper cars purchased last year by the government for $40 million can travel on only half the railway tracks in western Canada, the Commons estimates committee was told Wednesday.

W. E. Jarvis, co-ordinator of the industry department's grains group, said that, "something less than half the tracks" can carry the cars once they are full of grain. The other half cannot take the weight of a full car.

He assured the committee, however, that CN and RP Rail can use other grain-carrying cars to move grain from places where the new cars cannot be used.

Cut Staff

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Sixty-one University of Western Ontario faculty members are not having contracts renewed this year and budget restrictions will mean a large number will not be replaced, D. Carlton Williams, university president, said Wednesday.

Boost Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — A report of a study group that recommends a substantial increase in payments to the 153,282 Canadians receiving war-veterans' pensions was tabled in the Commons Wednesday.

If the report's recommendation are adopted, and Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel MacDonald has indicated he favors them, the basic 100-per-cent disability pension would go up to about $4,500 annually from about $3,900.

Revenge Seen

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — Niagara Regional Police are investigating a possible revenge motive in the Monday bombing of a home here which seriously injured a widow and her son.

Mary Pulak, 60, is in Port Colborne Hospital and her son Larry, 20, is in Toronto General Hospital with severe injuries. The bomb, delivered as a parcel, is believed to have exploded as the son opened it.

Police said Wednesday they learned of a fight involving the son and another Port Colborne resident in a hotel, two days before the blast.

EUGENE WHELAN

Aid Small

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan agreed Wednesday that government compensation for farmers suffering crop losses due to bad weather last year was minimal. He said a $400 limit was put on assistance to individual farmers in such diverse parts of the country as Quebec, Ontario and the Peace River region of British Columbia and Alberta in order to "treat all farmers in the same manner."

Those who buy crop insurance do not feel it is fair that others without it receive government help when b a d weather hits their crops, Mr. Whelan told the Commons estimates committee.

Can't Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — Karleton Armstrong, wanted in Wisconsin on charges of murder and arson, was denied h i s application Wednesday to appeal his extradition order to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Boy Slain

BUFFALO (AP) — Police arrested two 13-year-old boys Wednesday in connection with the fatal shooting of a seven-year-old boy as he walked home from school.

The boys were charged with juvenile delinquency.

Oppose Dumps

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — A group of Pickering Township residents decided Wednesday to ask their council to go back on its agreement with Metropolitan Toronto to allow it to use 1,300 acres in the township for garbage dumps.

And Groups Against Garbage (GAG) does not plan to stop at the council. It plans to go before Metro Toronto as well, and to appeal for help from other groups.

"I see no reason why the new council cant renege on the agreement," said Clark Muirhead, a former Uxbridge Township councillor, spokesman for the group.

Forced to Quit

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Dr. David Slater resigned as president of York University here only after the board of governors said he would be fired otherwise.

Man Kicked

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A prisoner was kicked unconscious by a bystander outside provincial court Wednesday during a scuffle between police and another prisoner.

Donald West and Brian Johnston, 20, both of Peterborough were handcuffed together when Johnston and police started fighting after Johnston stopped to talk with an unidentified woman.

Johnston was wrestled to the floor dragging West with him when the attack occurred. During the scuffle, West was kicked in the head. He recovered a short time later. His attacker fled.

Hangs Self

SELKIRK, Man. (CP) — Jean Joseph Charles d'Auteuil, 22, found not guilty by reason of insanity of capital murder in the shooting death of an RCMP constable in September 1971, was found dead Wednesday.

RCMP said d'Auteuil was found by a doctor in a patient's washroom of the Selkirk Hospital for Mental Diseases, hanging from a door hook with a belt around his neck.

Foul play is not suspected.

LOUIS RASMINSKY

Retires Today

OTTAWA (CP) — After 12 uncertain years supervising Canada's international and domestic finances, Louis Rasminsky is going to enjoy the luxury of having no decisions to make.

As governor of the Bank of Canada for those 12 years, he faced a seemingly-uninterrupted series of problems involving international exchange rates, the domestic credit structure, interest rates and—most recently—the twin problems of inflation and unemployment.

Today, his 65th birthday, he retires from the bank, which handles all federal finances and directs the nation's finances through its control over the money and credit influences on the chartered banks.

Maple In Demand

OTTAWA (CP) — Last year the Japanese decided they wanted to learn to bowl and as a result the price of Canadian hardwood shot up. But with Japanese enthusiasm on the wane, prices are expected to drop somewhat.

Body Found

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — The partially-frozen body of Lilliam Winnington-Ingram, 38, of Bracebridge was found Wednesday on a rural road near here.

The body of the woman, a mother of four, was found about two miles from her home. Temperatures in the area dipped to a low of 30 below zero overnight.

A post-mortem is to be held.

MPPs Study Florida Drainage

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail, in a story from West Palm Beach, says the 30-member Ontario legislature land drainage committee is spending three days in Florida studying flood control and drainage projects.

The newspaper says six of the 30 members of the legislature brought their wives along and the group also includes a research director with the ministry of agriculture and food, a clerk and two secretaries.

Committee chairman Lorne Henderson told the newspaper that the men who brought their wives are responsible for the wives' expenses, including plane tickets, the extra cost of hotel rooms and meals.

"I laid down the law on that," Mr. Henderson is quoted as saying.

The newspaper said the chairman indicated the total cost of the trip to the Ontario taxpayer will be about $13,000. The group left last Friday and spent two days in Washington where it was briefed by the United States Soil Conservation Service.

The 10 members include seven Progressive Conservatives, two Liberals and one New Democratic Party member.

The only member of the committee who did not go was Fred Burr, NDP member for Windsor. Mr. Henderson told the newspaper Mr. Burr "indicated he felt the trip would be a waste of time."

Computer to Handle Heart Tracings Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — A national system for computer-aided interpretation of heart tracings should be set up in Canada, says a national committee of the Canadian Heart Foundation and the Canadian Cardiovascular Society.

It recommended at a January meeting that a co - ordinating centre should be set up in Halifax to develop the kind of computer-aided program that would best suit Canadian needs.

"Canada is in a unique position that it can take action now to develop a program that could be used right across the country," Dr. J. B. Armstrong, medical director of the heart foundation, said in an interview Wednesday.

"If we waited another three or four years we wouldn't be."

Use of computers to aid in processing electrocardiograms — ECGs or heart tracings — is not a new, Dr. Armstrong said.

IRA Active

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Irish Republican Army has had a full-time organizer in Canada since last October laying the base for a major propaganda and fund-raising campaign.

The newspaper identifies the organizer as Sean Keane, 23, and says he "will probably leave in late February and return to New York."

QUESTION: We are wintering in Northern Florida, and are thinking of driving west as far as New Orleans, possibly at Mardi Gras time. Can you give us any details on New Orleans and just when is Mardi Gras this year?

ANSWER: Mardi Gras falls always on Shrove Tuesday, this year March 6, although the beginning of the celebrations start two weeks ahead of Mardi Gras.

New Orleans, with a metropolitan area population of 1,034,316 is unique in its combination of Old World romance and modern progress. The French Quarter is known throughout the world for its shops, restaurants and many sites of historical interest. Canal Street, one of the widest business thoroughfares in the United States, divides this section — the original settlement — from the modern industrial part of the city. Imposing buildings, magnificent mansions and estates line 7-mile-long St. Charles Avenue. The Garden District, with its floral loveliness, and such sections as Audubon Place and Versailles Boulevard present New Orleans at its gracious best.

City Park, Audubon Park, Bayou St. John and the Pontchartrain lakeshore offer beautiful drives and numerous recreational opportunities. Pontchartrain Beach is a popular amusement park. The Lake Pontchartrain causeway, the longest overwater highway bridge in the world, connects New Orleans with the northern lakeshore.

The city was founded in 1718 by Sieur de Bienville, French explorer, and was named in honor of the Duke of Orleans. In 1762 France, without regard to the wishes of the people, ceded the whole of this territory to Spain. In 1800 it was returned to France but representatives of the government did not take possession until 1803, only 20 days before this territory was formally transferred to the United States as part of the Louisiana Pruchase.

There is something about New Orleans that makes a special event super-special. The one event that is synonymous with the city and into which its whole soul is poured is Mardi Gras. Meaning "Fat Tuesday," Mardi Gras is Shrove Tuesday, the last uproarious day before the sternness of Lent. Mardi Gras also refers to the entire fortnight before Ash Wednesday, when the season starts with a series of glittering private balls. The tempo of revelry increases with parades — 27 of them — through the narrow streets and the masses of laughing, drinking, dancing people, most of them masked. The two largest parades, those of Rex, King of Carnival, in the morning, and Comus, God of Revelry, by torchlight at night, are on the final day, Shrove Tuesday.

Scenic boat cruises offer diversified opportunities for sightseeing in the harbor area, Mississipi River and surrounding bayou country, where Jean Lafitte and his buccaneers hid. The Mark Twain bayou tour departs daily from the Canal Street docks at 11 and returns at 4; fare $6, children under 16, $3, under 6, free. A harbor trip aboard the 2,000 - passenger steamer President operates from the Canal Street docks daily at 2:30; fare $3.50, children 6 to 16, $1.75. A dance cruise begins at 9 p.m. Saturday. The Voyageur leaves the Canal Street docks daily at 10 for a 5-hour trip to the bayou area; fare $6, children under 16, $3. A shorter harbor cruise on the Voyageur leaves at 3:30; fare $2.75, children under 16, $1.50.

The French Quarter, or Vieux Carre, comprising about 78 blocks between the river and Rampart Street, from Canal Street to Esplanade Avenue, formed the original settlement of New Orleans. Narrow streets, quaint dwellings with iron trellised balconies, old shops and cafes characterize the area.

Jackson Square, in the heart of the French Quarter, is where early New Orleans welcomed her heroes and held great public meetings with celebrations.

Jazz Museum, at Bourbon and Conti Streets, in the Royal Sonesta Hotel presents a collection of items and artifacts relating to the history of jazz. An enormous stepping-disc jukebox and a stained-glass window are the only reminders of Mahogany Hall, believed to have been the birthplace of this music. Recordings of the phases of jazz may be heard. Open Monday through Saturday 10 to 5; closed Sunday and holidays. Fee 75 cents students 25 cents under 12 free.

Preservation Hall, 726 St. Peter Street, is a sparsely decorated structure where Dixieland Jazz is presented in its truest form. A different band performs each night with rotating appearances of 5 or 6 bands. No food or beverages are sold. Standing, limited seating. Open daily 8:30 a.m.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, FEB. 2

Aries (March 21-April 19): Relax as you resume a daily soft sell effort. Co-operation is abundant, perhaps even more than you are ready to use.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Women have a field day, according to the soundness of their recent planning. You have an excellent business day.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): While you are winding up the week look in good style, leave nothing of importance over to later revision; review your situation.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Persistence finally opens the way for you. Any help offered brings added threads of obligation for the future.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Today favors lively and promising, better than the last few days. Improvise from present resources while leaving reserves untouched.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Special projects fare better now. Have a general round-up to make sure you are not losing contact with people who can help.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your most adventurous streak comes out strongly, and you find yourself taking risks you hadn't planned.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A bold approach may get you much further along than you had thought could be. Move quickly to consolidate any advance.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be alert for financial progress. Successful past efforts become credentials for a further venture.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The spur of the moment is as good a moving force as any. Pause for reflection, your solution should provide answers.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Achievement comes with determination on your part. Be persistent, once you know what is available and what you want of it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your advice, education, and be patient with the long stories that come along with it. Trust it all is treasured.

Amebiasis Causes Chronic Diarrhea

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had diarrhea for 10 years. An hospital stay diagnosed it as chronic ulcerative colitis, and the doctor says I have to have an ileostomy. Please explain the difference between that and a colostomy.

Could my having had amebas have caused all the trouble? I cook for them here and they have learned the intestines?—A.R.

For various reasons (a chronically inflamed bowel being one of them) it sometimes is necessary to bring certain parts of the intestine out to an artificial opening in the abdomen.

Whether you call it a colostomy or an ileostomy depends on which part of the intestine is brought out to that opening. If part of the colon, or lower bowel, is brought out, then it is a colostomy. If part of the ileum, which is a portion of the intestine ahead of the colon, is brought out, then it is an ileostomy.

Either way, the purpose is to give relief to the part that has become inflamed and is thus causing your continuing diarrhea. Obviously, after attempts were made to heal the trouble in your case and after three years the doctors could see no other recourse.

Sometimes these "stomies" are permanent, and sometimes they are only temporary, until the bothered bowel has a chance to rest and heal. It depends on the exact nature of the disorder and how it responds.

Amebiasis (an ameba infection in the intestinal tract) is a common cause of colitis—the ameba and its irritant effect and not the treatment.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have told several people about the danger from a black mole. My husband thinks it could be treated by something other than operation, but my doctor says only surgery should be used.—R.H.

Nearly everyone has a mole of some type, somewhere on the skin. Not all moles are cancerous—but, of course, any color, should be removed if it shows signs of change. That means color, size, shape or bleeding. It is also wise to remove any mole that is subjected to repeated irritation, as under a shoulder strap, belt, etc.

I don't necessarily recommend that all black (or blue-black) moles be removed, but I most certainly do urge, as strongly as I can, that moles of that color be watched especially closely, and removed if they are subject to even rather mild irritation. The reason is that moles of this type sometimes develop a form of cancer known as melanoma which spreads very rapidly, once it starts.

I would like to know what other treatment could be used to remove a mole other than an operation—it's a minor operation anyway. It can be removed with a laser beam, but very many moles are removed by electro-surgery, with a "cutting needle." That, however, rates as a form of surgery.

Be suspicious about moles; look at them regularly, and if they start to change in any way, have your doctor decide what to do.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had two kidney stones removed, one from each kidney. He drinks two glasses of ginger ale a day. Could this be harmful?—Mrs. G.E.

No, not harmful. In fact, drinking plenty of liquids (to keep the urine dilute) is one means of warding off more stones.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	1♥	4♣
4NT	Pass	5♦	Pass
6♥	Dble	Pass	Pass
Redble

Opening lead—three of spades.

Here is a hand played in a rubber bridge game by Canada's Pabis Ticci, member of the Italian Blue Team that has dominated the bridge world for many years.

The bidding was sporting, to say the least, especially East's double of six hearts. Ordinarily, South would have only two spade tricks and go down one, but Pabis Ticci managed the affair exceptionally well and wound up making the slam.

West led the three of spades. Declarer realized that the lead was probably a singleton and accordingly insisted upon his avoid losing two spade tricks. Hence winning the trick with the ace, he played the king of trumps and ruffed a club. He then cashed the ace of diamonds and trumped a diamond, after which he ruffed the jack of clubs and trumped his last diamond. He next led the king of clubs but, instead of ruffing it, discarded the eight of spades. West won the club with the ace, but then had to lead a diamond or a club.

This permitted Pabis Ticci to ruff in dummy as he shed the last spade from his hand, and the outcome was that he made six hearts redoubled for a score of 1,220 points, instead of going down one for a minus of 400 points.

The lesser of bridge is worked to perfection and there was nothing the defenders could do to stop it from succeeding. In effect, Pabis Ticci lost a club trick he didn't have to lose — but got the trick back with compound interest.

Tomorrow: Test your play.

Some of the best things that are happening in fashion are happening in these four suits. New fluid looks: everything flows . . the toppers, the bag pants, naturally, softly. The pants are cuffed, deeply, elegantly, the way you like them. The focus is on sleeves: short and puffy, long and full, always feminine. Toppers in variations of the smock look: the scoop neck, the wrap look . . Some with back ties. And the colours . . . pastels of course. A. and C. in Yellow or Blue, B. and D. in Pink or Blue. Sizes. 7-15. es. 30.00

Youngsters in Blue Mountains of Jamaica gather around a mobile TV video cassette unit for their first glimpse of TV. Their exposure to TV through "Sesame Street" is part of an international research project designed to study the impact of television and its potential educational value among children who have never before seen television. The study was developed by Children's Television Workshop, creator and producer of Sesame Street, Harvard University and Jamaican officials.

Military Moslem Society Is Taking Shape in Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The assistant manager was serving breakfast to the only guest in the dining room at the lodge of a Uganda game park.

"We haven't had any visitors in a month. Perhaps you are the first swallow," he said hopefully.

A month after the expulsion of thousands of Asian businessmen, Ugandans are discovering that it takes more than one swallow to make an economic summer. President Idi Amin has banned the tourists who used to ride through Uganda's game-rich parks. Business everywhere is severely disrupted. Big battles lie ahead in Gen. Amin's war to nationalize the economy.

Taking shape, meanwhile, is a military Moslem society—virtually closed to Western foreigners. Government intervention exists in every sector of life far beyond the dreams of socialist President Milton Obote, whom Amin overthrew two years ago. Huge chunks of property are being nationalized quietly despite official denials. Price controls are on the way, and there's talk of a resettlement program to move thousands of jobless from towns to countryside.

Reliable sources in Uganda report:

—At least two cabinet ministers under Obote, several army officers and a former heavyweight boxing champion are believed to have been killed in recent weeks.

—Two of four cabinet ministers dismissed by Amin have apparently been jailed.

—A senior civil servant leaving Uganda on official business was whipped 32 times by soldiers at a border post because he had forgotten a travel document.

—Marauding soldiers "borrow" civilian wives for weeks at a time as Amin's undisciplined army runs rampant in outlying regions.

—Some soldiers, including Amin's own West Nile tribal allies, have been punished for balking at further terrorism.

On the main streets of most Uganda towns, shops are closed and few people are visible. Only a few former Asian shops have been acquired and reopened by Africans. Some have been looted.

Official pronouncements acknowledge profiteering. Commodities such as sugar are scarce because of breakdowns in production or distribution.

Some diplomats in Kampala predict collapse; but, as a well-educated Ugandan put it, "This country could go on for a long time on a basis of terror and subsistence-level living. Those who are hoping for collapse may be disappointed."

Of more concern to the small and largely Christian middle class is the increasing power in the hands of soldiers and Moslems—like Amin.

With Uganda short of administrators, Amin has named army officers—nearly all Moslems—to run the Jinja bus company and other enterprises abandoned by Asians.

Unofficial sources say Moslems are gradually moving into key civil service posts once held by Christians, among the Banganda, the largest and traditionally most influential of Ugandan tribes.

Uganda government machinery to redistribute former Asian properties is beginning to roll. An abandoned property custodian board has taken over major firms. Cabinet subcommittees are assigned to allocate shops to the most qualified applicants.

No one is supposed to obtain more than one business and Amin has cautioned cabinet ministers against corruption. He has declared that all former Asian-owned buildings still belong to the government temporarily and that tenants will pay rents to the government.

Toronto Police Officer Is Slain

TORONTO (CP) — Constable Leslie Maitland, 35, his revolver still buttoned in his holster, was gunned down Thursday by a robbery suspect on a dead-end Toronto street.

Constable Maitland, a six-year veteran of the Metropolitan Toronto police force, died after being shot twice in the chest from four feet away as he questioned a man believed to have stolen $1,800 from an east-end branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

At 2 p.m. Thursday, an armed man robbed the bank and escaped in a stolen car.

They followed the car to a dead-end street.

Constable Maitland and trainee McCullum got out of their cruiser and Constable Maitland walked across the street to speak to a man walking along the sidewalk. McCullum walked to the other side of the street seeking information.

Trainee McCullum said he heard his partner say "Give me the gun, give me the gun." Then he heard shots and turned to see Constable Maitland lying on the ground.

He ran to the cruiser and tried to radio for help. The man ran toward the cruiser, firing at the trainee.

McCullum leapt from the cruiser and rolled on the ground. The gunman climbed in and fired a shot at him through the closed window. McCullum received a gash on his ear trying to get out of the cruiser.

The gunman fled south along the street and McCullum returned to the cruiser and radioed for help.

A resident of the street heard him yelling: "Get an ambulance—get an ambulance right away."

The man ran south then circled around and headed north again and was arrested 45 minutes after the shooting by two constables in front of a funeral home, as he was trying to enter a taxi.

Inspector Maurice Richardson of the holdup squad said the robbery suspect appeared to be frustrated and scattered the money through the neighborhood.

Police found about $800 in a stairwell behind a store. More was found near a fruit shop and a jacket believed worn by the gunman during the holdup was found on the sidewalk on Danforth Avenue.

Police say they recovered a .38-calibre Smith and Wesson revolver in the snow near the shooting scene.

After the gunman had fled from the scene of the shooting, Joan Miller, a resident of the street, covered Constable Maitland with a blanket and towel.

"He was alive then but I think he died just after that," she said.

He leaves his wife Pauline, a three-year-old child and another aged 10 months. Mrs. Maitland is expecting their third child.

Two-man Patrols Ordered

TORONTO (CP) — Police Chief Harold Adamson has ordered the introduction of two-man cruiser patrols following the murder Thursday of a police constable.

Constable Leslie Maitland was shot dead after a bank robbery. He was on duty with an unarmed trainee.

Constable Maitland was the second Metropolitan Toronto policeman shot to death within a month. Constable James Lothian also was shot to death recently when he stopped a car on a downtown street. He was alone in his cruiser.

A spokesman for the force said the chief had the right to issued the order without reference to city council.

Heath and Nixon Conclude Summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain fly to Camp David today to conclude what has been described by both sides as the most exhaustive summit meeting of a United States president and an allied leader.

Nixon and Heath were to leave for the presidential retreat in the Maryland mountains after a lunch with British Ambassador Lord Cromer at his residence.

While spokesmen will not discuss the substance of the talks, they say topics covered since Heath's arrival Thursday have included major international issues with a focus on forthcoming monetary and trade talks.

Nixon and Heath will be joined at Camp David by Henry Kissinger, Nixon's foreign policy adviser, and by Sir Burke Trend, secretary to the British cabinet.

Sinking Ship

Like a duck stewing in its own juices, ice ship in front of Mendel Art Gallery in Saskatoon, Sask., appeared to be sinking in its own water during recent thaw. The ship was originally made by spraying water on a wire structure on a cold day. However the sudden warm spell reversed the process, quickly reducing the fantasy ship to its original skeleton. Police May Shoot First

TORONTO (CP) — The fatal shooting of a Toronto policeman Thursday, the second in less than a month, could lead to a touchy situation in future confrontations between police and suspects.

It could lead to policemen thinking about shooting first and asking questions later, Constable Sydney Brown, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association, warned Thursday night.

Earlier in the day, Constable Leslie Maitland, 36, a six-year veteran of the force, was gunned down by an armed-robbery suspect. Less than a month previous, Constable James Lothian, 28, was shot and killed after stopping a car that went through a red light.

"In both of these situations, neither officer had the flap off his holster. In Constable Lothian's case he didn't know what he was encountering. In Constable Maitland's case, he did but he was still trying the bank robber without the use of firearms."

Constable Brown said he suspects that policemen are not going to be "that way in the future. They're going to be ready, if they know the situation.

"Of course, the danger is that policemen may over-react and have their gun out when maybe it's not necessary."

Britons Soon Will Get Gifts Of Marijuana

LONDON (CP) — Keeping a watchful eye on Canadian developments, Britain's cannabis reform lobby has intensified its campaign for easier penalties against drug offenders.

Within the next several months, small parcels may start dropping through the letterboxes of lawmakers and other prominent people in the United Kingdom. Inside will be a small portion of marijuana.

With it will be a note pointing out that the police have been informed and that by possessing the drug, the recipient is committing an offence. He should dispose of it immediately, the note will say, and the best way to do that is to smoke it.

The drug mailing is the brainchild of the Cannabis Action Reform Organization, a loose grouping of civil liberties committees, and is designed to launch dramatically a revitalized attack on Britain's drug laws.

New York Is Urged To Gamble

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — After a six-month study, a group of researchers has recommended that New York state establish a $1.1-billion-dollar gambling empire offering off-track betting, "numbers" and sports betting—and perhaps 36-slot and 24-racing machines.

New York state's take, it says, could be about $260 million a year, but more importantly, in the eyes of the researchers, the state would be taking over organized crime's largest revenue base.

The study by researchers from the Hudson Institute in Westchester County was made public Thursday by the state gambling commission, which sponsored it as part of its investigation into the possibility of expanding legal gambling in the state.

The researchers recommended that the state legalize and take over the "numbers" game, a $600-million illegal racket.

"A well-designed numbers game," the study said, "returning about 75 per cent of the amount bet in winnings, could take three-quarters or more of the business away from existing illegal numbers operators."

Other forms of gambling, such as dog racing and jai-alai, could be tried in future years, the study said.

Canadian Missionary Is Prisoner in Laos

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — A Canadian missionary was among 10 prisoners of war in Laos whose names were released Thursday by North Vietnam.

Lloyd Dudley Oppel, 38, of Courtenay, B.C., was captured last October in the Laotian village of Kenglok. He had been working there with the Christian Missions in Many Lands as an assistant to the medical missionary.

A second missionary who was working with Oppel also was on the North Vietnamese list. He is Samuel Allen Mattix, 39, of Centralia, Wash., who was captured with Oppel in October, 1972.

The two men were taken away from the undefended Laotian village by Communist-led troops who entered it at dawn. Two American women missionaries were killed and nine others working for the mission narrowly escaped.

Military Commission Plans for Truce Teams

SAIGON (CP-AP) — The chief delegates of the Joint Military Commission (JMC) met today to arrange security for field teams of the International Commission of Controls and Supervision (ICCS) who are to police the Vietnam ceasefire.

JMC chief delegates of the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong met to take up an agenda which also includes arrangements for the completion of U.S. troop withdrawals and prisoner exchanges.

The ICCS observers from Canada, Poland, Hungary and Indonesia are already three days behind the schedule specified in the ceasefire agreement for setting up regional headquarters in Hue, Da Nang, Pleiku, Phan Thiet, Bien Hoa, My Tho and Can Tho.

Two men from each country on the commission flew to Hue, Da Nang and Pleiku to check accommodations, transportation and communications facilities.

Col. Keith MacGregor of the Canadian delegation told reporters at Pleiku that a full team of about 30 members should be there in two to four days.

There were other signs that the peacekeeping commissions are getting into action.

U.S. helicopters flew 49 more Viet Cong delegates and 4,000 pounds of their supplies from their district headquarters at Bien Hoa to Saigon to join the Joint Military Commission.

Sunday was reported to be the target for deployment of Communist representatives to the seven regional headquarters where the international supervisory teams will be based.

Projects Planned

Construction will begin on two major projects in Napanee, totalling $3 million in May. An 70-room Holiday Inn will be built on Highway 401 at the Palace Rd., on the existing Voyageur Restaurant site. Cost is estimated at $1 million, says William Stevenson of Williams G. Stevenson Projects Ltd. A shopping mall will be built on Bridge St. E. on the C. A. Milligan property north of Napanee Mayor Derenk, manager of Omasc Developments says the project will cost $2 million. Building $1 million but could go as high as $1.5 million if a Department store decides to join the group. A third project, construction of a shopping plaza opposite the Lennox and Addington County Hospital, has been abandoned by the developers.

Presentation Made

Education Minister Here

Thomas Wells, left, Ontario Minister of education was in Belleville last night to address the annual assembly of District 19 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation. With him is Centennial Secondary School teacher Mrs. Judy Carty and OSSTF president Daryl Hodgins of Toronto.

Money's Not Only Answer In Education, Minister Says

Ontario's education minister, Thomas Wells, last night gently chided teachers who deplore the school spending curbs.

Teachers who believe education has "gone to the devil because education is no longer undisputed champion, number one claimant to the public purse" display a "disappointing lack of perspective and understanding of the real role of our society."

Mr. Wells addressed his remarks to about 400 secondary school teachers gathered at Branch 99 Legion Hall in Belleville for the annual assembly of teachers from Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward and Hastings counties.

He underlined his government's determination to hold the line in educational spending increases. But he denied that spending ceilings have harmed school children.

Mr. Wells challenged the teachers to improve the standard of education through "innovation, efficient administration, the questioning of established and ritualized practices and the creative production of existing resources."

He repeated his stand later in response to questioning when he told a teacher that the spirit of the Hall - Dennis report of five years ago had been adopted in Ontario schools.

"It's possible to do those things with what dollars are available," he said.

The minister defended the credit system in high schools — a policy that allows students a free choice of subjects within four broad categories.

"Specifications we laid down were often stultifying good teachers and having a restrictifying effect on students," he said of previous programs.

The new system gives "creative teachers more room to move and at the same time to inject some new, contemporary subjects into the high schools that would be more relevant and interesting and useful to many students."

At the same time, Mr. Wells said a feeling is rising that some compulsory core subjects should be required in grades 9 and 10 to bridge the gap between elementary and secondary school.

Mr. Wells said that the credit system helps develop a sense of responsibility in the student, and hinders the tendency of some parents to abdicate all their responsibility to the schools.

The controversial Reville Report, which recommends professional control of school boards during salary negotiations, he referred to teachers." does not represent a government position or a government document." Mr. Wells assured the teachers.

The period of major change in education is almost at an end, he said and "what we face over the next few years will be a period of refinement."

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call Thursday.

Hastings Called 'Teachers' Mecca'

Teachers in other parts of Ontario now believe that Hastings county is "the Mecca of Ontario", the province's top teacher said last night.

He was Daryl Hodgins, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, in Belleville for the annual assembly of District 19 of OSSTF.

Mr. Hodgins said that the efforts of Hastings county board of education's chairman Mac Smith in recent negotiations and disputes had enhanced the reputation of this area in the eyes of teachers throughout the province.

"There would not have been a settlement" in two teacher-board disputes in the province without the work of Mac Smith," said Mr. Hodgins.

The Quinte area is becoming recognized for leadership among educationalists in the province, said Mr. Hodgins.

He referred to director of education Eric Runacres, "who sparked the family of schools concept" — the associated school groups now operative in the county.

Finally, Mr. Hodgins paid tribute to Wally Boyce, principal of Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc and a long-time member of the provincial executive of OSSTF.

"This area has been dubbed in provincial circles as Beverland," quipped Mr. Hodgins.

Watchful Eye on Front Street

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Every winter, Front Street merchants and apartment dwellers ask either a rhetorical question: Who will be next?

Their fear is the outgrowth of six years of experience. Some heard about it second-hand, others know it intimately, but all are aware of the common foe — fire.

Already this winter, fire has menaced the downtown centre. Last week, flames threatened to destroy a century-old apartment occupied by Fred Defoe. Had firemen arrived 15 minutes later, they may have been facing another major blaze, Fire Chief Leo Culhane said later.

The veiled prophecy was also borne out last year. In January, much of the Belvedere Hotel was burned and three months later, a Quinte institution, the Victoria Block, crumbled to the ground leaving a gap in the street front that has yet to be filled.

The reason for the destruction, in most Belleville residents know, is the street's age.

For this reason, Front Street has been designated the city's only high risk fire area. Most aging towns have at least one and Belleville is no exception.

But how does a city combat this threat?

Twice a year, Inspectors Reg Christopher and Paul Stephenson embark on the six-week task of snuffing out potential hazards before they erupt into flames.

Mr. Christopher, an inspector for nearly four years, says he has become well acquainted with trouble spots peculiar to Front Street's venerable structures.

"I know where the hidden places are and all the trap doors to basements."

During his tour, he concentrates on seeking out likely ignition points — wiring, furnaces, lights and storage rooms. In stores, he makes sure extinguishers are functioning and see that exits are clear.

"If you get smoke in an exit stairwell, then you've got a panic situation," he warned an assistant manager Wednesday.

Ideally, all stores would have overhead sprinkler systems that automatically spray gallons of water the instant temperatures exceed 135 degrees. But due to incompatible construction techniques and prohibitive costs, only two are equipped with the devices.

The Ontario Fire Marshal's office empowers Inspectors Christopher and Stephenson to enter a merchant's premises at any time, with or without warning. Usually there are no problems, but should the need arise, they could issue a Fire Marshal's order to close the doors or call on the Ontario Hydro inspection, with the building owner footing the bill.

"I don't think that would ever be necessary in this city," says Mr. Christopher. "We get 100 per cent cooperation from the stores.

"If we find anything, we put it in writing and send it to the store manager or owner recommending what steps to take. That way, we have a permanent record in case they say we never told them."

Improvements present another problem. The inspectors do not have a standing invitation to walk in, as they do in stores and inspections often depend on tenants' moods.

Fortunately, says Mr. Christopher, most recognize the danger and are quite willing to comply.

Evidence of the inspectors' visits is plainly visible to anyone passing through a Front Street building. Signs declaring No Smoking, issued by the Fire Chief, pop up wherever potential trouble looms.

The preventive business, however, requires more than signs. As Front Street inhabitants are well aware, fires begin under the most innocent circumstances.

They keep their fingers crossed that the next victims won't be them.

Ontario Minister Wins OMB Appeals

AMELIASBURGH — The Ontario Municipal Board upheld appeals by the Minister of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs against land severances approved earlier for Earl Orderdonk, RR1, Carrying Place, George Roblin, RR1, Belleville, Gower Flower, RR1, Belleville (2 applications), and wife by the township's committee of adjustment.

At the outset of hearing submissions in connection with five new applications, OMB vice-chairman H. E. Roberts handed down the decisions on the four applications he heard here on Nov. 30 last year.

Commenting on his rulings in favor of the minister, Mr. Roberts said "In none of the applications do the facts or arguments afford any reasonable justification for avoiding the prerequisite provisions of The Planning Act nor a reasonable conformity with the provisions of the Official Plan and implementing bylaw. The board will therefore allow all four appeals, set aside the respective committee decisions and dismiss the applications".

He prefaced the report on his decisions with the observations "This township, like many others adjacent to urban centres, presents a scenic waterfront character atmosphere which becomes the envy of executives and laborers desiring to escape the pressures of dense residential municipalities. In this case, one would assume, Belleville and Trenton among others. And in this instance, as is so often the case, the big question is whether services are adequate whether the economy of the municipality is balanced, and whether development should be permitted to proceed without approved plans of subdivision."

With particular reference to the applicants, Mr. Roberts pointed out "All failed to be in areas of urban development as proposed by the Official Plan, those areas in the township being the hamlets of Carrying Place, Albury, Redersville and Rossmore on the Bay of Quinte."

In all five cases heard by OMB vice-chairman Roberts and Alex H. Arvell yesterday, judgment was reserved. Those with applications for land severances being processed include Eleanor Weese, (2 lots, RR 1, Carrying Place; Marjorie Young, (1 lot) RR 3, Carrying Place; Lottie Williams estate (1 lot), RR1, Carrying Place; David Kelley (1 lot, Con. 2 Ameliasburg township 15 Lewis St., Belleville, and Mary Babbitt (2 lots) RR #1, Belleville.

Arctic Tour

The Arctic is a closed book to most Canadians. It covers a vast expanse of the national territory, yet for reasons that are fairly plain few of us get to see this great wilderness. Between the problems of getting there and travelling around should you make it, and the black flies, the Arctic is not everyone's cup of tea.

Yet it is time — beckoning to anyone with any sense of adventure. How many of us fall into this category? Not very many. We are too caught up with the 9 to 5 thing, or, if of tender years, with boy friends, girl friends and all that. But some lucky young people are going to have an opportunity to tour this fabled region. February 1 was the deadline for entries in the Canadian Sportsmen's Show essay contest. Last year's first contest for the 17 to 20 year-olds was a big success so it has been repeated.

The articles on the Arctic deal with such topics as the history, geography, ecology, demography or natural resources of the area and their exploitation.

Winners will be announced during the Sportsmen's Show March 16-25 and their Arctic tour will be by commercial jet and then a charter Twin Otter. It is good to see encouragement of young people in this way. It stimulates their interest and the prize is in keeping with the spirit of adventure which in a conformist, comfortable society, requires constant nurturing.

Male Chauvinism!

We should all be familiar by now, through contemporary usage, with the meaning of the word chauvinism — after Nicolas Chauvin, a soldier of Napoleon's notorious for his bellicose attachment to the lost imperial cause. Hence, a militant, unreasoning and boastful devotion to one's country or to one's race, sex, even contempt for the opposite sex.

One of the principal bastions of officially-condoned (that is, at the Government's not to mention social level) male chauvinism (the kind most in the news in these days of Women's Lib) is the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

While women announcers have long since shared the spotlight with men in countries as widely separated as the United Kingdom and New Zealand, there still soldiers on with its principally male image on television and radio.

It is incredible that the CBC exhibited hostility to women announcers on early morning newscasts. It did not last, for while there was some listener support others were not impressed and that was that.

It is incredible that the CBC holds out against women announcers. They have been part of the radio and television scene in other countries for many years and would surely enhance the set-up too. As of now there are only Madeline Gorbell of Weekend and the occasional woman news reporter, together with a solitary female who announces station breaks.

Dr. Barnard's Injuries

We note that an African driver of a pick-up truck has been acquitted on a charge of reckless or negligent driving arising from an accident last month in which heart transplant pioneer Dr. Christiaan Barnard and his wife were both injured.

It seems the Barnards were crossing a busy highway at the time and whatever the culpability of all concerned — the truck driver and the Barnards — we cannot help feeling sad about the whole affair. Dr. Barnard's injuries — including a couple of ribs and a collapsed lung — are such that he spent three weeks in hospital and reportedly has not yet resumed practice. His wife suffered a broken nose and other injuries and wears a neck brace.

The incident serves to focus attention on a common enough practice by pedestrians everywhere, even in the midst of heavy traffic. If it is not out and out jaywalking it is pretty close to it and we see it happening even in Belleville's comparatively minor traffic jams.

What happened to the Barnards in Capetown could happen to someone here. In their case it seems a particularly unfortunate mishap — a crippling of the energies and health of a celebrated man and his young wife, a blow to the professional usefulness of one who is known around the world. We hope though that their injuries will heal completely and that neither will be impaired in any way thereafter.

'They Just Can't Hack It'

The Awesome Frustrations of Latter-Day Egypt

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

How is Egypt, or more correctly, the United Arab Republic faring these days in the labyrinthian world of Arab politics

It's hard to make a fair assessment as President Sadat, the late General Nasser's harried successor, makes peace with once close Soviet allies and had to cope with disparate Palestinian guerrilla groups meeting in Cairo.

Add to these Egypt's economic woes, the feeling of national frustration that so much Egyptian territory is still in the hands of the Israeli army, uncertainty about the loyalty of the military, and Sadat's hands are more than full.

To begin, the concepts of the United Arab Republic is in trouble again. The initial try by the late president Nasser of a Syrian-Egyptian union going back to the late 1950s, ended in its dissolution. The present, even more unwieldy one of linking Syria again, but this time with revolutionary Libya, appears to be in even greater trouble.

The Libyans are more hostile to Israel than the Egyptians believing wholeheartedly in the historic "jihad" or Holy War, while the restless Syrians are saying they will break up the idea of a tri-partite state unless the oil-rich Libyans accept equal status.

Egypt in spite of Sadat's problems with Brezhnev and company, is Russia's largest overseas armory of sophisticated Soviet weapons. MIG 21 jet interceptors, the Sam-2 missile, (which raised havoc among the B-52 bombers over Haiphong-Hanoi), the newest small arms.

Growing Egyptian-Soviet resentment over this stockpile caused the major split between the two countries in 1971. The Russians have had a low opinion of the Egyptians as military professionals, a feeling thereby shared with the hated Israelis.

Soviet technicians before they were expelled in droves, permeated the Egyptian Armed Forces down to very junior levels, an insulation of their deep suspicion that even Egyptian officers in the field needed outside supervision.

The Egyptians responded coldly, and according to reports bitterly against such lack of faith—a view not in any way dimished by the recent shooting down of an Egyptian airliner by their own anti-aircraft units who thought the plane was an Israeli bomber!

As they say, the poor Egyptians just can't hack it. And with very few alternate sources for arms in their promise to fight Israel again some day, they have had to keep the peace with the suspicious Russians.

Meanwhile along the banks of the Nile, where waters are Egypt's livelihood, the economic supplies a national productivity are as grim as ever. Per capita income in Egypt is still below $100 per annum and not helped at all by the country's propensity for costly high-technology weapons.

Unlike the Arab staff officers whose oil makes them wealthy and more powerful internationally, Egypt has no economic weapons to yield among the Arab states.

What Sadat largely lives with is the lingering legacy of the dead Nasser—the man who survived crushing defeat in battle not once but twice, and remains one of the great Arab heroes of modern times.

Flying visits, some international frustrations well up from time to time among Sadat's lemonaded but "going-nowhere" generals and air force commanders. And rebellion against him has already taken place since he took over.

Alas poor Sadat. How many times and on a national leader been at one time, even in vitriolic and unhappy Egypt?

Just How Much Do Students Know These Days?

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

A couple of persons, things happened to me in the past few days.

In one, a friend, a community college teacher, told me about a student of his.

The young chap wasn't doing too well in learning how to write business letters. And he said repentfully: "What do I need this book for anyway, I'will have a secretary."

In the second I was going through a supermarket checkout counter and handed the 16-year-old in charge a vegetable for weighing.

Bewildered, she said: "What is this thing, anyway?"

It was a turnip.

Quite frankly I can't draw any direct implication from this except that it would seem to indicate perhaps we are not educating a bunch of spoiled brats.

Or rather than indicate that, it would tend to confirm an impression to be taken from other indications, most notably of all the various student power demonstrations that have spread across the province.

Behind these demonstrations, of course, there is an attitude.

The attitude that the world owes everybody an education.

This as we all know, or should know, is quite an unrealistic attitude.

The world today does without doubt owe, at least within its means, everybody accessibility to an education. That is, it should make it possible for everyone who wants it and can profit by it, to have an education up to his capacity.

But it doesn't owe anybody the opportunity for an education without some effort on their part. More and more people are beginning to believe also with some future obligation.

And the beliefs of students, those who are protesting, and too juvenile to see this, are as unrealistic as that other student who believes he is going to get a secretary in his first job.

These youths, of course, have been let down. They have not been properly prepared for their present years.

Some of this undoubtedly is the fault of society itself and of the home.

But somehow or other an education system which has produced a 16 year old who can't even identify a turnip must be quite a lot in the picture—and what a picture!

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 2, 1953

Following up the story in Saturday's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer regarding provincial grants received by the city, the tax rate in rural municipalities is also substantially reduced because of government subsidy received by the County of Hastings last year amounted to a total of $238,000, a big percentage of this being subsidy on county roads and bridges.

February 2, 1943

Familiar locale of the winter sporting fraternity of a decade ago, the Turnbull St. arena gives the impression today of having undergone a bombing raid. The entire centre portion of the roof of the rink collapsed as it was weighted down by an almost unprecedented depth of snow. The popular dancing spot for many young people in the Belleville district, Oak Lake Casino, has also felt the effects of the excessive weight of snow. It is reported that last week the entire roof collapsed onto the dancing floor.

Repair Work at School

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a concerned parent I would like to raise a question to the Hastings County Board of Education. Why do you wait until the children are in school to do a major repair job that is both inconvenient to the school system and dangerous to the 400 students?

Early in the fall bricks were replaced on the exterior of Queen Alexandra School, and now three weeks after the Christmas break you as at it again, replacing the windows. The old frames are being dropped to the pavement and children could get hurt.

It is my feeling that the board could be more specific in issuing contracts for these jobs, relative to the company involved that work must be done during a school break.

You can hardly expect the principal and his staff to do an effective job over the noise, confusion and the added worry for the safety of more than 400 students.

What will the board do if a child is seriously hurt? Let's do something constructive before someone suffers.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Great Swabian League, one of the last international police bodies of medieval Europe, was dissolved 439 years ago today — in 1534 — after 200 years or more or less continued existence. The League was formed by Ulm and 21 other states to defend against neighboring kingdoms of southern Germany. It was reconstituted in 1488 by Emperor Frederick III, in back war in Hungary, but it's era when European politics was reshaped by the new phenomenon of the Reformation.

1945—Sixteen hardrock miners died when a shaft cage fell more than 1,200 feet, after a cable broke at Frymaster Mines near Timmins, Ont.

1848—Mexico ended Texas, Arizona and California to the United States.

St. Agnes Alternatives

Built in 1860 by wealthy industrialist Billa Flint, St. Agnes Manor has stood on East Bridge Street for more than a century, its short square Tuscan watchtower overlooking the busy and orderly growth of the neighboring sections of the East Hill.

As early as 1878, Roberts's Historical Atlas of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties recognized its significance, devoting all entire page to an artist's view of the handsome Italianate villa. More recently (1961) when Belleville writer Lenny Williamson prepared a newspaper series on 24 important local buildings, St. Agnes Manor was spotlighted in the first article.

Now it would seem that the short Tuscan tower is in the way to a highrise, which building will dominate the entire section of Belleville's skyline.

Those of us who, although natives of other regions, have chosen to make Belleville our home are disturbed by the trend apparent in the city's sheer recent and proposed highrise development. There is a place for the highrise concept in Belleville, but why must these buildings be scattered indiscriminately through some of the most beautiful areas of our city. East Bridge Street is a lovely street; its trees and residences help give Belleville a charm and character that set it apart from the concrete and brick jungles of our larger cities.

Perhaps there is still time to prevent the destruction of another section of Bridge Street. Has the developer considered retaining the attractive front section of St. Agnes Manor and replacing the school portion at the rear with a medium - rise structure? Even at this late date restoration is not impossible. (Consider the dramatic improvement a few years ago in the stately residence at the Wadsworth corner of Victoria Avenue and Albert Sts.)

If complete restoration of the front section is not possible, has the developer considered restoring the facade and using it in conjunction with a medium-rise structure?

If even this limited restoration is not possible — and it would certainly give the new building a unique appearance — has the developer considered a medium-rise dwelling (perhaps terraced) on the heights that would be in keeping with the general character of this area?

During recent years, the council, planners and individual citizens of Belleville have taken many steps to beautify their city. Every Tree, Switch (and replacing the dump), and the other attractive entrance gaps and parkettes are evidence of this. As concerned citizens, let's do our part to keep Belleville beautiful and to encourage those who continue to live up to their obligations.

Electronic Frustration

Kingston Whig - Standard

This age is widely promoted as being the age of "instant communications" or the "electronic age," to use Marshal McLuhan's phrase. Both of us are all on the verge of being "locked in" to a huge intercommunications system which will, to the McLuhan quotation the world into the "global village" in which everybody, everywhere will know everything whatever happens everywhere else. Whether there is any particular advantage in it for the average citizen is not the point, of course. It will be an advantage for those who keep track, control and profit by receive payments — and snoop.

But we haven't quite reached this electronic miracle age yet. Not quite. In fact, in some ways we have regressed to the point where we are much worse off than they were a hundred years ago. We can no longer rely on our watches or timetables to function even to get us home from the office on time. We abide in the uncertainty and confusion of timetable, to the next city, province or state, by plane from coast to coast.

There is also another area of communications in which we are seemingly trapped in a frustrating web of confusion. At the time of the recent Throne Speech, our government promised that it would pay a lot of attention to telecommunications in Canada. But what about simply being able to mail a letter with reasonable expectation that it will arrive at its destination within a few days, limits? No Canadian Government wishes the job of Postmaster so has been able to ensure this.

We can do without an electronic "instant communications" Revolution, no. When it comes, or during the process, it may well be that surface mail will become obsolete. But in the meantime . . .

And, incidentally, what happened to the long-heralded glowing plans for a completely automated postal system? Remember — and the bit, expensive one which recommended that the Post Office become a Crown Corporation? But then, the Treasury Board still isn't learned how to stave off the yearly postal strikes; a way to deal with the postal workers that would not involve the kind which bedevil our already woeful mail service. So how can we expect any workable system which would be required to overhaul the whole system? Instead, we get talk of the coming electronic communications age. Who needs it?

Credit Abused

Brockville Recorder and Times

We are not concerned as ever but for many people the paying of the bills will go on and on. The Financial Post says that any other time of the year, is the time for a big increase in debt by many people. It is also a time of disaster for many people because of it.

Many communities, where the ratio of income to assets to debt it seems to incur, have set up credit counselling services to help families survive financial recklessness that leads to debt. Many communities, while Brockville hasn't a real problem in this regard we understand, is still available through the local credit bureau, or during the financial dredges salvage their lives, credit counselling can avoid a problems much larger than debt.

A Toronto and Ontario city reported counselling for 400 families with debts ranging up to $2,000 and averaging $1,200. They were dealing with hundreds of thousands of dollars, involving many families with only one breadwinner, with debts amounting to more than a year's salary.

It's too easy to blame seductive advertising, social pressures and easy credit, however. It is the individual who use credit with restraint while others go into financial hock people use credit wisely, the problem of families face a year's pay unless effective counter-measures are taken.

Most communities go to considerable expense to prevent problems before they happen as well as attempting to solve them afterward. Agencies are devoted to preventing crime, traffic and other accidents, disease and industrial injuries but not enough community effort is devoted to preventing the abuse of credit, which ultimately adds to the welfare rolls.

Principals Participate

Belleville and area principals were among the 400 delegates from across Ontario attending the annual conference of the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council, in Toronto last week. They were James Walker, Belleville Collegiate, William MacKay, Centennial Secondary School, and John S. Hayman, Quinte Secondary School. The three day conference ended Friday.

Potter to Speak

Quinte riding member of the provincial legislature and minister of health, Dr. R. T. Potter will be the keynote speaker at the annual meeting of Kingston General Hospital March 28. Now in a Toronto hospital recovering from a spinal fusion operation, Dr. Potter expects to be back in his Queen's Park office by late February.

Rustling Mystery

Cattle rustling in Camden East township just north of Napanee has reached serious proportions with the loss of 28 head of cattle valued at $10,000 between early summer and December. About 10 dairy farmers were affected. An undercover investigation carried on for four months by Ontario Provincial Police Constable Parth Galloway has turned up no clues as to the identity of the culprits. Constable Galloway says the rustling ceases in December with the onset of cold weather.

Two Weeks to Go

In Belleville Wednesday to speak to local mailmen, Roger Decarie, president of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, predicted it could take two weeks before a national postal contract is ratified. On the negotiating team, Mr. Decarie said printers would not have copies of the contract proposal ready before Monday. It would then take about four days to mail copies to postal workers across Canada, and more time to record the vote, he said.

Thrush Appointed

Hastings county board of education newest trustee, appointed to fill the position left vacant by the death of Everett Fairman, has been sworn in and appointed to two committees. Don Thrush will be a member of the business administration committee and the by-law and policy committee.

Church Older Than Anniversary

A 90th anniversary service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Sunday for a church that's older than its anniversary — Point Anne's St. John's Anglican church, says Mrs. Dorothy Hart, secretary of the church's Friendship Group. Believed built in 1875 for Belleville parishioners it was later taken apart and assembled on its present site.

City Asked to Move Fence

Winal Properties Ltd., owner of the Tracey Park subdivision west of Sidney Street, has accused the city of encroassing and of erecting a fence without permission.

The fence in question was erected by the city late last year as protection for children against falling into an open ditch east of the housing development.

However, a letter to city council from O'Flynn and O'Flynn, solicitors for Winal Properties, submits the fence in its present form and location is causing inconvenience to tenants who cannot use an asphalt walkway for easily gain entrance to their apartments. It also claims the fence was erected while negotiations were being carried out as to its necessity, height and location.

If the city feels there is a need for the fence, Winal Properties asks that consideration be given to moving it as far east as possible on the property, that the cost of moving the fence be borne by the city and that the city be responsible for is maintenance.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell in a report to council, stated the fence was erected parallel to city and hydro easements and at most could be moved only 1.5 feet. He said the walkway referred to was shown on a site plan to be one foot west of the hydro easement and this would put the east edge of the walkway two feet clear of the fence.

However, the engineer claimed the fence had not been constructed in a straight line as shown on the site plan and part of it meanders to the east and was placed wholly on the easement. This portion of the walk was partially cut off by the fence.

Alderman Joe Cox, following a personal inspection, said he couldn't see why council or anyone else would have erected the fence in its present location.

"It seems the fence was just stuck up" he said, noting that in one spot residents had just 14 inches of asphalt walk to walk on.

He said the ends of the fence are left open still allowing children access to the ditch; that the fence makes residents feel they are cooped in and that it is a paper-catcher.

Newspaper route management can be a boy's first step forward

A BOY with a newspaper route truly is in business for himself. With an assist from our people who are experienced in working with boys.

He buys his newspapers from us and retails them to you.

He sells, he delivers, and he collects. Like any good businessman, he keeps records (you can see how valuable this is in applying the lessons he learns in the classroom in a practical way).

And like any good businessman, he shows a profit. A boy with a newspaper route earns money that can help him build a sizable bank account of his own. Useful for the things he wants. Even for a college education.

Not only does a newspaper route sharpen a young boy's business sense (which will be helpful to him throughout life no matter what career he chooses). It also offers him some important extras — the ability to deal with people, and the lessons of promptness, of care, of self-reliance, and of good manners.

In these ways, a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life.

If your son wants to handle a route, put him in touch with us. One may be available for him in your neighborhood. It will be an unusual opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: The coin-boy asking her if she wished to didence of this thing always irritated me. The day I read the letter in your column from the woman who was torn as a guy to the ladies' room of a large office building, guess what happened to me? I went into the men's room of our office building (I'm a female, dame! So help me, Ann Landers, she was coming out as I opened the door. Honest.

An attractive, middle-aged woman greeted me with complete composure and said, "I'm new here and couldn't find the ladies' room. I hope you don't mind."

There are no locks on the 'comfort stations' in our office building, Ann. Do you think perhaps there ought to be? Or is this where Women's Lib is leading us? —Not-Pleased And Still Laughing

Dear Not: I vote for locks—big ones—to solve the problem. Remember that the guy in the first letter was a guest of his girlfriend, and he had a key! I would not be surprised if one day "Her" and "Hers" become "Theirs." While I'm not recommending it, I just fence your self. Buddy—everything points to that direction.

Dear Ann Landers: I couldn't believe my eyes when I read your answer to the 17-year-old girl who wanted you to help her "find the words" to tell her mother she and her boyfriend had decided she should go on The Pill. The girl said she was afraid her mother would insist that she stop seeing the young man, which she declared "I would flatly refuse to do."

Instead of giving her a good, solid, reasonable lecture on morality, Ann Landers, you told her to see a doctor because maybe she should be using another type of contraception! Then you compounded th esin by asking her if she wished to tell her mother in the first place. You seemed to feel she wanted to shelter her mother to the last issue a "Declaration of Independence."

Have you taken leave of your senses? Tell me the whole thing was a bad dream. I can't believe Ann Landers would give such immoral advice.—State Of Shock

Dear State: Your eyes did not deceive you. You read right and I meant what I said. Period.

Please re-read her letter carefully and you will realize the girl had her mother's and a poor relationship. Her announcement that she is on "The Pill" would have been inhibited by a terrible hassle with everyone arguing over a problem issues resolved.

Dear Ann Landers: I am afraid the darling girl next door, age 20, is heading for a shotgun wedding. She is dating a widower with grown children. The poor dear is starry-eyed. Her head is in the clouds. Will I be able to get her to see reason? I'm not warn her that in 10 or 15 years she will be a lusty middle-aged woman and her husband will be a lumbago-ridden old man—? Love My Neighbor

Dear Lover: Did she ask for your opinion? If not, keep quiet. Each of us knows of an exception to this rule. Maybe in 10 or 15 years he will still be hasty and she'll have lumbago.

Birth Rates Decreasing; Baby Business Down!

So the slogan for Gerber Products Co. used to go. But that was back before the birth rates fell off and the baby-related industries started noticing there weren't so many little mouths to feed and bottoms to diaper.

Now Gerber's slogan is just: "Babies are our business." But so are insurance, cans, dehumidifiers and lithography.

"If our product was definitely dependent on the number of babies born, we would be in a pinch," says a Gerber spokesman. "But we began diversifying 15 years ago."

The slogan was changed two years ago.

The declining birth rate and fertility rate have lowered sales in some of the baby-related industries, but increased them in others.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Can a wife be a 'complete' person?

ABSOLUTELY—perhaps more so if she works as hard at making her marriage succeed as she would if she also pursued a professional career. Working with her husband to produce a meaningful marriage can be as fulfilling a life venture as being a doctor, scientist, professor or business woman, if marriage at times seems to have its limitations, so do research projects or doctorate pursuits that lead up blind alleys.

Do fans enjoy changes in sports?

MOST buffs do like modifications that speed up games and quicken the action. Some fans, however, are not so eager to see the changes that have come about in all the major sports. Many fans hold onto their interest in sports because the rules, the dimensions of the playing fields, the number of players, etc., are the only evidence of stability that they feel they can cling to in an ever-changing world.

YES—but raising him is very challenging and rewarding. The final result is a human being who can cope with himself and his environment. In the first place, the parents must have a determination what caused their child to become sensitive (usually, the trouble is with the parents themselves). Once the problem is recognized, the parents will learn how to deal with it and perhaps even use it to advantage in helping them bring their sensitive child to full maturity.

Campaign Launched Against Wife-beating

LONDON (CP — "Dames are simple." Humphrey Bogart is supposed to have said in one of his tough-guy movie roles.

The remark, lately revived for purposes of a movie publicity campaign in London, is not the kind of classic cinematic line likely to amuse Mrs. Erin Pizzey, founder of a reform campaign now beginning to make an impact here.

Mrs. Pizzey, 33, is out to expose the evils of wife-beating, which she considers all too common and particularly brutal feature of life in modern Britain.

Her campaign is based in the West London district of Chiswick, where its first achievement has been to provide shelter for women on the run from domestically belligerent husbands.

Already the organization called Chiswick Women's Aid has won a reputation for forthright action.

On one occasion the group threatened to demonstrate outside a violent husband's work place, with signs that would proclaim his wife-beating habits to fellow-workers. The wife has not been beaten since.

"I'm not talking about the odd slap," said a school teacher who turned up at the aid centre with her young daughter. "My husband batters me with anything that comes to hand, and sometimes he has tried to strangle me."

The Chiswick movement, Mrs. Pizzey's brainchild, first turned an old dwelling into an advice bureau and eventually into a refuge for frightened or battered wives seeking an escape from brutality at home.

Chiswick Women's Aid also is preparing the groundwork for a conciliation service, for complete legislative protection for women against marital violence.

Mrs. Pizzey wants the government to set up a commission on wife beating. The law as it now stands makes no distinction between assault on a wife and an attack against any one else, she maintains.

A woman may take her husband to court, with fairly good results. But, said Mrs. Pizzey, the aggrieved wife can't expect her husband to wait three months for a case to be heard.

"Who is going to take out a summons while living in the same house with a violent man?" Mrs. Pizzey said.

On the day the centre opened, a woman turned up and a bit shattered—even though she had to contend herself with a mattress on the floor.

Mrs. Pizzey and her helpers question what they term a reluctance on the part of authority to intervene in domestic matters.

"The police, not the wife, should enforce the law and prosecute," said one of the Chiswick group. In the case of a wife-beater, "they should take that man from the house and lock him up and keep him there until the court case."

The woman's aid campaigner added: "If the man has no history of violence, he gets back from work."

But there ought to be a High Court injunction to stop him molesting the family."

Mrs. Pizzey divides wife-beaters into two categories — the mentally-ill and the sadist.

"A cup of tea set down wrongly in front of him will start him off."

A great disadvantage for some trying to expose the full extent of wife-beating in modern society is the fact that many of the victims shrink from talking openly about their domestic crises.

"I would rather have died than say my husband beat me," confessed one 35-year-old mother finally obliged to look for help.

Yet many of those who go to the house for accommodation ultimately return home.

Some are referred to legal experts for further advice or to hear about their rights—occasionally for the first time—from volunteers at the centre.

They also receive a key to the house on Belmont Terrace so that they can come and go as they please.

"These women need a breathing space, time to recover and think things out," said Mrs. Pizzey.

Her Poetry in Motion Is Merry Mary's Notion

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I write some nonsense rhymes and some serious poems. With loads of time now that my family is grown and away I find myself turning to this delightful pastime.

So far I've sent rhyming thank - you notes, get - well rhymes, to friends and relatives and like to keep me busy. Naturally, I'd like to have constructive criticism and maybe get some published.—A thrill to see one's name in print! — Merry Mary.

Dear Merry: What's that you tried writing your own verse-greetings on Christmas or birthday cards?

You can get a handbook about this; and membership in a writers' workshop might just be available where you are. Ask your library about this.

The little rhymes you sent me showed humor and a good sense of rhythm. No reason why you shouldn't send out a few to editors. And good luck!

Dear Doris: I went out with this guy last year, and am still hung up on him. Sure, he's been out with a lot of other guys, but lately I've been thinking of him and wanting him back.

I love your column and just wondered if you have any pointers or books I could send for. I am willing to pay. —A Million Thanks.

Dear Million: You can't really read it in a book, because a boy is not a loaf of bread to find bread you can read a recipe. But by study and thought you can learn how to work at getting along with people, contentment your own reason for being good company on a date.

Maybe you sent your boy

Dyce Will Roll At Maple Leaf Track Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Byron Dyce of Jamaica, who won the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union indoor mile championship last year in New York, will defend his title tonight when an international field faces the starter's gun for the 1,000 yards at the Toronto Maple Leaf Indoor Games.

Polish Olympic star, Andrzej Kupcyk, is expected to force the pace. He placed seventh in the final of the 1,500 metres at the Olympic Games in Munich and was the 1,000-yard event last Friday at the Millrose Games in New York.

Also challenging will be Josef Plachy of Czechoslovakia, the reigning U.S. national champion. He finished second to Dyce in last year's meet here.

Among others in the race will be Brian McElroy of Villanova University and Juris Lusins of the U.S. Marine Corps.

The highlight of the meet will fall on the pole-vaulting competition in which Steve Smith may have his record wiped out.

"This guy is unbelievable," says Ken Twigg, Maple Leaf Games director, speaking of Smith, who broke his own world indoor record at the Millrose Games with a vault of 18 feet ½ inch.

"Just after setting the record in New York, he said he would be shooting for 18 feet 6 inches in Toronto," Twigg said. "And he has his opposition completely psyched out at this point."

Opposing Smith will be Kjell Isaksson of Sweden, Dave Roberts of Texas, Blair Lewis of the United States and Canadians Bruce Simpson and Bob Ratlin of Toronto.

Isaksson held the world indoor record at 17 feet 10½ inches until Smith broke it two weeks ago and went on to a mark over 18 feet.

Claude Ferrange of Montreal and Bruce McLaren of London, Ont., also rate considerable attention. Ferrarge won the high jump at the Millrose Games and McLaren was first in the two-mile race.

Keino's 1968 Olympic gold medallist.

A rematch between Henry Szordykowski of Poland and Bob Wheeler of Duke University is in the offing for the mile race. They finished the event a' two Millrose Games in a shoving duel, Wheeler placed first, but was later disqualified. Mike Benoit of Kenya and Mart Ii quori of New York are also entered in the mile.

Miss Toussaint holds the Canadian open record of 1:31.6, and Miss Walsh owns the Canadian native indoor record of 1:32.9.

Ottawa's Glenda Reiser, Christa-Merion of West Germany and Nancy Shaver of the United States are top entries in he women's 1,000 yard race.

Parade Best Yet

More than twenty area groups and organizations were represented in what carnival committee chairman, Glenn Wardell, called the "best torchlight parade we've ever had".

The half-mile long parade was encouraged on the way by the Belleville Military brass and drumbeat were provided by the sharply turned-out Sea Cadet band of RCSCC Quinte.

Canadian Forces Base Trenton Pipe Band, led by Drum Major Jim Kennedy echoed Front Street with the marching skirl of pipes. Riding the Belleville Lions Club float was the club's own 12-piece Circus Band.

The Belleville Federation of Musicians also made another contribution to Winter Carnival last night with the provision of another band, the Maitre D.

Between the bands were the variety of floats, clowns and torch-bearers that make a carnival parade come true. "It was great to see all the kids out," said Glenn Wardell. "They were there all bundled up."

In some places along Front St. people stood two and three deep to watch the parade's passing.

The parade was organized by the Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Belleville Fish and Game Club.

Doctor Appeals Suspension

TORONTO —A Roslin doctor has billed the Ontario Health Insurance Plan for treating 316 patients for less than five minutes each.

Dr. Andrew Hoesin of Roslin, 15 miles north of here, billed OHIP for treating the 316 patients from 5 a.m. Oct. 2, 1970, to 1 a.m. Oct. 3.

Mr. Justice Thomas Callon reserved judgment Thursday in the Supreme Court of Ontario on an appeal by Dr. Hoesin of the three-month suspension given by the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The college imposed the suspension, claiming Dr. Hoesin couldn't have adequately treated so many persons in such a short time.

Douglas Laidlaw, Dr. Hoesin's lawyer, told the court that the college has never charged, however, that Dr. Hoesin did not see the patients.

Tax Evasion Charged

Six charges under the income tax act have been laid against Sun Lake resident, president and manager Mr. Chael Tom after failing to declare $2,282 in earnings between July 1, 1970, and Dec. 31, 1972.

The information was laid before provincial court here yesterday by chief inspector for the Belleville income tax office, A.J. Madden.

Individual charges cover false statements pertaining to Mr. Tom's personal returns for those years plus a "global charge" covering the entire amount.

The case will be heard in provincial court, March 16, with Judge J. L. Clendenning presiding.

Lying Down on the Job

Ald. Arnold Orr Heads Quinte Planning Board

Belleville alderman Arnold Orr last night was elected chairman of the Quinte Planning Board, after serving as its chairman since its beginnings more than a year ago.

Jack Bush, charter chairman of the board, stood for re-election but was defeated when Ald. Orr's name was drawn from a hat, followed a seven-seven vote of the members.

Mr. Bush stepped down from political life during the last municipal election, relinquishing his position as reeve of Sidney Township. He remains on the board for two more years as a special appointment.

Ald. Orr, who sits on the board as a representative of Belleville, said a priority for the new year was the settlement of the trio of municipalities that left the board after voicing grievances of getting no return on their membership dollar.

"We realize the problem with Brighton, Brighton Town ship and Murray Township, — a little patience is the best medicine here," he said.

Ald. Orr said it was a concern of the board whether any special concessions be made to the three to induce them back into the board, but added "I hope we can get them back ourselves before someone else tells us what to do.

Discussing the tenure of office, the new chairman said he would not stand for more than two next year. The bylaws of the board allow a chairman to hold office for no more than two years.

Ald. Orr said he would rather see the position of chairman circulated about the members from year to year. The principle was suggested by a motion from Belleville councillor Paul Russell. "Personally, I think it is an excellent idea," said Ald. Orr.

Aside from his city hall obligations, Ald. Orr is also the chairman of Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee. This committee is responsible for recommending official plan changes in the city.

"If there is any feeling that prejudice might be involved in me sitting as chairman of both senior and junior boards, I will quit the SPAC," he said.

Ald. Orr, in his forecasts for the coming year, said on the first year we were feeling our way along. Now we can get down to some real serious planning."

Store Window Hit-run Victim

TRENTON — Someone took out the front window at Trenton Cleaners, 33 Ontario St., about 6:30 a.m. today.

Town police report a driver may have lost control of his car, skidding into the store front. In any event, after causing $250 damage, the driver didn't stay around to tell about it.

Rare Birds, Indeed

These strange birds didn't come equipped with feathers. Instead, the giant "Awes," for that is all they said, are part of CFB Trenton's first annual winter carnival, scheduled to get under way Saturday. There to welcome the strange birds are, left, base commander Col. William Paisley, carnival parade marshal Brig.-Gen. "Bert" Allison, centre, and right, Major John MacDougias, carnival co-ordinator. Council Carpet Singed

That new $1,800 rug on the city council chamber floor is already due for some repair.

Wednesday evening a city council advisory planning committee in the council chambers to discuss rezoning for the area east of Elizabeth Crescent was attended by a number of interested citizens who apparently indulged in smoking without the benefit of ash trays.

Thursday morning when Arthur Trites, city hall maintenance superintendent came to work he found that dropped cigarette butts had burned four or five holes in the new rug. The holes were approximately three-quarters of an inch in diameter.

There were no ash trays in the immediate area but lap trays were available.

"I suppose we can have the rug repaired, but it is amazing how careless some people can be," commented Mr. Trites.

Area Farmers To Be Surveyed

The impact of urban-type residences in rural areas will be the subject of a survey to be taken by the Quinte Planning Board at the end of this month.

A random sampling of Sidney and Thurlow Townships' 225 full-time farmers will be interviewed as to how they perceive the coming of suburbia near or abutting their property and what safeguards should be placed on such developments.

Rich Danziger, a senior planner with the QPB, explained that the farmers see this sort of development as a problem, we will be ready to listen and perhaps implement some of their suggestions to create building controls".

He said there would be four or five interviewers which would develop into about a half hour conversation. If the farmer has two hours of things to say we will listen to all his suggestions.

Results of the survey will provide input for the rural non - farm, residential study and be incorporated into the conceptual study for the Quinte Planning area.

The Banners Are Up

BATAWA — Redistribution of federal ridings throughout Ontario has residents in the Port Hope - Oshawa - Cobourg area actively opposed, but local Liberal Association members are merely interested in the outcome.

George Cunningham, defeated candidate in the last federal election Wednesday urged Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal Association members meeting here to forward their views on the matter to representatives. He spoke of a forthcoming public hearing in Belleville as a good place for spokesmen to air these views.

"I can see no major objection to the redistribution he said adding "redrawing will provide better fighting grounds for both ridings."

Mr. Cunningham said he didn't think the proposed public opposition would prompt change. He believes the only local municipality that might be hurt by the split is Sidney Township.

Explaining further, he said Trenton residents tend to be more oriented to Northumberland - Durham while most Prince Edward County residents deal with Belleville and Hastings County.

Under the redistribution, the present Hastings County riding, running from the Bay of Quinte 125 miles north to the township of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure would be split east - westerly by a line running slightly south of Highway 7.

The result of the land split would designate the southern portion of Hastings County to be included in Prince Edward-Hastings riding. The remainder to be included in Frontenac - Lennox and Addington. The Hastings - stripped Sidney Township, plus Tronton, Frankford, Campbellford and municipalities almost reached to Port Hope and zigzagging north to Seymour Township, will be included in a new Northumberland riding.

Woman Killed in Collision

TRENTON — Icy road conditions and a tractor trailer-car accident on the Wooler Road at 8 a.m. today claimed the life of a young Trenton area woman.

Dead is Mrs. Judith Johnson, 21, of RR4, Trenton.

Raiders Cool Alberta Ace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Raiders managed to cool off Alberta's Jim Harrison Thursday night.

Harrison, who set a pro scoring record Tuesday picking up 10 points in an 11-3 romp over the Raiders, was held to two goals and one assist Thursday.

But the Oilers still prevailed 8-5, over New York on the strength of defenceman Bob Wall's key play as the Raiders took the play from Alberta late in the contest at Edmonton.

With New York mounting its first serious offence of the two-game series in the Western Canada city, Wall trapped a clearing Raider shot and drifted a 55-footer behind startled goaltender Ron Donnelly at 19:34 of the third period.

Elsewhere, New England Whalers regained first place in the Eastern Division by edging Houston Aeros 5-4 in Hartford while Cleveland Crusaders fell one point off the pace by skidding to a 3-2 overtime tie with Ottawa Nationals. Quebec Les Nordiques stayed off a late Minnesota rally for a 4-2 win over the Fighting Saints.

Ross Perkins also scored twice before 2,984 Oiler fans in a loosely-played game that produced fighting major for Toronto York's Ted Scharf and Ken Baird of Alberta in the second period.

Al Hamilton, Brian Carlin and Bernie Blanchette also connected for Alberta against the injury-riddled Raiders whose only news Thursday was bad.

Terry Caisse, centre who disclosed defenceman Kent Douglas had a scratch on one eyeball said probably will be lost for the season, and confirmed centre Mike Laughton with torn knee ligaments, sidelining him for an undetermined period.

Despite the depleted lineup, New York made a game of it in the first period and held leads of 3-1 and 3-2 before Alberta opened up a 5-3 lead.

Defencemen Brad Selwood and Jim Dorey and Terry Caffery notched the other New England goals. Murray Hall, Larry Lund, Duno McCallum and Brian McDonald tallied for Houston.

Gary Jarrett earned the tie for Cleveland with less than two minutes in regulation time and 1,973 Crusader fans watched their favorites and the Nats play through a scoreless overtime.

Michel Archambeault, Alain Caron and Reynald Leclerc gave Nordiques a 3-0 lead after two periods. But the Fighting Saints, playing in front of 7,316 Quebec City fans, closed the gap on goals by Terry Ryan and Billy Klatt.

Wrong Method Right Results

The Bruins' coach juggled his lines, ridiculed three of his back defencemen after the National Hockey League all-star game at New York and left the general impression he was fed up with the defending Stanley Cup champions.

The team's leadership — defenceman Bobby Orr and centre Phil Esposito—had been flagging and so were Boston's hopes of overtaking East Division-leading Montreal Canadiens.

Orr, Esposito and the rest of the Bruins responded to the negative approach Thursday night—albeit at the expense of the hapless Toronto Maple Leafs—to register a 5-3 victory.

It marked only the third time in eight starts for Boston and with Montreal's 3-2 tie at St. Louis against the Blues left the Bruins still 10 points behind the Canadiens and only behind New York Rangers, idle Thursday night.

Esposito ended a scoring slump with three goals that lifted Boston to a 4-1 lead after two periods and Orr, answering critics who said a knee operation had slowed him, showed flashes of his former self while scoring once and setting up two other goals.

Elsewhere the scores were: Philadelphia Flyers 5, Vancouver Canucks 4; Atlanta Flames 3, Minnesota North Stars 1; Buffalo Sabres 4, Los Angeles Kings 3 and Chicago Black Hawks 5, New York Islanders 3.

Orr and Esposito combined to set up a goal by Wayne Cashman who beat veteran Toronto goaltender Jacques Plante with the game only 31 seconds old.

It marked the third time this year and 19th time in his career Esposito has scored three goals in a game and increased his goal-scoring total to 33.

The two maligned aces ducked reporters later in the Boston dressing room, but Johnson vowed up that it was "the Esposito line and one for the defencemen turned it around for me."

"We played a lot better than we've been, and we're pleased to improve before Saturday's game here with New York. We didn't play a lot better, wanting to hit."

Asked about persisting rumors that Orr's left knee, which was operated on during playing early in the year, had deteriorated to the point it would require another operation, Johnson replied: "Nobody has told me anything about it."

He said that Parry Sound, Ont., native "hasn't been playing really that long. It's just that he has not been as spectacular as everyone has come to expect."

Frank Mahovlich's 26th goal started Montreal's comeback from a 2-0 deficit and the Big M finished the job with the 1974-75 season.

Schmidt began in the Boston organization as a player in 1936 and has, been with the club's Hershey Bears farm club general manager and lately as an administrative assistant in charge of field operations.

In the interview, Schmidt said he talked with Bruins president Weston Adams Jr. early Thursday about the Bruins and the Bruins but expected no decision would be made until early next week.

He is seeking a four-year contract and has a number of options, which, in the main, would make him chief scout of the organization, the newspaper said.

Schmidt, 55 next month, was moved upstairs with the Bruins when Harry Sinden hired to run the hockey operation closely after he coached from Canada to victory over Russia in 1972.

He told the newspaper the Washington job was "one that came up" in speculative conversations about where he might move since the Caps hired the Bruins.

"I'll say only this," Schmidt told the newspaper. "If the Bruins and I don't reach agreement this week, I'll then be permission to negotiate with another organization."

Schmidt May Leave Boston

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Free Press says Milt Schmidt will decide "early next week" whether he will continue to work for the National Hockey League Boston Bruins or seek employment elsewhere.

Schmidt, speaking to the newspaper from Boston in a telephone interview Thursday, also said "there is no trade in the present time" to reports he will leave the Bruins to become general manager of the new Washington franchise which becomes operational in the 1974-75 season.

Schmidt began in the Boston organization as a player in 1936 and has, been with the club's Hershey Bears farm club general manager and lately as an administrative assistant in charge of field operations.

Kenya Demands Apology

NAIROBI (AP — Kenya's top sports authority Thursday night demanded an unqualified apology from the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) of the United States and accused it of displaying a lack of etiquette in regard to the current North American tour by Kenya runner Kip Keino.

Jaroslav Rotich, president of the Kenya Amateur Athletic Association (AAA), said he is taking the matter up with the International Amateur Athletic Federation (I.A.F.), the top amateur athletic body in the world.

The Kenyans' anger stems from a cable sent to President Kenyatta signed by Dennis Cassell, executive director of (AAU), saying the 11-9 status of Keino and asking Kenyatta whether he (Keino is still an amateur).

Cassell's telegram said the AAU feared Keino would sign a professional contract in the U.S. while he was at the invitation of the AAU to participate in the track season from January 26 to February 23.

Cassell had urged Kenyatta to delay Keino's tour.

Keino, however, flew to the U.S. in mid-January to begin the All-Africa Games in Lagos.

Rotich said Thursday Cassell had suggested the Kenya AAA was not fully in the picture regarding Keini's visit to the U.S.

Rotich said:

"It is very regrettable the AAU saw fit to involve President Kenyatta in such a matter. This courtesy has shown a lack of etiquette in regard to the code of procedure concerning athletics."

Rotich said Keino has not informed the AAA of his decision on whether to turn pro and there was no reason to assume Keino had changed his amateur status.

Rotich said Kenya viewed "this deliberate disregard of protocol and etiquette slinging with great concern," and it was left with no alternative but to summon the matter with the IAAF.

Keino, in Toronto to compete at the Toronto Maple Leaf Indoor Games Friday, said the first he'd heard of the cablegram was when told by a newspaper man.

He hadn't decided on a pro offer and his plane ticket to the U.S. had been provided by the Kenyan athletic association.

Coach Dan Lietaer accepted the Quinte Hockey League Champions Trophy from Mrs. Rollins, wife of trophy donor Doug Rollins, in front of the Teachers' bench at Thursday night's first best of seven playoff games with Reid's Dairy. The Teachers' coach accepted the newly instituted trophy which replaced the Paul Mercier Trophy. Belvedere Hotel gained permanent possession of the Mercier award by winning it three times in succession.

Central Pulls Out

Quinte League Loses Entry

Coach Bill Carson indicated that Central would not play the remainder of their playoff schedule following a 5-1 loss to Belvedere last night. It was the opening game of what was scheduled to be a best of seven series.

"We took a vote after the game and decided to pull out. I'm going to get in touch with the guys again today, but it looks as though we're not going to be playing."

Rough play during the contest and an altercation with a Belvedere supporter afterwards, were the reasons given for the Taximen discontinuing their association with the Quinte league.

"It's just not worth it. This is supposed to be a working man's league. Ted Schwager was cut just above his eye with a high stick and there was a two minute penalty called. What if he'd lost the eye?", said Carson who had his-false teeth broken in the post-game fracas.

Macklam had scored two goals and assisted on a third to pace the Hotelmen's victory. His first marker came after only 19 seconds of play.

Frank Pinder, Bill Goodfellow and Larry Marshall scored the other Belvedere tallies with Marshall and Goodfellow splitting four assists.

Dwight Rathwell spoiled goalie Claude Carr's shutout when he tallied with just under 12 minutes remaining to play in the game.

In the other semi - final opener, the Teachers' Doug Jodoin scored with 30 seconds left in play to give the Tupperman winners a 4-3 verdict over Reid's Dairy.

It was Jodoin's second goal of the game as he had scored in the second period to give the Teachers a 3-2 lead before Bob Woodlie evened the match with just under three minutes remaining in the game.

Pat Assedatine and Al Mott had the winners' other markers, while Phil Meeks drew three assists. Paul Paddon and Bruce Racicot had two helpers each.

For Reids it was Denny Tompkins and Dan Garlick clicking for the other goals while Reid Mallory picked up two assists.

Knapton Scoots Towards Top

Belleville's "Scooter" has scored into the top scoring ranks of the OHA Senior A hockey league.

Ken Knapton, whose speedy skating and hustling style have been a bright spot for the seventh place Quintes, is tied for ninth place in the league scoring. The former Oakville Oak has tallied 16

Since coming to Belleville, Knapton has scored nine goals and assisted on 11 in 16 games. His 20-point total includes a four goal performance in the Quintes' 7-6 overtime loss to Kingston.

Belleville's other representative in the scoring elite is centre George Godson, whose 46 points leaves him deadlocked for fifth with Hank Nemenis of Orillia. The point trail leader Rod Bloomfield by only four points as the Owen Sound forward has managed 26 goals and 24 assists to date.

Both of the Belleville players will be looking to up their scoring total when they meet the Oak Hornets in a 9 p.m. game tonight at the Memorial Arena.

Trojan Girls Keep Winning

The Trenton girls' junior volleyball team came into Thursday night's Bay of Quinte play at Nicholson with two match wins under their belts, but returned to their Trenton home base with one loss and a win.

Trenton won their third match of the year with a solid performance against the Nicholson team, but had trouble against Moira. Moira juniors won both of their matches to earn their fourth victory this year. The Trojans have defeated BCI, and Bayside in league play and commanded a victory over Centennial in exhibition play.

In the first game of the Trenton - Moira match, the Trojans commanded a quick 7-0 lead, but the Trentonians rallied in more within two points of the Belleville school and then move ahead 14-8.

The Moira girls, however, upset the Trenton lead and won the match by the required two points 16-14. Having knocked the wind out of the Trentonian sails, the Trojans second victory came in a more lopsided 15-9 scoring final.

Barbara Smith, Moira's coach, said after their two match victories that her team "looked keen". Her instructions of "let's watch our positions" were followed by her team as they did not leave any open court space. The team's double "V" formation covered the corners well enough to cause the coach to originate sideline comments such as "this is the way it should be."

Miss Smith, however, said after her teams two matches that she wasn't "worried about Nicholson, as more about Trenton and they seemed to handle Trenton much more easily than they did Nicholson."

Nicholson won the first game of the best of three match with the Moira volleyball team.

Miss Smith said that volleyball "is one of the most nerve wracking games, to basketball. If you miss, you might be able to pick it up again further down the court. But in volleyball, you only have one chance. The server has one serve, the receiver only has one chance to hit the ball well. There are no second opportunities."

Moira's Irwin Tries for Save

Moira's Kim Irwin tried, but failed to put this ball over the net in Thursday night's Bay of Quinte junior basketball game against the Trenton Tigers. Both teams were undefeated going into last night's game, and the Moira Trojans remained just that, sweeping the best-of-three set by 16-14 and 15-9 scores.

Defence Pains Goalie

BOB MOORE

Bobcats goalie Bob Moore was in the hot seat when the Whitby Tiremen stick in their Metro Junior "B" game Thursday night but did not affect his performance in the Belleville net.

The lack of defence was more of a problem to Moore as his team absorbed a 5-4 loss to the ninth place Tiremen.

"Moore would make a couple of saves," said coach Mac Hunter, "and then, Whitby would bang and bang and bang away until they got a goal. The defence just let them shoot. Nobody would hit anybody."

With Wally Dainard out of the Bobcats lineup, the Cats only iced three defencemen against the "fired up" Whitby team according to Hunter. After the game Hunter regretted not having burly Bevin Clark in as "he might have gone out there and cleaned four or five heads off." The defence did not stand up to the Whitby forwards as all five goals came from scrambles in front of the Bobcats' net.

Hunter was distressed at the "multitude of sins" that his team committed in their first of three games this week. Though Belleville has three games in hand over fourth place Oshawa, the Bobcats fall to see how important the games are according to coach Hunter.

Mike Watt opened the scoring for the Cats in the first period, and was followed up by Mark Gaines and Andy Ricketts. Ricketts goal came on a power play while Rick Meagher's third period tally came with six Belleville attackers on the ice in the last minute of play.

Montreal Probe Is Told Organized Crime Vast

MONTREAL (CP) — Organized crime is a vast and permanent operation with a web of control extending into many activities, a provincial inquiry was told Thursday.

Rene Daigneault, director of the Montreal Urban Community police force, said the strength of the organization is that it is hierarchical, monopolistic and has considerable funds at its disposal.

The major areas controlled by organized crime include gambling, loan-sharking, protection, legitimate businesses, narcotics and pornography.

Mr. Daigneault said gambling is the major source of funds for organized crime. Each time citizens took part in some "mild" gambling, they are unknowingly financing such things as costly importation and traffic of narcotics.

The inquiry, which opened Thursday, was ordered last June by Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette to study organized crime in the province.

Special search and seizure powers without the need of a warrant were provided the special police force created by the Quebec Provincial Police and Montreal police—conducting the inquiry.

The first specific area of crime to be studied is gambling, and detailed testimony on this is to begin Tuesday.

Mr. Daigneault said gambling profits are so high that organized elements inevitably moved in on independent operators and forced them to join the organization.

The second big source of funds is money-lending at exhorbitant interest rates.

When payments on the loan are not made, the consequences are often disastrous. The borrower may be asked to participate in crimes to pay his debt or he may pay it with his life.

Mr. Daigneault said there are more than 1,000 commercial enterprises in Montreal paying the organized crime organization so they may do their business without problems.

Commercial enterprises paying protection money, weekly or annually, include pizzerias, bars, parking lot establishments and discotheques.

Mr. Daigneault said investigators had found that, while victims might complain, they refused to testify in a formal complaint and testify.

Get 3 Months

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Two Peterborough men pleaded guilty Thursday to charges arising from a fight here Wednesday with police outside provincial court.

Donald West, 25, and Brian Johnston, 20, were sentenced to three months in jail for assaulting police officers and 30 days for creating a disturbance.

A fight began when police arrested a man for refusing from talking with an unidentified Peterborough woman he was led from the court.

MITCHELL SHARP

Truce Body May Leave In 60 Days

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Thursday Canada will do everything in its power to make the Vietnam ceasefire work but no one should assume that Canada-observer will up and leave upon the initial 60-day limit set by the government.

"In some important aspects the international observer arrangements are improving," Mr. Sharp warned as the Commons debated a resolution giving formal approval to Canada's participation in the four-nation peacekeeping force to police the ceasefire that went into effect Jan. 28.

"I will not prejudge the government's decision."

Both the Conservative and New Democratic parties served notice, however, that they will not allow the government to act without parliamentary approval after the 60 days expire.

Claude Wagner, Conservative external affairs critic, moved that a resolution be introduced saying that any decision to remain beyond 60 days must be endorsed by the House.

NDP Leader David Lewis not only backed the Conservative position but added a sub-amendment that would force the government to seek permission from the House to bring the 60-day limit.

Neither the resolution not the sub-amendment will be put to the debate placed the government on notice that, in a minority parliament, the opposition may force the final decision to be made in Parliament.

Defence Minister James Richardson announced Thursday that the second half of Canada's 200 member observer group will leave for Vietnam Feb. 18. The first half left immediately after the ceasefire agreement was signed Jan. 27.

Mr. Richardson, echoing Mr. Sharp, said Canada anticipates plans for a speedy evacuation if the ceasefire breaks down and Canadian lives become endangered.

Regional Plans Unchanged

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Mayor Des Newman said Thursday that Whitby officials were told Wednesday night that the province still expects to implement regional government in this area by next Jan. 1.

Mr. Newman said Donald Irvine, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Grenville-Dundas, told Whitby officials the Jan. 1 target date still is in effect.

Mr. Irvine is parliamentary assistant to John White, treasurer and minister of economics and intergovernmental affairs.

Mr. Newman said he thought the provincial government was making an honest effort, however, to be sensitive to the needs of involved municipalities.

A number of municipalities, especially in the Port Hope-Cobourg area, have asked postponement of regional government be delayed to allow time for more study.

CP News Roundup Socreds' Meeting Is Lively

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Social Credit leadership convention that skeptics had termed a wake, started off more like an old-fashioned country wedding Thursday.

Balloting for the new leader isn't until Saturday afternoon but the hoopla was broken out when the doors first opened. Hundreds of delegates decked out in brightly-colored hats, ribbons, buttons and badges already are engaged in the psychological warfare to win votes for their favorite candidate.

About 1,000 delegates and alternates lined the services of the downtown Chateau Lacombe Thursday night, and the chaos was expected to heighten today. Convention organizers have estimated that 2,100 to 2,400 persons will attend the three-day affair.

Retiring leader Harry Strom, 58, the only Alberta Social Credit premier to win his party into an election defeat, made his final major address to delegates Thursday night as the government was defeated by the Conservatives in 1971, only 2½ years after it was elected for a second Premier Ernest Manning.

He said it would have been easy for him to resign after the party was knocked from power, but that would have been selfish and irresponsible.

"I chose then to consider the need of our party to maintain some measure of stability . . . in a transition period."

"Now, he said, the party had completed the transition from a "responsible government to a responsible opposition."

Douglas Palmer, 57, said he plans to update the midway and reduce noise along it, the first step in a 5-to-10 year master plan of renovation.

Youth Missing

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police are continuing to search for a 16-year-old area youth reported missing since early last Friday.

He is 5 feet, 10 inches tall, 160 pounds.

Mike Rich

The bulk of the estate is made up of bonds, stocks and other securities.

Lower Interest Rates Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has tantalized middle-income home buyers with the possibility of lower mortgage interest rates.

But, whether this hope materializes depended on answers to a number of questions raised by mortgage legislation formally introduced in the Commons Thursday.

The main aim of the bill is to make investment in mortgages more attractive, Ron Basford minister of urban affairs, said outside the Commons. Hopefully, this would prompt private investors to pump more money into mortgages and lower mortgage rates.

The bill, of course, must get parliamentary approval before this view can be tested. After that, what happens in mortgages and interest rates lies in the hands of the investment world.

Mr. Basford said he wants the investment community to take over a larger share of mortgage lending for middle-income home purchases. The government wants to devote more money to housing for low-income people and the elderly.

Mr. Basford has said frequently that the government wants to play down its old role as big provider of low-interest building homes for middle-income people.

He told reporters Thursday that 85 per cent of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation budget is spent on low-income urban and rural activity. Four years ago, only 15 per cent was devoted to this group.

The mortgage financing bill would stimulate private investment in mortgages through the Federal Mortgage Exchange Corp.—a Crown corporation—and special mortgage investment companies.

The mortgage exchange corporation would be launched with $100 million in capital and power to borrow $300 million.

It would buy and sell mortgages and make mortgage loans to private mortgage organizations for housing purposes. This could take the worry out of selling mortgages, which sometimes restrains investors from entering this market, Mr. Basford explained in a ground paper on the bill.

The mortgage investment companies would operate like mutual funds except they would have mostly mortgages and real estate investments, rather than stocks.

The background paper said corporations would be closely regulated to ensure that at least three-tenth of the assets of a mortgage investment company is in real estate mortgages and bonds.

This is less than an original proposal of 85 per cent in real estate, mortgage loans, government bonds and cash contained in a bill that died with the last session of Parliament.

Aside from that change and several minor technical alterations, the two bills are much alike.

Unemployment Benefit Total Limit Removed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons manpower committee Thursday rode over Conservative objections Thursday to approve a bill to remove an $8,000-a-year limit on advances to the unemployment insurance fund.

It now goes back to the Commons for third reading.

Conservative members of the committee had opposed the bill the charge that the move will improved an improper use of Governor-General's warrants to obtain money.

They also maintained that a ceiling should be maintained, to force the government to remain within the spending limits and to give impetus to the solution of unemployment problems.

But Conservative proposals were ruled out of order.

Justice Minister Otto Lang insisted that the government said the bill is urgent because the government will have no funds to pay unemployment insurance claimants after Feb. 7.

Unexpectedly large payments to the unemployed in 1972 led the government to ask for $500 million ceiling set out in legislation.

Calculations upon which the ceiling was based had indicated that $700 million would be the limit required for 1972. Another $200 million was added for insurance.

But the estimate of expenditure was wrong, Mr. Lang said, so the government "flipped" the proposal from the removal of the ceiling.

Farmers Face Income Crisis

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet was told Thursday that farmers in the province's northern area last year which now last year was one of the best ever for farmers "still is not rosy."

which represents more than 53,000 farm people, said that despite record prices which now last year was one of the best ever for farmers "still is not rosy."

Adverse weather last year destroyed some crops, particularly feed which was left in short supply. Livestock producers faced increased costs of more than 100 per cent in the price of soybean meal alone.

Last year, the province's Ontario farmer received about $4,800 for his interest on investment, family labor and management. The average construction worker earned about $10,000, without overtime.

The brief said in 1972 Ontario farmers had 31 per cent of Canada's farm goods income, but only 26.6 per cent of the net income.

The number of farms was last decreasing.

Farmers could be helped, the cabinet was told, by a comprehensive long-term, land-use plan. Farmers wanted a role in determining the future use of land.

Between 1961 and 1966, the brief said, Ontario farm land went out of production at a rate of three acres an hour. This accelerated to 45 acres an hour between 1966 and 1971. Most of these acres will never be ploughed again, the brief said.

The federation warned that if arable land continues to be sacrificed to non-farm use, "food prices will be forced to increase."

It said farmers should be compensated for the property value due to planning and zoning.

Among other recommendations in the 28-page brief was one for a land development board to investigate odor and pollution problems caused by farmers.

To emphasize the farmer's income plight, the brief said the farm worker last year earned an average $1.78 an hour compared with $3.49 for a factory worker and $4.72 for a construction worker.

The brief said the government should share the costs of a new on-the-farm training program of farm workers.

Farmers Not Living Off Fat of Land

TORONTO (CP) — Farmers say they aren't living high off the hog despite the increasing prices for pork, beef, vegetables and fruits.

The middlemen and the retailers say they aren't getting rich.

The consumer's bowls overfool prices but he's not convinced that a House of Commons committee is getting organized enough to pin down responsibilities.

During 1972, retail food prices in Canada went up about 6.5 per cent, more than in any other Western nation except France.

Poor weather can be blamed for part of it. It cut crops of fruit, vegetables and animal feed practically everywhere in those things are grown for Canadian consumption.

Rich tastes are blamed by some as part of the cause of increased demand for certain goods—and hence higher prices.

G. H. Dickson, executive vice-president of Canada Packers Ltd., said consumers are eating three or four per cent more meat every year. He says they buy it because they like it and can afford it.

Mrs. Van Luyk protests on behalf of the farmers in Ontario Federation of Women's Institutes' Growers Association:

"What's puzzling farmers is that we read about people getting 30-per-cent wage increases and they don't expect the price of vegetables to go up a little, but farmers like us live, like the rest of the population."

The federal department of agriculture blamed the processors, packagers and distributors, in a bulletin issued last September. It said they accounted for 44 per cent of the $2.8 billion increase in farm-food prices since 1961, compared with 36 per cent for farmers.

Self-service Centre Opens for Job-hunters

OTTAWA (CP) — The first of a series of "self-service" job centres was opened here Thursday.

The centre will list job vacancies daily through a computer-printout and applicants will be able to go to manpower centres, select a job and discuss it with departmental counsellors, Manpower Minister Robert Andras said.

The lists are to include all categories of work from professional to general labor.

Government plans are to extend the system across Canada in the next 18 months to two years. The next centre will be opened in Hamilton later this month.

Oil Firms Sold After Control Of Gas Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) told the Commons Thursday that some and perhaps all, major oil companies are attempting to change the terms of contracts with retail gasoline outlet dealers in Canada.

"As a result, control of consumer prices in gasoline will shift from the retailer to the supplier," he said.

He attempted to have the matter investigated by the Commons justice and legal affairs committee but failed to get the unanimous consent of committee members necessary for his motion.

Aboriginal Rights Raised

FLORA MacDONALD

OTTAWA (CP) — An attempt to have the Commons Indian affairs and northern development committee study the question of aboriginal rights failed in the Commons Thursday.

Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and The Islands) said the issue should be considered by the committee in light of a Supreme Court of Canada decision Wednesday. Some MPs declined to give necessary unanimous consent.

Miss MacDonald said the court decision, 4 to 3 against recognizing land claims of Nishga Indians in northern British Columbia, was actually "a deadlock." The decisive vote was cast on a technicality that did not involve the central question of the Indian claims.

Cuts Off Hand

BETHEL, Alaska (Reuter) — An Eskimo who saved his life by amputating his own hand and walking three miles in subzero weather to a doctor is recovering satisfactorily, Thomas Hofseth of Napamute was hunting on his snowmobile when his left hand was caught in the machine's treads: Hofseth then took his axe, amputated his own hand, applied a tourniquet and walked three miles in 20-degrees-below-zero Fahrenheit temperatures for help.

Suspended

TORONTO (CP) — CP Rail indefinitely suspended 30 to 40 workers Thursday who booked off "sick," Wednesday to protest working in cold weather.

A company spokesman said the suspensions would probably be short, lasting perhaps only a day or two.

To Your Good Health

Poodle or Beagle, Allergy Prevails

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am an eight-year-old girl and want to get a dog. My family are all allergic to dogs—all but me. I have heard that poodles do not cause allergy, but I want to get a beagle. Which breed would be better? Is there any dog that doesn't cause allergy? — M.F.

I'm sorry, sweetie, but if people are allergic to dogs, it isn't their fault. They just are. With a whole family of allergic people, the chances are that you will find that you are allergic to something or other. Maybe not dogs—but something.

Allergists frankly have a lot of trouble persuading people that if they are allergic to dogs, the thing to do is to get rid of dogs. Still, lots of some people are allergic to various types of animals.

For a given person, one dog may not cause as much trouble as another breed, but when one is allergic to dogs, there isn't much point in trying to find out what causes less trouble.

For the sake of your family, which is to lose some weight if you'll just have to do without a dog. That's only fair to them.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you explain what a hiatal hernia is? Does heavy lifting endanger one? Is it major or minor surgery? What are the risks of delaying surgery a few months? — O.C.

The esophagus or gullet has to pass through your diaphragm to reach your stomach. Well, if the gap in the diaphragm through which it passes, is larger than it needs to be, that's a hiatal hernia.

Thus the upper part of the stomach, where it joins the gullet, can push slightly upward through the gap. This can be painful, especially since stomach acids then can escape into the esophagus, where they don't belong.

The net result is a sensation very much like the pain of a peptic ulcer—and, indeed, ulceration can occur.

The usual surgical repair, Marion Williams and the Post Graduate Medical School of London tell me, is a "hiatoplasty." It is not a major operation, and it is seldom that a doctor recommends surgery without trying the other methods for a few months, or longer.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Test Your Dummy Play

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the six of hearts and you win South's jack with the queen. How would you play the hand?

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Spades and North leads the queen of hearts. How would you play the hand?

1. Played correctly, the contract is certain to come home. You cash the ace of spades to the king, play the queen of clubs and finesse. If the queen loses to the king, North cannot return a spade or a heart without handing you a vital trick, while if he returns a diamond or a club, you simply force out the ace of diamonds to acquire nine tricks.

If the queen of clubs won at trick three, shift your attention to diamonds, forcing out the ace, and again you are sure of nine tricks.

If you try any other method of play, you may make the contract, but cannot be certain of it. Only the suggested method is sure to bring home the bacon.

2. The heart and play a low diamond from dummy! If South has the queen he will almost surely play it, and this will give you three diamond tricks instead of the two you started with. The defense will probably cash two hearts and shift to a club.

After the ace, cash the A K of trumps and jack of diamonds, cross to dummy with a trump and discard two clubs on the A K of diamonds. This method of play succeeds if the trumps are divided 3-2.

If south follows low on the low diamond play from dummy at trick two, you should assume he does not have the queen, accordingly play the nine, not the jack. If South has the ten, the nine will force the queen and again you will be on firm ground.

The contract is not certain with any method of play, but the one suggested offers by far the best chance of a tenth trick.

Tomorrow: Rare avis.

Police Commission Role Is Described

PICTON — Society has been overlooked by the government through lack of providing "so many advantages" for the accused, according to Picton Police Commission chairman Jesse Mason.

Mr. Mason asked Picton Rotarians what penalty is imposed when a lawbreaker is granted time to pay his fine. Such leniency is evidence of a "credit society".

"They don't want people in jail today," he observed.

Mr. Mason, who has been a member of the Picton police commission since 1969, referred to the establishment of the Ontario commission in growing concern regarding the existence of "an active national underworld" in the province. The commission as organized to play a watchdog role over law observance and enforcement in Ontario, striving to eliminate crime and criminals.

The Ontario Police Commission is completely independent of any department of government and is entirely free from external influence. Through its efforts Ontario is properly policed and police forces are made adequate to perform their duties, adequate pertains to standards of recruitment, training and modernizing of equipment as well as to strength in numbers.

The Ontario Police Commission operates a police college at Aylmer where four members of the Picton police department, Sgt. Scott Hetle, Donald Gregg, Ronald Bolton and Guy Brown have completed training courses.

The Picton police department has operated under the direction of a board of commissioners since 1947 when members were late Picton mayor Lance Nethery, QC, County Court Judge W. S. Lane and Crown Attorney Gordon Walmsley.

The three - member police commission active today includes Murray J. McFarland, Jesse Mason and county court Judge W. S. Lane. Monthly meetings are held as well as numerous special meetings and crime prevention rather than conviction is stressed.

Mr. Mason said all municipalities with populations of 15,000 or more must have a board of commissioners. Communities with fewer than 15,000 residents may establish a committee of council instead.

The Picton police commissioner said he feels a board of commissioners can be more effective than a committee of council, since there is a continuity of the force and of long-range planning with the former. Under a committee of council, members may change frequently and often police committee minutes are not maintained as board records are.

He said board discussions do not include personalities, but he remarked that a council committee mig ht allow them to surface.

Mr. Mason mentioned that complaints from citizens regarding the police force are better handled by a board as are negotiations for salaries and working conditions w i th the local police association. In matters such as these t h e board may be more objective.

The efficiency of the Picton police department was praised by Mr. Mason, who said that 644 charges were laid in 1972 and 201 arrests made. Also 740 summonses to appear were issued and 165 accidents attended. A total of 1,222 motor vehicles was checked and 3,000 persons checked.

The force uses modern-day equipment including a cruiser with a mobile two-way radio, and a-walkie talkie transitor with a three-mile radius.

Mr. Mason said a task force has been appointed recently to examine the state of policing in Ontario and to analyze present and future needs. Recommendations will be made to the solicitor general. This is the first review of police administration in 10 years.

The commissioner spoke of public relations with the town police force and considered town council's decision to hire a meter maid a promotional step.

He commented that there has been "considerable news coverage" recently suggesting that judges should not be appointed to police commissions. Mr. Mason said he felt this would be a step backward in the case of county court judges especially. He noted that the legal training of a county court judge fits him well for a commissioner's job and he is "a distinct asset."

Mr. Mason added that provincial court judges who are in weekly contact with police officers possibly could not receive appointments.

Olympic Coins Okayed

No Deficit For Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has approved special coins and stamps for the 1976 Montreal Olympics which, organizers hope, will bring in $260 million to help pay for the event.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced the decision Friday after being given assurances he sought that Ottawa will not be asked to cover any deficit incurred by the games. He said the guarantees came from Quebec Premier Bourassa, Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and C. C. R. Rousseau, Games president.

Meanwhile, the government is studying another request for a national lottery to help pay the estimated $310 million cost of the games.

Mr. Trudeau indicated to reporters he is not enthusiastic about the lottery issue coming before Parliament. He would prefer to see the Quebec government approach individual provinces for lotteries within their borders.

While the prime minister stuck with his commitment that there would be no direct federal financing for the games, he told the Commons that there could be substantial help through existing federal programs.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 dwelling units would be required, and Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. contributions could vary from $28 million to $54 million. But "it is quite reasonable to consider" that this could be handled by normal allocations for public housing — which average about $198 million annually in Quebec.

The Games would also cost the federal treasury about $29 million for providing security personnel, including RCMP, armed forces and customs and immigration.

Should the CBC become the "host broadcaster" this would cost that corporation about $25 million.

Export Plan Boon for Big?

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's export development program was criticized Friday in the Commons as a boon to corporate giants and a bust for small businessmen.

At issue was a bill to boost the ceiling on loans by the Export Development Corp. (EDC) to $1.5 billion from the current level of $500 million.

The legislation, up for second reading and referred to the House finance committee, was introduced Jan. 12 by Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie. He told the House Friday the bill is a positive initiative to create employment by granting the government more leeway to support export sales.

He said $700 million has already been committed in EDC loans, opening 'an estimated 100,000 new jobs in Canadian industry. These commitments reflect that another $500 million will be needed in 1973.

The loans are made to foreign companies that promise to return for commitments to buy Canadian goods and services.

Paul Hellyer (NDP — Trinity) was the first to challenge the effectiveness of the bill.

He said most of the $700 million now authorized has gone to American-owned companies in Canada at a time when the United States is moving toward protectionist in its own trade relationships.

This placed Canada in the vulnerable position of opening its ears to companies that may wind up leaving the country.

He suggested creation of a small-business branch within the EDC to put more emphasis on the export potential offered by small Canadian-owned companies.

Similar Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) said the EDC has virtually ignored small business and placed the bulk of its funds at the disposal of 13 major corporations.

He recommended that Mr.

Rome Rocked

ROME (AP) — A mild earthquake jolted sections of Rome early today. Thousands of persons, awakened by the rumbling, fled their homes in panic, but there were no reports of injuries or damage. The quake was registered in the Casilino section of Rome, a densely populated workers' district, and a number of small towns on the southern edge of the capital. The shocks hit shortly before 2 a.m., but thousands of residents remained on the streets until 4 a.m. fearing there would be more.

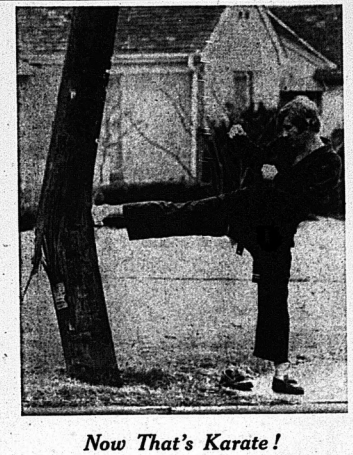
QUEBEC (CP) — Two of Quebec's three top labor leaders entered Orsainville prison near here Friday night to serve the balance of their one-year contempt-of-court sentences imposed last spring following an 11-day public service strike. The other is to join them Monday. Marcel Pepin and Yvon Charbonneau met briefly at a meeting of 200 executive officers of the Quebec Teachers Corp. before turning themselves in to the authorities. Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor QFL, was on vacation in Florida earlier this week when the Supreme Court of Canada rejected a plea that the three a review of their appeal of the citations.

Fruit Threatened

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Radical changes in temperature have Niagara Peninsula fruit grow worried. They fear severe damage to their orchards. January saw the thermometer run from the high 50s to just above zero. The warm days produced bud swelling on the vast orchards of peach, cherry, pear and plum trees, which were then hit by the cold snap. Last year, a similar situation in the Essex-Kent area all but wiped out the 1972 fruit crop.

Hooker Held Up

TORONTO (CP) — Xaviera Hollander, New York author of the best-selling book, "The Happy Hooker, appeared in court Friday and had her deportation hearing put over until next Thursday so she could get a lawyer. Miss Hollander, 30-year-old Dutch citizen whose real name is Xaviera De Vries, was detained for four hours Thursday by immigration officers at Toronto International Airport as she arrived from Mexico. She posted a $500 bond. Miss Hollander, whose book recounts her life as a New York brothel keeper, and is scheduled to be made into a movie, was told by immigration officials that her two convictions in New York for loitering with intent to commit prostitution were crimes of moral turpitude, prohibiting her from entering Canada under the Immigration Act. She was also told that because she had only $150 with her she lacked sufficient funds to maintain herself in Canada.



Seek Protestant Ban

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Separate school boards in Ontario are being asked to support a resolution calling for a ban on non-Roman Catholic board members. The resolution was believed prompted by the election of Rev. Peter Hatzer of London, Ont., an Anglican, to the London and Middlesex board last November.

Tower Now Tombstone

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet Friday moved speedily to approve file site of a new police communications tower after the present system was described as "totally inadequate" in the wake of the killing Thursday of Constable Leslie Maitland, 25, who was shot while chasing a bank robber.

The announcement by Solicitor-General John Yarenho followed Police Chief Harold Adamson's complaints that the search for the suspected killer was almost defeated by the outmoded, two-channel police communications network.

Charged with the murder of the Scottish-born policeman is Brian Vaillancourt, 21, of Montreal, who is also charged with attempted murder, robbery and car theft.

Vaillancourt was remanded in custody to Feb. 9 when he appeared in court Friday.

Constable Sydney Brown, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association, said police were more likely now to draw their guns.

But he denied earlier published reports quoting him as saying police would be more likely to shoot first and ask questions later. "No Canadian policeman would ever think like that," he said.

Constable Maitland's pregnant widow Pauline, who has two sons aged three and 18 months said her husband so hated killing he "would even put flies out of the house rather than kill them."

Chief Adamson has been trying for three years to get permission to put a radio tower on a park which would give police a 16-channel radio system. The proposal has been opposed by ratepayer groups and many Metropolitan Toronto politicians.

Toronto Mayor David Crombie, formerly an opponent of the new tower, said before moving his council into an emergency debate Friday that he was prepared now to tell Premier William Davis he is with/swing his opposition.

Thursday, Chief Adamson said police were "very fortunate" to make an arrest because of deficiencies in the two channel system.

An unarmed police cadet, Brian McCallum, 21, was on patrol with Constable Maitland when a man with a pistol robbed an east-end branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce of about $1,800.

Policeman's Widow Against Death Penalty

TORONTO (CP) — The widow of a policeman who was gunned down on a shabby Toronto street Thursday recalled Friday how her husband used to visit the Hospital For Sick Children every Christmas, taking candies and toys for youngsters.

Mrs. Maitland, 29, is expecting another baby in July. She has two sons, John, 3, who started nursery school on the day his father was shot, and David, 18 months.

On capital punishment Mrs. Maitland shook her head and said: "What good does it do? I don't think anybody ever intends to kill anybody else."

Went for Swim

The unidentified driver of this car took it for a swim last night, but it wasn't intentional. Trenton's Sidney Street railway underpass flooded with the heavy downpour and overloaded sewer channels. Before he knew it, the driver was stalled in water up to his windows. Here, Ed McCarthy opens car door, water flowing everywhere, minutes after he waded in to the icy flood to attach a chain from a waiting tow truck.

EAGLE GROVE, Iowa (AP) — Mayor Kenneth Brasman said early today that rescuers have confirmed the deaths of 13 persons in an explosion and fire that destroyed three businesses here Friday night.

The mayor said fire officials believe four other persons may also have been killed.

Police estimated that eight to 10 patrons and about five employees were in the Chatterbox restaurant when it and six adjoining business were tripped apart by the explosion. They said there were also an unknown number of persons in apartments above the restaurant.

Rescuers were unable to start sifting through the debris until several hours after the explosion and ensuing blaze.

Fire officials said they believed the explosion was caused by natural gas.

Supervisors Start Monday

SAIGON (CP) — The International force set up to supervise the Vietnam ceasefire, scheduled in Saigon for a week because of lack of co-operation with the past military forces, will be in the field and operating Monday morning.

The announcement came today from Michel Gauvin of Canada following a meeting of the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS).

Gauvin said a meeting at the top level has been arranged with the Joint Military Commission (JMC), the four signers of the Paris agreement, for Sunday.

It will be the first high-level encounter with the military, although delegations from the ICCS have been in contact with the Americans, the South and North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates.

"The decision has been taken to have the teams in place in place Monday morning," said Gauvin.

He also announced that reconnaissance teams will go out Sunday to the four regional headquarters not already visited—Hue, Phan Thiet, Bien Hoa, My Tho and Can Tho.

Similar teams from the ICCS went out Friday to the three other regional headquarters sites, at Da Nang, Pleiku and Hue, to check living quarters, communications and security in the areas.

A Canadian spokesman said conditions were found to be satisfactory.

'Erk. I Mean AWC!'

At CFB Trenton these days, there are AWC-birds all over the place. And the Alberta float that appeared in today's Astra Winter Carnival parade, had one of the biggest. A shift of the belt by Ed Buchanan, Edmonton native, a twist of his string - controlled head by John Govenlock, Whitecourt native and a wax of the moustache by Mrs. Cathie Hackett, originally from Edmonton, but now of Alta., and the Calgary-style 12-inch paper mache bird was ready for action.

Car Ahoy!

Thawing weather and steady rain Friday left this legacy for motorists and pedestrians on North Park Street. Water up to a foot deep deterred a number of motorists while others plowed ahead shorting a bow-wave. Local residents fear for the safety of their children returning from school as a development area fronting the road is the site of several ditches, hidden by the water, and basement excavations. A passer-by said, "My brother - in - law says he should stock it with trout."

Runaway Wheels Smash Into House

TWEED (Special) — Dual wheels from a transport truck came loose on Highway 7 near Marmora early this morning and crashed into a house, badly frightening the occupant, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leal.

The two wheels, fastened together, became detached from the truck, took out a mailbox owned by a neighbor of the Leal's, rolled on to cut down the Leal's hedge and tear out a set of steps before hitting the Leal's aluminum sided bungalow. The impact knocked ornaments off the shelves in the house.

Mr. Leal said he found the set of wheels too hot to touch when he went outside to move them. The couple was alone at the time of the incident, shortly after midnight.

Cheques Bounce On Probation

A Belleville man pleaded guilty in provincial court Thursday to passing worthless cheques in the amount of $200.69.

Jim Crouchman, 34, of 120 North Park Street, was given a suspended sentence and placed on three years probation.

Crown Attorney John Prince said Mr. Crouchman, the father of two sons, gave cheques ranging from $19 to $70 to 18 different businesses in Belleville and Trenton during a four-month period last year.

The cheques were returned stamped either account closed or not sufficient funds.

Mr. Crouchman, who previously served three years for a similar offence, ordered to make the cheques after he was turned down on a welfare application. He said he was unemployed from May to December last year and is earning $91 a week in his present job.

In passing sentence, Judge J. L. Counsell ordered he be fined Mr. Crouchman, did not see much thought into his actions since he put his own name on the cheques. He gave Mr. Crouchman 12 months to pay back $222.53 still owing.

Rev. Cyril Betts: History Makes Happy Priest

What Oliver Cromwell Doesn't Know..

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Three centuries of history have come something of a happy — if irony-tinged — cir-cle here.

Because of it, one of Ontario's treasured, if more overlooked, historic sites faces a less fretful future.

And it's partly due to a British autocrat who didn't so-lidify care what places like Christ Church would have stood for — Oliver Cromwell.

The relief comes after years of nagging worry about the upkeeping and spruceing from the ravages of time, the Bay of Quinte Mohawks' church.

The Mohawks, early Anglican converts, brought Christianity to the Quinte district. Christ Church not only is a centre of worship. It's a symbol for them of their unique historic ties to British history. It is a Chapel Royal, one of the few outside Britain, endowed with gifts from generations of British monarchs. Last year, the Ontario government at last formally declared it an Ontario historic site.

Its weathered churchyard is a resting place for its early brethren, some who made history, and later, white settlers. "It's quite a unique thing for Canada, probably for the Commonwealth," says Rev. Cyril Betts, Mohawks' chaplain for the past four years, in the views that trees screen limestone landmark on rising ground commanding the Bay of Quinte. Nearby is the first landing where Mohawks held an impromptu, cross-top Thanksgiving service in 1784.

Yet, for all its significance, it has for years faced a familiar problem: Financial cost of offsetting the ongoing wear and tear of time; restorations that would enhance the setting of such a historic holding.

Help did come from one source: Some time ago, the lottery financed a much-needed reroofing.

But in 1970, when the young Anglican pastor arrived, no funds were available for any rehabilitations on the church and its historic environs.

Then, the memory of Oliver Cromwell apparently cropped up.

Among other ventures of his brief reign as the only man to depose a British monarch and hold sway over England's established institutions — including the church — the devout Cromwell founded the New England Company. It was designed and endowed to propagate the Christian gospel in then infant American colonies by people by Puritans as distinct from established church groups.

The company exists today, though apparently it is in the process of eventually winding up its work throughout the world.

Mr. Betts, and others charged with the church's wardenship, pondered if a petition for funds might be favored.

The vagaries of history might have altered Cromwell's original ideals. But today, any clash of ideas over religious definitions evoked by Cromwell's rule receded into history. Missionary undertaking has the broadest meanings for all Christian groups.

An approach to the British group drew a favorable response. In 1971-72 a budget was drafted and presented to the New England Company. It was accepted and likely will be paid over a 20-year period.

"We were asking them to accept the responsibility of centuries — and this is what they have done."

Although not disclosing the amount, Mr. Betts described it as "a cushion" with which maintenance expansion problems could be softened.

For years, the Mohawk parishioners have "struggled along . . . and did what had to be done. Now we have a chance to do things before they become catastrophic," says Mr. Betts.

As he approaches the climax in front door beneath the belfry — the original bell was a gift of George III — the chaplain indicates appreciation of the ironies of the history which once saw Crown-well pitted against established religion.

"Here we are benefitting now, 300 years from his acrimonyly indiscreet actions at the time," he muses wryly.

But Christ Church, and its propagation, is seriously relevant to the Mohawks and Canadians.

"It's part of the heritage of this country and these people," he emphasizes.

"It is something irreplaceable, something unique that has to be preserved."

Walking Patrols Best Crime Deterrent -- Chief

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A veteran of 30 years of law enforcement, Picton police chief Georg Pitt is convinced that foot patrol is one of the greatest crime deterrents existing for municipal police officers.

Chief Pitt, who joined the Picton police department as a constable on January 1, 1943, said yesterday that many municipal forces are returning to this system of walking a beat.

When the chief became a member of the town police force, foot patrol was virtually by the only patrol since no cruiser was provided. If an emergency dictated the need for swift transportation a taxicab was hired for the constable on duty.

The force of 6 included police chief Bert Biddle, Constable Pitt and Constable Walter Boyer. The rookie of the team, Constable Pitt rose to the rank of sergeant and in 1958, with the death of Bert Biddle, became the chief of police.

The police offices used in the 1940s were crammed into the hallway of the Public Utilities Commission building on Main Street. One desk was provided for the local constabulary.

Chief Pitt recalls that many of the minor or petty complaints received during his early days with the force could be ignored. Today, no matter how trivial an incident, the police department must investigate it thoroughly and file a report.

The complaints were fewer when Chief Pitt's job began in 1943, probably because of the system for conveying calls.

The chief noted that if the police office was vacant when a call rang in, it was then would flash on Main Street. The patrolling constable would return to his desk in the hall and contact the operator who in turn would relay the message.

The Picton police department today has a secretary and an answering service as well as a cruiser with a mobile two-way radio and a base station. A walkie-talkie with a radius of three miles can be used by the policeman on foot patrol. Messages are transmitted swiftly for prompt police action.

Picton's early-day police department employed only a police chief and two constables. Today Chief Pitt works with a force of seven men, including police sergeant Scott Held and Constables George Wright, Ronald Robin, Guy Brown, Donald Camp, Charles Pickett and Harry Sisty.

For Chief Pitt an average day at the office can include the investigation of a traffic accident, complaints of dogs running at large and family disputes. Streets are routinely patrolled and places of business checked at night.

His 30 years of police work have involved the chief in several interesting cases of major crime as well as routine investigations.

Several years ago, when the Brewer's Retail was located on Ross Street, the safe was stolen. Town police discovered it open on a side road leading from Picton. Four expert safe crackers had been guilty of the theft which netted approximately $2,000.

Chief Pitt said three of the culprits were arrested in Provincial Park and later on the day of the theft, but the fourth was never apprehended. The money taken was recovered.

An armed holdup at East End Grocery also stands out for Chief Pitt as one of the more interesting cases solved by the Picton police department. The robbery involved approximately $200 taken at gunpoint. Hours after the incident was reported police captured the thief at a dance in Picton. The money he had taken was returned to the grocer he had robbed.

Chief Pitt observed that Prince Edward's geographic location as an island is an important plus for police officers when major crimes are committed. With the co-operation of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police the entire county can be sealed off in minutes.

A policeman's job often involves acts of great risk, Chief Pitt said frequently he and his officers answer calls reporting elderly persons without family who may be ill at their homes. Through police investigation these persons receive the assistance they need.

Paper work and court appearances also play their roles in the police officer's work. Chief Pitt said each constable makes an average of two appearances in court each month in connection with investigations he has made.

Chief Pitt, who will retire in approximately two years as head of the town police force, has found his career as a law enforcement officer stimulating and challenging.

He explained that he first became a policeman at the command urgings of Chief Bert Biddle. In the 30 years he has watched expansion of the town police force and its accommodations.

Recently the chief submitted a request to town council for an enlargement of present police office and lockup facilities. He commented that there are no lockup cells at the present office and the town is now using cells at the provincial jail on Union St. It is uncertain how long this facility will remain available.

An active man with great interest in his job, Chief Pitt continues his work with enthusiasm and feels it as an advantage for him to have observed the growth of the police department in the past three decades.

Drugs No Problem For Picton Police

PICTON — Picton is not "plagued with the drug problem" according to police chief George Pitt, who yesterday reported only three charges involving marijuana have been laid as yet.

On several occasions, pills supposedly with narcotic content have been seized by town police but analysis by the laboratories of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have proven the drugs harmless.

Chief Pitt said it is common for such pills to be sold cheaply as narcotics by persons duped into believing they have a narcotic content.

Chief Pitt said it that in Picton there is "no juvenile problem at all".

Vigilance Essential

Canada in the post-Vietnam days ahead should keep a close look on the ideological struggles of the world, especially the spread of Marxism which we may expect to see perpetuated in one form or another and including, as we have already pointed out, the dissemination of left-wing propaganda by some sections of the media and by a new breed of academics whose allegiance is neither to the country of their birth or residence nor to the political and spiritual concepts of the free world as we know it.

Now that the United States is preparing finally to extricate itself from the Vietnam conflict, we hear little praise of the Nixon administration's efforts to this end. Anti-American sentiments and carping, mud-criticism are still abroad and it is an attitude that does not become us in Canada. We have so much ourselves to be thankful for, having been spared direct involvement in the war and, except for a brief spell in 1970, we have been spared in addition such nightmares as the terrorism and guerrilla warfare of Northern Ireland.

Yet we must be vigilant. How long can we go on enjoying our lotus-land life in Canada? Are there forces in our midst even now that are conspiring subtly to erode our Christian values and political institutions? There is evidence enough that such forces do exist. The permissiveness of our society is a reflection of such trends. So too is the drug culture which the Communists, not only in Vietnam, but around the world, are exploiting as a means of demoralizing our youth. In many other devious ways too, there are sinister pressures at work.

As for the urban warfare which we have managed to escape — and it is being brought under control in 1970 before it could spread was one of the Canadian Government's most decisive and effective actions — we cannot regard it as having been eliminated completely. This raises the possibility of it somehow breaking out again here. Looking at the placid Canadian scene today, we do not anticipate any such outbreak in the foreseeable future, but given the FLQ menace of a couple of years ago, the underground guerrillas in the United States whose existence has been established and documented, not to mention the subtle propagandizing that is all around us, there is always such a chance.

We have too the experience of the British in Northern Ireland. According to Major-General Desmond Gordon guerrilla warfare could stink, anywhere and might supplant all other forms of warfare.

General Gordon, who carried out three tours of duty in Ulster and is now semi-retired, told the British-Canadian Trade Association that a possible increase of guerrilla warfare in various parts of the world. It would be waged, he said, by revolutionaries "whose target is not territory but control of men's minds." Western society, he believes, is wide open to attack, with its most vulnerable target being the modern city, which offers countless targets.

Urging preparedness for any such threat, General Gordon told his listeners: "You should dispel any notion that it can't happen here."

We note Ottawa is listening. We hope individual MPs are listening also. We do know that Canadian army officers have spent time in Belfast studying the anti-guerrilla tactics of the British. We suspect also that if intelligence information in the hands of the RCMP were made known it would contribute a best seller.

The watchword in Canada then should be awareness — and preparedness. In the circumstances of the day we have no other choice.

The Advice Game

Advice comes in many guises and not all of it is welcome, especially when it is unsolicited.

We don't know whether James Taylor, Conservative member for Prince Edward-Lennox in the provincial legislature, should feel bemused, chastened or encouraged by the counsel offered him in recent days.

The advice came from one who was a political loser — and in the federal election at that. We refer to George Hall, unsuccessful defeated Liberal candidate in Prince Edward-Hastings, who wants Mr. Taylor to "get your parachute ready to parachute into another riding because the Tory executive . . . are trying to get rid of you."

Whatever is behind Mr. Cunningham's rather gauche trespassing in the affairs of Mr. Taylor and provincial politics, he might reflect on some words of Rochefoucauld: "Men give away nothing so liberally as their advice."

Backing The Wrong Horses

PCs Bungle Their Chances in The Current Parliament

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It was such an unusual, almost unbelievable sight as perhaps to be a mirage.

Except that this is mid-winter, and even on the hottest days of Ottawa's boiler-room summers, the temperatures never climb to any such giddy mirage-making elevation.

And anyway, this was the House of Commons, not the Sahara.

The Liberals were smiling. Actually.

A couple of them. Government House Leader Allan MacEachen and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, were happily slapping their knees, as in self-congratulations at their sudden great good fortune.

As the veterans of the Trudeau cabinet, along with Treasury Board President Charles M. Drury, they knew, from their parliamentary years stretching back through the Pearson, Diefenbaker and St. Laurent governments, an unexpected break when they saw one.

And they were seeing not just one, but two.

Two most-head moves by the over-anxious Conservatives.

Until then, the Liberals, who have been making a great — if entirely unconvincing — show of "humility", as Prime Minister Trudeau has been at pains to call it, were about convinced that they had the monopoly of doing the wrong things at the worst time.

Everything they touched before, during and even after the election had soured — the economy, welfare, unemployment insurance, tax reform, make-work programs, the lot.

They had no friends in the West. The Maritimes were still sore! And Ontario had turned hostile, even usually warmly receptive Toronto - Metro.

Everyone, including a lot of Liberals, believed the Conservatives only had to sit and wait — and not very long at that — and the whole ball of power wax would drop into their laps.

But then, suddenly, the Tories tore it.

They could not wait. They had to grab for power. And they overreached.

For purposes solely of defeating the government, they faulted the proposed food price investigation on grounds that Senators — who have what are known as "conflicts of interest" — would be participating.

They did this knowing that the New Democrats, who long have wanted the Senate abolished automatically would support them.

Together, these unlikely allies the Conservatives and New Democrats "defeated" the government, but it was a hollow victory, because the issue did not involve the key question of confidence in the government.

So the only purpose the Tories served was to make themselves look foolish, and give the NDP a made-to-order chance to show that they could and would vote against the Liberals — when it did not mean anything.

The incredible part was the Tories pretending that the Senate alone might have a "conflict of interest" in the food price investigation.

Just as if no Honorable Member of the House of Commons might not hold shares, bonds, or even be a director of some food retail, wholesale, distributing or producing organization.

Then to pair up the blunder of their food price enquiry position, the Conservatives championed the militant postal workers' cause — flouting all the "troubles".

One did not seem to occur to the Conservatives that after all the mail strikes, stoppages, and disruptions — non-service in recent years has become almost a way of Post Office life — and the increasing costs, the postal workers have precious few friends left among the taxpayers and voters.

It did not matter to the Tories either, that the postal workers had rejected their own executive and voted against blockading the mails.

Nor did it count that most postal workers, sick of strikes, had asked police protection to take them through the picket line of "super militants" into the Toronto Post Office through which a large part of the nation's mail — from all sections of the country — flows.

All that the Conservatives, in their power-ravenous insensitivity to priorities and people, saw was another outside chance to embarrass the government.

So their spokesman cried crocodile tears for the postal union militants, giving aid and comfort to the strike-happy hotheads who once again would paralyze the mails — and engrage the taxpayers.

No wonder the Liberals are laughing.

The Long Travail of Northern Ireland

By KEVIN DOYLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An outburst of vicious sectarian murders in Northern Ireland has heightened the tension atmosphere as British government circles where the finishing touches are being added to a new political blueprint for Ulster.

Both Protestants and Roman Catholics have died in the latest treacherous round of midnight murders, with extreme militants shooting stalked victims and then torturing their victims to death.

For the first time, the Protestant Ulster Defence Association has announced it will no longer make any special efforts to stop the sectarian killings.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army, striving to retain its sinister power despite a crippling offensive against it by security forces, openly admits to some of the gang warfare, claiming that it is in retaliation for Protestant atrocities.

William Whitelaw, Britain's harried secretary for Ulster, now faces the pressing need to introduce an extensive peace initiative before the end of March or gun gauze he has made it repeatedly clear he has no appointment nearly a year after he took over the current rash of killings. Whitelaw's efforts made even more difficult by many observers' see as a slowly developing attitude among some militant Protestants where Ulster's breaking with Britain entirely if the province continues or gets worse.

The weakness of Ulster who take this position, seems to be that, if left to themselves, Protestant - para military organizations like Craig's would be far less restrained than the British troops.

They appear to believe that, given a large story of arms and the freedom to act, they could very repressive measure against Roman Catholic IRA terrorists. Protestant forces would be able to restore order quickly and this opinion is shared by observers believe it may if the murder rate increases. Where are would face a serious dete- toration in his main base of support.

As a result of these developments, most officials expect a government white paper on the political future of Ulster will be introduced fairly quickly after a referendum March 8 on the controversial border issue in North- ern Ireland.

The British are hoping the referendum will produce a clear majority Protestants a chance to express their desire to remain in the United Kingdom. will pool trust at tempers with- ick desperate Protestant and Roman Catholics to achieve unity. Protestants and Irish Republic sometime in the future.

Sources indicate the white paper likely will call for proposals for establishment of two new institutions: a council of Ireland to include representatives of most Ireland and the Irish Republic to the north and an elected assembly in Northern Ireland with proportional representation for Roman Catholics and Protestants.

The council would, at first, be an advisory body with a mandate only to give advice on a few uncontroversial areas of mutual concern. North and South, perhaps pollution and tourism. But most observers would be that it would provide the framework for a much- structure which, somewhere clothed with the powers of a normal govern- ment in a united Ireland. In the same time, it would not neces- sarily be offensive to Protes- tants.

An elected assembly also would have only advisory pow- ers at first, but would be a vehicle of bringing together the warring groups in Ulster. Be- fore long it would have:

The assembly would likely be given responsibility for carrying out some of the policies it sug- gested, but Westminster would retain final control of all Ulster affairs.

Lean Times Ahead For Defence Sharing Plants

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Industry Minister Alistair Gillespie has taken a curiously relaxed attitude toward those Canadian companies and industries involved in the defence production sharing with the United States.

He has told them in effect, that they are on their own as far as possible Canadian technology transfer to defence production sharing. Some have substantial. The much-publicized STOL (Short Take-off Landing) aircraft designed and built by De Havilland Aircraft, sold to over 100 countries with export earnings coming back to Canada of nearly $80 millions, would not have flown without initial research and development funds from the U.S. air force in the mid-1950s, long before a Vietnam War.

The collapsible helicopter hangar, designed by Marc Maynard, Canadian company president and innovative engineer, would have developed without major orders for them from the U.S. coast guard and navy. Mr. Maynard, a Conservative, almost beat External Affairs Minister Sharp at the polls last October. Any kind of message here?

Focus On High-Rise

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Last night I attended a meeting called by a group of citizens concerned over the proposed high-rise apartment building to be built in the central Bridge Street area. Attending this meeting was a first for me. In fact, I had never given politics a second several 'firsts' for me. It was the first time I ever wrote a letter to the Editor, the first time I ever attended a protest meeting. The first time I ever felt concerned enough to sign a petition and the first time I ever felt a need to own home. That is the biggest one. I purchased my first and the reason I write this letter to you.

I picked and bought a home in the central east hill area of the city for several reasons. The strongest of which was the very fact that it is a hill area. This area is distinctive within the city for its tree-lined streets, and old homes and the fact that area unit recently free from deserting high-rise concrete structures.

In the past couple of days I have heard many opinions on the subject of highrise buildings. Most of that I have heard is opposed by the word "if." If only this or that will happen. If the planning board would bring with a ruling, if the building permit could be withheld till further study, if the traffic committee would appoint a report, if the zoning bylaws were reversed, if the mayor and council would listen to the people. Now, in this case, the people are right, it stank of. I am not mocking the "ifs." I think they are good words to use. The important thing is does now about them that the people who have the power to do it, then the "ifs" will be a thing of the past. Belleville become an "if city." When I am forced to sell to get out from under a high-rise apartment fixture highrise what shall I say; that I should have? Should have had been done about these apartments before they were built not have to be rebuilding now.

That I think would be after the fact. I think we all after the Belleville will not be after the fact in preventing its existence from the highrise blight and preserving its residential character area within its boundaries.

Attaining Unity of Knowledge Of Son of God Is Man's Goal

By Rev. G. C. SMYTH

My daughter gave me a welcome Christmas present. It was a book containing famous utterances of Winston Churchill. It brought back memories. For instance, there was a passage from his broadcast to the world July 14, 1940. Seeing it here, you may recall it too.

Churchill spoke as only he could speak, "We are fighting BY ourselves alone," but we are not fighting FOR ourselves alone. Here in this strong city of refuge which enshrines the titledeeds of human progress and is of deep consequence to all Christian civilization; here, girt about by the seas and oceans shielded from above by the prowess and devotion of our airmen — we await undismayed the impending assault."

Christian civilization was startled on its way by the kind of counsel which Paul gave to Timothy. Paul wanted Timothy the latter to stay with the young church in Ephesus. This was the leading city in Asia Minor. It was the site of the temple of Artemis, the home of various magic arts and questionable rites. It must have furnished strong resistance to the growth of early Christianity.

No wonder Paul urged Timothy to continue his current ministry. The Christianity was full of backsliding and competing conglomeration of ideas and practices. Paul wanted Timothy to keep up his efforts to get professing Christians to define and standardize their religion in such a pluralistic set-ting.

He urged, "Remain at Ephesus that you may charge certain persons not to teach any different doctrine, nor to occupy themselves with myths and which promote speculations rather than the divine training that is in faith; whereas the aim of our charge is love that issues from a pure heart and a good conscience and sincere faith. (I Timothy 1:1-5

One seldom hears of "a matter of conscience" nowadays. Those who take a stand on that basis must feel surrounded by "Ephesians." If you do not want to be a "square" if you want to be with "the in crowd", you refer to such-and-such a production, book, statement or action as being "in good taste," or "poor taste". What has happened to the word conscience in the vocabulary of life?

For one thing, the main ethical drive of social freedom of individuals in times gone by made our Christian conscience a corporate action for the general good. So much so that if some body comes up with an idea on behalf of a need in the community, before the idea is almost bound to make a motion that a committee be formed to study the potentiality of social action.

I agree that we should not endeavor to do something separately that can accomplish it better collectively. I fully appreciate the mass approach to many worthy causes. However, people are not checkers to be moved around on the board of life according to someone else's will. Individual interest, conviction, and conscience just must not be permitted to wither on the vine.

Moreover, in some circles the theory of evolution has been given an interpretation which bears on our question. We are told that our sense of right and wrong stems from the cumulative and funded experience of the past since primeval times. We are informed that conscience is not the voice of God but the testimony of experience, as if God spoke in a vacuum expecting to be heard. Besides, we are told that we "do our own thing" and to follow our "antiinstincts", as if this indicated the ascent of man.

Well, the results of the topcat are producing more and more emotional disorders, if not psychoses. Some circles deprey are stalking the land in ever-widening circles of violence, if that is freedom! So I suggest that those who accept "the descent of man" think again on the subject. Only man can now maintain the dignity of man.

I concur with Ignace Lepp when he wrote, "Since mankind had very humble origins, I can only believe that it started man in the beginning with the genius of an Einstein or a de Chardin."

So if we are not to lapse or regress, we need to return to a good conscience. The individual or the Christian community is a good individual. The nation of the Ten Commandments would be a good nation. The world of the Ten Commandments would be a good world! Utopian except so when these are seen embodied in Jesus Christ who set the Commandments to music.

Although the ideal may be so far off as to make it seem impossible, the New Testament takes a more optimistic view. It sets the thrilling and challenging goal of evolving creation as an individual, corporate and divine, combined operation wherein "we all attain to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the son of God, to mature manhood, to the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

Ecumenical Campaign Making Jews Uneasy

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Christianity, the offspring of Judaism, generally has quit trying to absorb its mother faith. But pockets of that old impulse persist. And some Jewish leaders fear it may be abetted by a newly launched, interdenominational drive to bolster Christianity.

The issue, a sensitive nerve in religious history, has surfaced strongly with the start of Key '73, a year-long ecumenical effort in the United States and Canada to call "our continent to Christ."

Although backed by the widest spectrum of Roman Catholic and Protestant churches to join in a common endeavor in modern times, it also has aroused uneasiness in various quarters. Christian as well as Jewish, about their relationship.

"Some Jews have a right to be nervous about the movement's zeal, "Krieger," comments the ecumenical weekly, Christian Century. Although it generally endorses the drive as a potential stimulus to "religion of the Book" at a time when this is keenly needed, the periodical adds:

"With 100 million uncommitted Americans out there, it does seem weird that some Christian evangelists feel that more theological Brownie points' can be scored by landing or uprooting living, breathing Jews.

Basically, the issue involves not only the relationships between Judaism and Christianity, but the validity of their respective faiths and the right and propriety of proselytizing activities.

Theoretically, the possibility of a limited kind of "two-way traffic' must be granted" by Christian church and synagogue, says Rabbi Jakob Petuchowski of Cincinnati's Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion. But he adds that this should not be the direct intent of either side in trying to strengthen religious commitment in a widely secularized generation.

He and many Christian scholars maintain that to try specifically to get devoutly believing Jews or Christians to change faiths is a distortion of their purposes and slurs an attitude sensitive to such switches sometimes happen in the necessary free presentation of ideas seeking to persuade the irreligious.

Christian theologians contend that the two, interrelated faiths both are valid; both represent living sources of truth, Judaism for Jews and Christianity for gentiles to whom Jesus extended the Hebrew heritage of belief in one, universal God.

In the last quarter-century, there has been Jewish-Christian interchange and Christianity's deepening recognition of its founding ties in Judaism, most m a j o r denominations have dropped past activities specifically aimed at converting Jews.

But such programs continue a m o n g some evangelical groups, including the Jews for Jesus wing of the Key '73 movement among young people outside regular church organizations.

Numerous Jewish leaders have voiced uneasiness about Key '73, in which many independent, fervent groups are participating. But along with some mainline denominations are participating, might what they see as efforts to convert Jews to Christianity.

It is "bound to induce jitters in the Jewish community," says Rabbi Solomon S. Bernards, director of inter-religious co-operation of the Anti-Defamation League, recalling the medieval Christian use of torture and coercion for conversion purposes.

At the same time, various church leaders active in Key '73 have emphasized the tragically committed Jews are not the target of the drive.

"There is no anti-Semitism in either the ideology or thrust of Key '73, says Rev. Dr. Theodore Raedeke of St. Louis, executive director of the effort. "We do not wish to persecute, pressure or force Jews to become anything against their will."

Christian Missionary Draws Israelis' Wrath

By MARCUS ELIASON

JERUSALEM (AP) — Arnold Butler came to Israel from California age, imbued with love of Jesus and determined to spread the word.

The official explanation: He lacked means of support, was a burden to the state, was not entitled to immigration rights because he is not a Jew and was involved in missionary activity.

"The missionary work was the last straw," said Mrs. Yehudit Heubner, deputy director of the state ministry and author of the expulsion order.

Butler came here with his wife and five children from San Jose because, as his wife Prescilla put it, "We saw a real spiritual revival in Israel, and America to us was Sodom and Gomorrah."

He had drifted from job to job in the United States. Big, gear disappointments awaited him here.

He tried to farm in southern Israel but could not make a living from the sandy soil. A sixth child was born, and then his eight-year-old daughter underwent a throat operation. Butler worked double shifts in a textile factory to pay the bills.

"One night, Jesus came to him in a dream," says Mrs. Butler. "Arnold told Him that if God saved his son, he would work to save God's children here in Israel."

Butler went to work in Ashdod, a port town populated by Oriental Jewish immigrants.

"We knew it was a hard place to work in, but that's what Arnold wanted. He would stand in the street and hand out pamphlets in English offering free New Testaments. He was beaten and harassed constantly. Once he got stomped by three Yeshiva students."

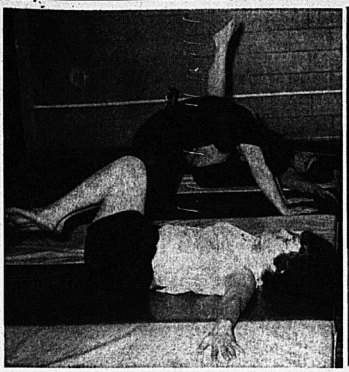
Last September, Butler made his biggest mistake. He tried to hand out New Testaments at the Wailing Wall, Judaism's holiest shrine.

To make things worse, he did it on Yom Kippur, the most solemn Jewish holiday of the year, when thousands of worshippers were at the wall.

It almost caused a riot. He was fined $100 for endangering the peace.

On Dec. 12, Mrs. Heubner signed the deportation order. When Butler made no move to obey the order, he was jailed prior to expulsion. His family was allowed to stay.

Outside officialdom, Orthodox Jews have set up several groups to fight the missionaries.



One such fighter is Prof. Jacob Weinreb. He says evangelists succeed by offering prospective converts such things as free schooling and cash financial aid to emigrate to Christian communities abroad.

Mrs. Heubner says no exact figures are available but that few persons have been expelled for missionary work and that "once was present-ly a rule reason. "Invariably, they had no means of support, and they endangered the peace."

The Butler family lives in a drafty house in Jerusalem, subsisting on donations from friends abroad. They send out pamphlets such as "Jews for Jesus" to any one who happens to pass by.

But, as Mrs. Butler unhappily put it: "Israel is not what we expected. If its God's will, I'd like to go back to the United States.

Slim and Slender with A Little Bender

Slenderizing is a careful process. Exercises, diets and reconfirmended exercises follow Bonnie Maidment's slender program at the Belleville YMCA. Individual exercise suggestions for every member at the Y Slender Figure Salon offer any women the opportunity to lose inches and weight if she follows her recommended program. Mrs. Maidment (far right) demonstrates the "Belt Massager", one of the exercise machines which is designed for the individual figure problems with tummy, legs and derrieres.

'Slenderizing' Program Involves Guided Exercises and Diets

By BONNIE KING
Staff Reporter

The Slender Figure Salon at the Belleville YMCA helps women reduce or re-proportion their figures.

Recommended food diets which are nutritionally sound are part of the caring for the whole person theory of Mrs. Bonnie Maidment, supervisor of the Y's Slender Figure Salon.

Another unique factor of this exercise program is that anyone can join at any time for one month or more.

As part of the Y's program to work with small groups thus giving individual attention to each person, The Slender Figure Salon is no exception. Bonnie has arranged her program so that she can look after the needs of each individual in her group.

Upon the first visit to the salon, which includes a machine exercise-room and gym, each member gives her health record. Bonnie then measures and weighs each member.

This instructor then sets each individual woman on a program suitable to her needs.

"The exercise machine gets my circulation going before I begin my mat exercises," said Mrs. Cecilia Horne, a salon member.

Mrs. Horne who has had an asthma problem has surprisingly found since joining the Y's Slender Figure Salon that her asthma problem is improving.

Shortness of breath has just about disappeared, Mrs. Horne feels better and healthier.

Most of Bonnie's members are housewives. This instructor has found that through her past five years teaching exercise programs that after a woman has children in when the extra pounds form around the legs, tummy and waistline.

Housework is really not sufficient exercise according to Mrs. Maidment. The exercise program lasts for about one half hour.

Members are encouraged to attend the salon at least three times a week if not the full five. But, if one cannot it is advised that the exercises be done at home.

How do the women look? Bonnie has noticed each seems more alive. Their backaches have disappeared as posture improves and they seem more vivacious with a lighter step.

"But", said Mrs. Maidment, "the women have to have the will power to follow the program."

The inches lost usually correspond to the weight lost if the women follow their recommended diets.

Every fifth visit to the salon includes a "weigh-in".

Bonnie said this is better psychology than weight-checks every session.

After several visits to the salon, when members learn their exercises, they are encouraged to work on their own under the watchful eye of Mrs. Maidment who corrects positions when necessary.

Belleville Presbyterial UCW Holds 11th Annual in Napanee

Trinity United Church, Napanee, had a near record attendance of about 270 at the annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial United Church Women on Thursday, January 25. President Helen Seismino gave the call to worship; greetings were brought by Mrs. W. Goodman, 1st vice-president of Trinity UCW and by Mrs. C. Thompson, president of Bay of Quinte Conference UCW, who announced the following events: UCW Conference Annual, Kingsview United Church, Oshawa, April 24 and 25; UCW School at Quin-Mo-Lac, Sept. 7, 8 and 9 and the conference bus trip to United Nations Seminar, New York, June 4 - 8.

Rev. William McDowell, Chairman of Belleville Presbytery, brought greetings from the Presbytery and installed the officers for the coming year. The benedicton was pronounced by Rev. G. Taylor, minister of Trinity United Church.

Officers for the Belleville Presbyterial United Church Women elected for 1973 are: president, Miss Helen Seismith, Napanee; past president, Mrs. T. W. Spear, Trenton; vice-president elect, Mrs. G. Williams, Marmora, RR 4; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. S. Stenson, Belleville; recording secretary, Mrs. T. H. Kerr, Picton, RR 4 and treasurer, Mrs. E. Ward, Picton.

Regional vice presidents nominated were: Hastings Centre, Mrs. W. Burnside, Madoc, RR 2; Hastings South, Mrs. Wanda Sine, Belleville; Prince Edward East, Mrs. D. Moore, Picton, RR 3; Prince Edward West, Mrs. C. W. Smith, Belleville, RR 1 and Lennox and Addington, Mrs. D. Simpson, Newburg.

Others elected were: Mrs. J. Peyton, Trenton, Mrs. W. J. Throop, Belleville; Mrs. S. Bates, Picton; Mrs. Hoyckc, Beth, RR 2; Mrs. J. Bush, Frankford; Mrs. R. W. Beaton, Trenton; Mrs. G. Williams, Marmora; Mrs. J. Cullen, Picton, RR 3; Mrs. S. Stenson, Belleville and Mrs. H. Pierson, Wellington.

Worship service with the theme, "Weighed and Wanting", was conducted by Mrs. Blakely and Mrs. Adams of Consecon U.C.W. Literature presented by Mrs. Guy Hoycke and music by Mrs. H. Harrison were also enjoyed.

Guest speaker, Rev. Joseph Price, executive secretary of Bay of Quinte Conference, spoke on "The Spirit of Salvation".

Mr. Price also drew a parallel between the coming of the Holy Spirit at Pentcost and the coming at Saskatoon. He noted that people make two mistakes in their attitude to the Holy Spirit, who is thought of as "it" — a thing not a person. Mr. Price said God is also associated with quiet meditation. Mr. Price was thanked by Mrs. Anne Cullen.

After the business was conducted, the main feature of the afternoon was a moving devotional drama, The End of the Road, presented by 10 women from the Belleville churches. Each was presented with a crown according to her merit, by the Keeper of the Crowns.

Here in Canada one grand hotel exists, of which all Canadians have heard — The Chateau Frontenac. Its very site is deeply rooted with our touristic habitue of the hotel, in her recent book "Chateau Frontenac" published by McGraw - Hill Ryerson Limited.

Its jacket informs that it was named for Louis de Buade, Comte de Frontenac, one of the most valiant and volatile governors of the French regime. With the various motels which now abound in our midst, it brings to mind the words of long-standing Bellevillians.

"Yes, 'tis true, and our city needs them and we welcome them, but those back-with fond memories of the old days, when The Quinte Hotel held the stellar role throughout this surrounding district as a kind of "grand hotel"... with its spacious foyer and stately dignified dining room graced by mosaic floors, doric pillars, high molded ceilings hung with crystal chandeliers. When I was a child, to dine at the Quinte was an event nearly paramount with Christmas . . . To us, in those days, it was a grand hotel . . ."

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Do muggers deserve compassion?

ANY human being does, even the person guilty of the most heinous crime. Care must be taken, nevertheless, not to give the mugger less compassion, but to be sure that his crime is not treated lightly or casually. It is bad enough that the victim is often forgotten in street crimes of this type; what's worse is that life itself is regarded as cheaply that more and more murderers don't give a second thought about snuffing it out.

Is a bride immature to run to Mom?

NOT necessarily. All the upheaval of being newly wed can cause a bride to do some serious thinking about her marriage. (Her husband can have similar thoughts; but, being the man, how would it look if he ran home to his mother?) If a new wife really believes it would do her good to go home to Mother, perhaps she will come traipsing right back, anxious to make her marriage work, if her groom understands her need.

Can a 'failure' be a good parent?

NO; because a person is not a failure if he is helping a child develop into a mature, emotionally stable adult. That is the mark of a good parent, and many mothers and fathers can boast of such accomplishment, though they might have flopped at achieving success in everything else they tried in life. Of course, many successful people are good parents, too—in fact some say they are good ---- ---- despite being successful in other ventures.

Family Unit Should Fulfill Love's Needs and Values

By DORIS CLARK

It is, after all, the family which fulfils the need of each one of us to have and be loved. In the interplay of responsibility and dependency within the family are also found the values of love for God, for one's religion and for one's country. Within the family the sense of worth of the individual can develop.

Perhaps you have heard the story of the estimony made by the mother of a boy who had been hailed before a court of law. When she was asked what sort of child he was, she replied: "He's a fine boy, Your Honor. It's just what he does that is wrong."

Little wonder from this story how the family can provide an atmosphere of reconciliation and how its members never cease to love each other even when they sin. — Governor - General Georges P. Vanier, founder of the Vanier Institute of the Family.

Dear Doris: My daughter is about to be married. Her fiance told her about his mother in which both the mother and father gave the bride away.

The ideal approach to what she wants us to do that. I'm willing but is it proper? And how? — Che Me In.

Dear Clue: Personally I think it is splendid that you are enjoying those cases I've been hearing about in which bride or groom or somebody breaks with tradition in order to give a warmer, more personal touch to an old ritual.

If your girl wants both you and her father to share in this event, after all, you both own her — I can't see a thing to hinder your husband answering same question same way. You would already be seated in the front row, and after his reply he would take his place beside you.

* * *

Dear Doris: My girl friend's father needs the help of a psychiatrist. His mind is all mixed up. Please tell us who we can turn to for help. — Future Son-in-law.

Dear Future: Decidine whether someone needs a psychiatrist is a popular pastime — and I'm not being funny. But it is not fair for a lay person to pass this kind of judgement. I daresay all of us have our moments when we want — to say th least — mixed up.

The best way would be to have his attitude him to have a medical examination; we've all being told to do this regularly, and she could go with him to the family doctor to fill in the puzzling details.

The doctor who knows him well recognize any symptoms of mental or nervous illness and call in psychiatric help if he thinks A best.

(When replied in to Doris, in this newspaper, allow four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if an eight - cent - stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.)

Canadian Role Praised By Press

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Star and News says Canada's position on her role in the Vietnam ceasefire supervision is "convincing proof that others besides superpowers can play power politics."

The newspaper suggests in an editorial that without Canada "there could be no international control machinery and without that machinery there could be no ceasefire."

"For three months the government of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, with just the right blend of Gallic subtlety and Anglo-Saxon bluntness, has pursued a diplomacy of toughness well up to the standards of the Nixinger combination in the White House.

"Washington and Saigon on one side, Hanoi, the Viet Cong, Peking and Moscow on the other, were put on notice that Canada would not join in a supervision charade in Vietnam.

"Since both sides want the ceasefire—for the time being anyway—they have agreed to the supervisory machinery that has at least some of the 'teeth' demanded by Canada.

"The ploy of Ottawa," the paper continued, "has come in playing hard to get. From October onwards, it was clear to the Canadians that both sides wanted them. That is a tribute to previous Canadian fair play in virtually every international peacekeeping operation since World War II, as well as to the undoubted expertise gathered from experience."

Water Kills Snowmobilers

TORONTO (CP) — Fourteen of the 39 snowmobile deaths recorded this winter by the Ontario Provincial Police have involved drownings.

A police spokesman said the greatest loss of life involves snowmobiles crashing through ice on rivers and lakes.

Ordinarily, the danger periods are at the beginning and end of winter but this year's varying weather has caused a number of mid-winter deaths said the spokesman.

Teacher Taught Lesson

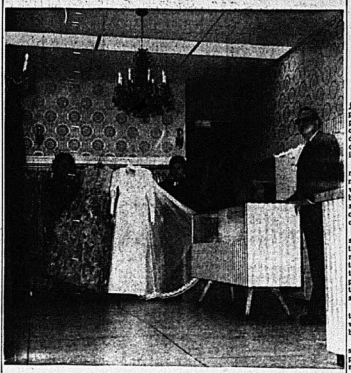
OTTAWA (CP) — A High school principal who admitted defrauding the federal government of more than $32,000 and then spending most of it on sports equipment for the school was sentenced Friday to two years in jail and ordered to pay restitution of $70,899.

An Ottawa court was told that Arthur Nielsen, 41, former principal of the Viscount Alexander school at Canadian Forces Base Rockcliffe, committed the fraud because he was an insecure man who wanted more prestige in the community.

Evidence presented last month showed that Nielsen added fictitious teachers to his staff and inflated enrolment figures to get the money between December, 1968 and October, 1972. He filled out income tax forms for the non-existent staff and also got them social insurance cards and bank accounts. After taxes, the sum amounted to $69,899.

Nielsen spent more than half the money on minor sports but also spent money on a new car, swimming pool and a fur coat.

In handing down the sentence, Judge Robert Hutton said he felt Nielsen could still make a valuable contribution in the areas of education and sports.



Jail Threat Quelled

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — About 20 prisoners who escaped from their cells and barricaded themselves in a dormitory of the Camden County jail Friday surrendered peacefully after being threatened with a gas attack, police said.

"No one was hurt," Police Chief Vincent Bonne said. "It was just one of those protests. Everything's back to normal."

About 1,000 workers were evacuated from the building, which houses the county and city offices.

The jail — which has been overcrowded for several years, is scheduled to be replaced by a new facility.

New Look: Old Image

Milady Shop on Front St., established in 1948, has a brand - new look, but owner-manager Irvin Shulman insists the store's image is the same. "We haven't put our prices up," he said. One of the most impressive sections of the store, formerly The Ontario income office, is the new white and gold bridal department. Joan McLaughlin (left) and Barbara Bunnett (centre) display the wares. At right is Mr. Shulman.

Oil Controls Threatened

OTTAWA (CP) — If the oil companies do not agree to fill domestic fuel needs despite record oil exports to the United States, the government will impose export controls, Energy Minister Donald MacDonald said Friday.

He told the Commons that while oil supplies are assured for February, "there is pressure with regard to the oncoming situation in March."

"At the moment we are not clear whether the industry will be able . . . to solve the question themselves. . . .

"If they show themselves incapable of doing so, or in any way put in peril Canadian supplies we would not hesitate to take the regulatory action."

Outside the House Mr. MacDonald said he does not foresee imposition of controls unless the oil companies fail to agree on volumes to be preserved for the Canadian market.

The issue has become acute this winter because of severe shortages of oil in the United States.

Tube Ruse

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — More than 100 London area residents apparently have been duped into buying stolen television sets—most of them color portables each worth more than $400.

City police, who have confiscated 25 sets from city homes so far, expect to recover more than 100 sets.

BC Law Requires Residence

VICTORIA (CP) — The majority of the directors of every provincially-incorporated company will have to be Canadian citizens resident in Canada, under legislation introduced Friday in the British Columbia legislature.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald brought in the highly-technical, 197-page Companies Act, which is a redraft of a similar bill introduced in the 1972 spring session by the former Social Credit government but left over for further clarification.

There are a number of provisions in the new bill, including that dealing with company directors, which have been added to the legislation. It brings up to date the rules by which companies are formed, carry on their business and are dissolved.

Mr. Macdonald said in an interview the old laws were "very widely interpreted and this brings the law into disrepute."

He said the act is generally a "modernized company procedures and an attempt to make the act simple and understandable.

Mr. Macdonald said the provision dealing with the Canadian directors will "require quite a few changes in the composition of boards of directors."

He said there are 70,000 provincially-incorporated companies in B.C., 45 per cent of which are private.

Regan Ready

HALIFAX (CP) — Premier Gerald Regan accused the Opposition Progressive Conservatives Friday of taking a "frivolous approach to a serious matter" resulting all Nova Scotia cabinet members to disclose their property interests.

In legislative debate on an Opposition resolution requiring full disclosure, Premier Regan said the bill did not go far enough. Disclosure should apply to all member of the legislature.

WARREN ALLMAND

Predicts Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor General Warren Allmand said Friday the government may amend its bill to continue the partial ban on capital punishment.

He was confident the legislation, introduced Jan. 11 in the Commons, will draw enough votes to pass second reading but he was unsure whether it would survive third reading in its present form.

As a result, he said in an interview, there may be amendments at the committee stage between second and third reading.

Passes Buck

OTTAWA (CP) — Perrin Beatty (PC—Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo) was told Friday that the location of dumps for Metropolitan Toronto garbage is a provincial, not a federal, matter.

Environment Minister Jack Davis said this in the Commons after Mr. Beatty asked the location of a site to be used by CP Rail for dumping 400,000 tons of Metro garbage annually for the next 15 years. Mr. Davis said he had discussed the matter "at length" with the Ontario environment minister.

Forms Blasted

OTTAWA (CP) — That long, complicated 1973 income-tax form came under more fire in the Commons Friday.

Dan Heatherton (PC—Peel South) told Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury that people are giving up after five or six tries at using special income-tax telephone numbers to ask questions about the form.

Mr. Stanbury said he would investigate and that a watch had been ordered to see whether additional lines are needed.

Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) said 90 per cent of the long form is concerned with showing upper-income group how to take advantage of the tax system. He asked if the government would consider not sending out another note to help the majority of Canadians.

RENE BRUNELLE

Pension Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario cabinet minister Rene Brunelle suggested Friday that the federal government consider assuming all responsibility for assistance to the aged.

Mr. Brunelle, minister of community and social services, said it would be one way of overcoming the difficulties in co-ordinating federal and provincial income security programs.

His proposal would be to identify key groups, such as the aged, "and have one level of government assume full responsibility."

Trenton Fire Department Has Seen Many Changes

TRENTON — Times have changed greatly since the horsedrawn fire carriages, billowing black smoke to the skies as they raced towards a blaze, firemen clinging to anything handy.

This historic picture, circa 1913-1914 shows sharply how the contrast with the more modern setting also shows. The street is the same, although known by a different name now.

The former Ridgeway Street housed the same buildings, but stores such as the Lee Lung Laundry and the Candy Land have since been replaced by Tinga's Furniture, Don Bell's Sports Shop and Talsma Specialty Shop on the now King Street. The Gilbert Hotel still stands, as does the post office tower, although the rest of the building has since been torn down.

History of the department before 1875 is sketchy. In fact, no firm records are available. But from that time, department archivists have amassed a fairly detailed log of department activities, ranging from historic fires to participation in sporting events.

The original hall across from the present town police station, was erected in 1872 when Trenton was still a village. For equipment, the 17 men, including a chief, a captain and a first lieutenant, had the horsedrawn steam engine pictured here plus hand-drawn hose reels and carts.

As was often the case with a budding municipality, funds for equipment were scarce. The first piece of firefighting equipment, the steam engine, was the gift of Trenton's first Fire Chief, Robert Wedgell.

Because most of the equipment was hand - drawn, competitions to establish the fastest time and most efficient work, were often held. A hose 200 feet long was placed on a hose reel. The men had to run 200 yards, hose was laid for another 250 feet, uncoupled from the cart and attached to a hydrant.

A nozzle was then attached to the hose and a target knocked over. Firemen of the day became quite proficient at this and inter-department rivalry made the sport a popular crowd pleaser. The men even travelled to nearby communities to show off their skills and bring home honors to the department.

In 1906 the department entered the world competition held at Hamilton. They emerged victorious, setting a world record of 48 2-5 seconds. This achievement has never been beaten.

But as motorization ended the picture, hand - drawn and horse - drawn firefighting apparatus faded into history. A hose reel racing trophy donated by Chief Weddell and last raced for in 1916, now rests at the new Trenton Fire Hall on Front Street.

The first full-time engineer for the department was Gales Coleman, hired on Sept. 26, 1913. He was hired to operate the steam engine, later in charge of the first motorized unit. Mr. Coleman died in 1933, and was replaced by several men in their turn.

Trenton's first motorized engine was a 1917 chain drive LaFrance pumper, complete with hard rubber tires and right hand drive. With the new engine, the fire hall proved too small and two front bays plus an upstairs living quarters were added.

The second vehicle, bought in 1923, was a Model T Ford hose truck, replaced in 1938 by a second-hand vehicle.

During the tenure of office of Chief Harry Filion, the town decided to increase and improve the department. In 1942, a second pumper truck was added, followed in 1951 with a Bickle-Seagrave pumper still in use today, that replaced the 1917 LaFrance.

It was also during Chief Filion's time that the town council passed a bylaw officially creating a fire department as of Oct. 12, 1950. A bylaw officially appointing a firefighter as chief was passed in 1959.

Up until then, official rank of the department head had been captain. The first man to hold this post was the late Over the years, the department has added an aerial truck, replaced one or two vehicles, and brought in a boat, motor and trailer, for river and bay duties.

The department's strength has also grown and changed. It now has a force of 20, including 18 volunteers. The full-time officers are Chief Ellis, Deputy Chief Henry Barr, Inspector Robert Haker, Inspector and Lieut. Frank Coleman, and Lieutenants Morris Mitts, Dennis Smith and William Denville, plus 10 firefighters.

On June 3, 1968, the new station on Front Street was officially opened, followed two weeks later by demolition of the old station that stood in what is now the market square parking lot. The old station fire bell was salvaged and mounted in a place of honor at the entrance to the new hall.

There have been some bad fires in the department's history. Most tragic was the Central Coal Storage fire of Sept. 18, 1958, when Chief Clarence Orser died during the heat of the firefighting action.

Chief Ellis recalls the hottest fire he can remember was the 1961 Dontlar blaze, when firefighters spent the night until 3 a.m. battling fires in chemical - soaked lumber and posts. Oily black smoke and flames were visible for miles around. "The heat was awful," he recalls.

Ross Burri of 182 Quinte Street, a firefighter from 1919 until 1935 when he first ran for council, recalls a blaze in 1910 that razed the old Gilmour Lumber Mill on the east shore of the Trent River at Number One Dam.

Gilmour Mills suffered a second loss at the same time. Round about 1913, Gilmour saw a mill, situated on what is now Centennial Park, was razed. A second firm, the Frobisher Mining Company, lost its ore crushing mill.

Coe Hill School Has A New Life

Coe Hill's old school house, once a community white elephant, has been turned into an activity centre.

The abandoned building, built in 1927, was renovated by the Hastings county board of education to house the Loyalist College greenware course, a carpentry class for public school children and a playschool for pre-school children.

Classes in sculpture under the direction of Rev. John Hopkins will be conducted in the school and future plans call for physical education and music classes to be held in conjunction with the regular program of the public school.

Chuck Hawke of Ormsby initiated the refurbishing of the school. He realized it could supply much-needed space for pupils and citizens of the community. The building has been empty since the new school was constructed in 1949.

Family Unity Church Theme

As part of its program to draw families closer together, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints is holding an open house for the public Feb. 6, at 7 p.m. at the church at 13 Palmer Road.

The film and presentation is called Why Families? and will outline the church's Family Home Evening program, an approach to family unity that has received world-wide acclaim. The family is encouraged to gather in a group to discuss their beliefs, and their goals and stimulate an exchange of ideas between parents and children.

Church Settled in Last Location

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

POINT ANNE — A 98-year-old church is marking its 60th anniversary here.

The situation is not as paradoxical as it sounds.

St. John's was raised in 1873, near the entrance to what is now the Quinte Exhibition grounds, for Anglican parishioners in the west end area of Belleville. Later it was moved to the Murney hill area of Isabel and Bridge Streets. It remained there 40 years — and was again moved.

The last move was the most dramatic as recounted by Mrs. Flowella Akey, president of the church's Friendship Group.

It was placed on skids and slid down the re-covered Bay of Quinte to this cement-company community's present site where it was dedicated Feb. 9, 1913.

Today, the trim, white frame structure betrays no other ills age nor its various dislocations. About the only object that obviously hints of age is the church Bible presented to Belleville's Christ Church in 1865 and 40 years later to St. John's. The original pulpit, lectern and nine pews also are still extant from its founding days.

Congregations have grown smaller over the years, Mrs. Akey admits.

The community itself is in the process of shrinkage. Canada Cement LaFarge, the corporate founder, recently a move to new, modern equipped works near Bath by September this year.

Nonetheless, Mrs. Akey believes St. John's will remain, with sufficient membership interested to retain it.

Today, the collection plate's not a sufficient source of funds to maintain the church. The fact it's in such good shape, despite its years and shiftings, is mainly due to the work of the Friendship Group, a band of women who raise funds through caters for various events, asserts Mrs. Akey.

"If the women's group didn't work there wouldn't be a church here. We sure couldn't afford it," she says.

The church — part of Quinte charge that includes Shannonville and Desoronto under the pastorship of Rev. F. C. Bell — will be there Sunday for its anniversary service.

Party Faithful Ignored Liberal Worker States

BATAWA — A past director of the Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal Association can't understand why his party doesn't make more political appointments.

Gerard Kavanagh of South Marysburgh Township said at the association's meeting here Wednesday, he has become increasingly discouraged by the Liberal party's failure to reward party faithful.

He said former prime minister, the late Mackenzie King, was disliked even by members of his own, party, but "he took care of Liberals."

"Not now," charged Mr. Kavanagh, a party worker since 1934.

He said as soon as John Diefenbaker and the Conservatives were elected to power, many Liberals were replaced. When they were defeated, the Conservative appointees remained, on the job.

"Our post office was run by a Liberal until Diefenbaker was elected. As we expected, the next day, our postmaster was out and a Conservative was in.

"But when Dief was out, no one changed, not even the route deliverers. They (the Liberal governors) even left the postmaster's family to run the post office when the postmaster died," he said.

"Not one Liberal gets one little thing. I'm not going to do much more for you fellows. I'm not asking for anything for myself, but something's wrong with the whole bloody works."

In answering Mr. Kavanagh, Ian Wahn, vice-president of the provincial Liberal party, said since the postmaster days of Eric Kierans, regulations for all postmasters' positions go to the persons who rank highest in qualifying tests. The job of drawing the mail are put out for tender.

Dr. Wilson did admit that political patronage on the provincial level by the Conservatives "galls us," but added that if federal appointments to any position are being considered, local committees of-fected should be consulted before the announcement is made.

George Cunningham, defeated federal candidate in the last election, said he personally knows of instances where people receiving grants have been told "remember where you got your help."

"It's time for the people of Ontario to stand up and say 'No more'." If that's the name of the game, that's the game you have to play by," he said.

Trenton businessman and unsuccessful 1971 Liberal provincial election candidate, Gerald Weaver pointed out that the provincial government has more opportunity for political patronage than the federal government which is governed by certain restrictions.

Biblical Names Unique in County

PICTON — Tourists in Prince Edward County frequently are directed by signposts seemingly stolen from the promised land.

As motorists drive north west from Bloomfield a sign indicating Gilead Road can be noted from the highway. In other areas of the county, similar markers point the way to Jericho, Bethel, Carmel, Bethesda and Christian Street.

A book called The County, co-authored by Barbara and Janet Lunn attributes this collection of Biblical names to the influence of a school teacher named Lucas who came to Adolphustown and preached to friends in his native Ulster. The Methodist Church was formed through his forceful teachings and its congregation's attitudes dictated the choice of road names.

In Demorestville where a thriving community lived sometimes in exuberance, the name Sodom was applied. To the village of Smith's Mills, five miles distant, the sister settlement of Gomorrah once flourished. Fortunately these nicknames did not prevail.

It has been suggested that Christian Street was so named because a farm burned was once built there without a fence over boundary lines with spouts.

In addition to its roads named from the Bible, Prince Edward County boasts quaintly dubbed communities such as Partridge Hollow, Cold Creek, Indian Point and Chuckery.

The small community of Cherry Valley is peculiarly devoid of cherry trees just as Consecon and Dessert lack evidence of its namesake.

Many local landmarks and settlements took the names of the settlers who first lived there among them Yerexville, Wondrous, Corners, Prinyers Cove and Dosser's. It has been stated in the book The County that Prince Edward boasts Biblical place names not duplicated by any other county in Ontario. For visitors these celestial markers provide a source of comment and part of this area's colorful history.

Trenton Group Officers Named

Members of the United Workers and Unemployed Organization in Trenton have recommended immediate rent control to the provincial government. The group has also requested the federal government's proposals to alter the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Loyalist Lounge Now Open for Students

Interior work on Loyalist College's newest building is almost completed, with only some furniture waiting to be put in place. One of the showpieces of the building is the long-awaited students' lounge, a two-story room with one glass wall overlooking the campus and a carpet-covered tier of steps for lounging. Now occupied, but still only semi-furnished is the circular library at the college, with winding staircase leading to a mezzanine floor.

Harrison Holds Own

By IAN MacLAINE

Harrison, who scored a pro record 10 points against New York Raiders Tuesday night, broke the hearts of 6,346 Winnipeg fans with a breakaway goal late in the game to give Alberta Oilers a 4-3 win over the Zeta in World Hockey Association action.

Elsewhere, Cleveland Crusaders edged Philadelphia Blazers 5-3, Chicago Cougars beat Ottawa Nationals 4-1 and Los Angeles Sharks upset New England Whalers 3-1.

Big Three Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top three teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series all won games Friday night, and although team standings were unchanged another race took an added interest.

Rod Bloomfield of Owen Sound Downtowners managed an assist to boost his league-leading total points to 51, but also his team fell 6-3 to Orillia Terriers in Orillia. Mike Draper of the Terriers picked up two assists and moved into a first-place tie with Bloomfield.

In other games Galt Hornets whalloped Belleville Quints 12-3 in Belleville, and at Barrie the Flyers downed Brantford Foresters 6-4.

Bloomfield moved his count to 26 goals and 25 assists while Draper's two helpers gave him 27 goals and 24 assists.

The teams were tied 2-2 after the first period and 3-3 after two. But three unanswered goals in the third period made all the difference for the Terriers.

Orillia remained two points in front of second-place Barrie. Galt, in third place, trails Barrie by nine.

At Belleville, three unanswered second-period goals gave Galt the winning margin. The Hornets led 2-0 after the first period.

A third-period goal by Pat Monahan and an empty-net tally from Ron Robinson clinched Barrie's victory over Brantford after the teams had entered the third period tied 4-4.

Pistons Feast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Playing Philadelphia 76ers is like taking candy from a baby at the National Basketball Association team.

The latest to get a little father off the young Philadelphians are Detroit Pistons.

"I'm just glad nobody got hurt," said Detroit coach Ray Scott after Friday night's 118-104 victory over the 76ers. "Everybody got to play and we just got to look at a lot of guys we needed to look at."

That's the way it's been going this year for the 76ers. Nobody takes them seriously. Friday night's loss was Philadelphia's 13th straight and the 76ers have won only four games in 56 decisions this year.

In the other games, Baltimore Bullets turned back New York Knicks 99-77, Atlanta Hawks nipped Boston Celtics 100-99, Milwaukee Bucks bounced Buffalo Braves 114-104, Los Angeles Lakers drubbed Houston Rockets 124-97 and Seattle SuperSonics stopped the Chicago Bulls 118-104.

Cleveland returns to Ottawa for a Sunday game and the Jets and Oilers meet again, this time at Edmonton. The Whalers and Sharks are in Los Angeles again and Quebec visits New York in the other games.

Harrison, a rangehy centre who had trouble getting started this season after suffering a cracked knee cap that sidelined him for 13 games, snuffed off a Winnipeg rally.

The Crusaders, playing before 8,212 on home ice, had to come from one-goal deficits three times before Wayne Muloin notched his second goal of the season at 14:47 of the second period to put Cleveland ahead for the first time.

Doug Brindley ensured the victory 25 seconds into the final period in a game that ended with Cleveland goaltender Gerry Cheevers picking up two successive minors 22 seconds apart in the final period.

Gerry Pinder, Paul Andrea and Grant Erickson notched the other Cleveland goals. John McKenzie, Andre Lacroix and Danny Lawson scored for the Blazers who were outshot 44-34 on the game.

Chicago ran its win string to five in front of 4,137 Cougar fans, paced by Bobby Hull-lock's two goals. However, they remained a distant sixth in the Western Division, 13 points behind Alberta.

Jim Benedick and Bob Lidington supplied the other offence in front of goaltender Ron McLeod who turned in a solid performance in the face of 38 shots.

Steve Warr broke his shutout at 13:34 of the second period.

Reiser Sets World Mark At Maple Leaf Games

TORONTO (CP) — Steve Smith of Los Angeles promised a world record, but it was two Canadians, one a Canadian who delivered at the Toronto Star Maple Leaf Indoor Games Friday night.

Smith tried and failed to break the world pole vault record, but Glenda Reiser of Ottawa and Iris Davis of Tennessee State University Tigerbells did come through—and they hadn't promised anything.

Reiser, a 17-year-old, ran the 1,000 yards in two minutes, 29.4 seconds, beating the old record of 2:32.2 set by Cathy Gibbon of the United States in Los Angeles last year.

Miss Reiser said she had learned a lesson at last summer's Olympic Games in Munich when she ran last in the 1,500-metre semi-final after fainting second in her heat.

"Now, we got to pace yourself," she said. "You've got to run your race, not theirs. That's the key."

And run her race she did. She took the lead after about 100 yards and fought off a challenge by Christa Marten of West Germany midway through the race.

In the last lap, she held off Robin Campbell, 14, of Washington, District of Columbia, as a record crowd of 15,949 urged them on.

Miss Davis, competing in the 60-yard dash in 5.5 seconds, clipping one-tenth of a second off the old record held by Wyomia Tyus, also of the Tigerbells, set in 1966 at the same meet.

Mattline Render of New York ran second in 5.7, but it was Davis' race all the way.

"My best time before was 5.7 and that was in the heat," said Davis, 22, from Pompano Beach, Fla. "I wasn't really trying for a record. I didn't feel I was really running that fast."

"But I guess I got some of the petition in my field, especially at this meet. The cows can be corned. I figure if I get out with them I have a good chance, no' record, too.

Lupenette Counts Two In Loss

Quebec Remparts strengthened their hold on first place in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League Friday night by manhandling Drummondville Rangers 8-3.

The Remparts now have 75 points, six more than Cornwall Royals, who were dumped 3-2 by Sherbrooke Beavers. Sorel Black Hawks downed Montreal Red, White and Blue 6-4 in the only other league game.

Bob Chase added one for Cornwall and Sherbrooke's Francois Rochon also scored.

In league action Sunday, Laval Nationals are at Cornwall, Drummondville plays in Trois-Rivieres, against the Ducs Shawinigan Bruins travels to Sorel and Montreal is at Sherbrooke.

Drapeau Defends Policies

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (CP) — A delegation from Montreal, here to explain the city's plans for the 1976 Summer Olympics to the international executive of the world body, is classic, enters the vital meeting here today in an apparent spirit of high confidence.

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and the city's Olympic commissioner general, Roger Rousseau, strongly defended their preparation policies when questioned about them by international journalists before the explanatory meeting.

"When the Olympics come for the first time to a country, you're bound to...have controversy," said Rousseau in answering a Friday night news conference question about the arguments which have flared around the Games in Canada.

"We're trying to decelate the costs and trying to get the world to pay for the Games," Rousseau said.

Drapeau, interpreting a Friday parliamentary statement by Prime Minister Trudeau as a green light for the Montreal games, said that construction work now can start in earnest after a period of such preliminaries as feasibility tests.

Trudeau, explaining his point about the world paying for the Olympic Games, said this is a major ilative by the Montreal planning committee.

They plan "to do it partly by selling special Olympic coins on an international basis than was the case with the Munich Olympic authorities last year.

The target is $250 million in coin sales with Canada accounting for about 25 per cent. West Germany, at 20, Britain 10 and with other countries making smaller contributions to this effort.

Rousseau sounded just as confident that this would bolster the Montreal committee's finances in a vital way, as Drapeau was in pedicting that the plans for housing athletes in Montreal in 1976 would work well.

The mayor also denied that the Olympic housing would constitute a 'ghetto' for the underprivileged when it is turned over for the use of Montrealers after 1976.

The meeting between the Montreal group and the International Olympic Committee's executive, headed by Lord Killanin of Ireland, was being held at the same Lausanne centre where the world officials are deliberating such matters as the 1976 Winter Games site.

Rousseau said that he cannot see how the committee can any longer consider Montreal's planning efforts unsatisfactory, especially after the latest 'green light' statement from Ottawa.

the Community Gardens and mix well with a team of former National Hockey League players and a squad of Trenton juveniles. The resulting Rotary Club's annual old-timers game Friday night fell quite a bit short of a hot ice evening.

As is often the case when the NHL oldtimers come to town, it's been the grazing and slightly paunchy crew last night in the battle of events. Even with their 4-1 victory over Birt's Handy Stand Juveniles, it was the pleasure of the crowd they were interested in.

Most of the real action took place in the second period, with four of the six goals scored within minutes of each other. By that time, the older players with the Ontario NHL Old-timers club were beginning to feel the strain.

Under the end of the period, Harry Pidherny, a former Boston player, had to be helped off the ice. Limping on two or three gal "injuries" of the game, Harry suffered a wrenched ankle and a few bruises when he collided heavily with a Trenton player.

But for the most part, it was a night for the kids. And there were lots of them around, climbing over seats hanging around the Old-timers bench for a chance at an autograph from one of the former professional players.

One of the several gal "injuries" resulted in so me water flying on the ice, followed by a bucket of confetti into the faces of the crowd. Ivan Irwin, former New York player, donned a blond wig, much to the amusement of the fans.

Scoring for the old-timers were Pete Conacher (Chicago and New York), Harry Watson (Toronto and Detroit and Chicago) and Ivan Irwin, former New York player. Even Brian McFarlane, of Hockey Night in Canada fame, managed to score on e the game, final . . . the announcer said it was his first.

For local fans with good memories, one of the visiting players who earned two assists was Ike Hildebrand, playing coach of the 1959 Belleville world-champion McFarland's. He went on to NHL time with New York and Chicago. Most of the players who came for the game here last night weren't what is considered NHL stars, with the exception of Andy Bathgate, formerly with the New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs. He assisted in the final third period McFarlane goals.

Birt's Handy Stand juveniles picked up an occasional point from the old vets, era, as well as a one-goal offering by Wayne Calberry in the second period.

Dailey's Size Could Be Factor In Early Selection By WHA

From Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — When it comes to drafting amateurs to stock the ranks of professional sport, an appropriate adage would be the bigger they are, the quicker they go.

Selection made in the recent National Football League draft underscored evidence. More than half the collegians chosen in the first round were beefy linemen with only a handful of running backs picked.

Next week the World Hockey Association plans to pick and choose from this year's graduating junkers. Early mention will no doubt go to Bob Dailey, the biggest player in the Ontario Major Junior A league. The draft will be staged in secrecy with supposedly only the teams and the players knowing for sure who wants who.

Dailey, a 6' 5" defenceman and former Trenton Midget, has drawn rave notices from coaches and scouts for his progress on Toronto Marlboro blueline. When he joined Toronto two seasons ago, his mature sizee attracted a good deal of attention. He has since added agility and confidence, stickhandling to his repertoire.

"My first year I was a bit leery of making mistakes," Dailey said, "I didn't want to handle the puck too much. Now I try to make more head up."

Dailey's steadiness on Marlies' defence this season is one reason they are firmly in first place. First year coach George Armstrong is also impressed with his leadership ability and made the 19-year-old his captain before the start of the season.

"I'm not the rah-rah type but I do like to get the guys going", said Dailey.

Signing a lot of Marties this season is the memory of a dismal playoff last year. Toronto finished 13 points ahead of the pack but flopped to a first-round defeat by Peterborough, eventual Memorial Cup finalists.

"We're a stronger club this year if we can just keep it together and a wo-d injuries", added Dailey who missed a few early games with a knee injury. "It's not like last year when we had one big line which played all the time and did most of the scoring. We're better balanced, but like Miami (football Dolphins), no big names but we win."

A member of last year's star-studded team, Dailey is lead over their rivals, 'nat Trenton native who opposed Dailey when the defencemen played at Gananoque and played alongside him at Trenton.

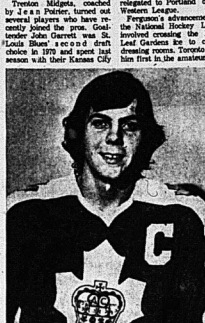
Born in Kingston, Dailey grew up in Gananoque where his father worked at nearby Joyceville Penitentiary. The Dailey's moved to Trenton when Bob was 14 after his father transferred to Warkworth.

Trenton Midgets, coached by Jean Poirier, turned out several players who have recently joined the pros. Goalkeeper John Garrett was St. Louis Blues' second draft choice in 1970 and spent last season with their Kansas City farm club. He was acquired by Chicago last summer and relegated to Portland of the Western League.

Ferguson's advancement to the National Hockey League involved creating the Maple Leaf Gardens ice to change dressing rooms. Toronto chose him first in the amateur draft and the 20-year-old forward has been one bright spot in a dark season for Leafs.

Dailey hopes to keep the feeder line going and would like to follow Ferguson into Leafs' lineup. He has retained Alan Eagleson, director of NHL Players Association and negotiator of Ferguson's rookie contract, to assess the offers from the two leagues.

While teams have already attempted to contact the bright prospect by telephone, but Dailey has not been home in his Scarborough boarding house. He can usually be found at the Gardens, since when he is not playing or practising he works upstairs in the accounting office.



Dailey does not watch much pro hockey (not in Toronto, he says) but he has a few ideas what is in store for him.

"They're faster and play more positional. You can't move around as much in the NHL. If you get out of position, they'll put the puck in the net on you," he said.

Positioning is a strong facet of Dailey's game as his robust build gives him a distinct advantage. A mammoth reach (with his stick as well as his fists) helps him patrol an ample amount of ice and his solidness keeps him solid where he pleases.

Dailey now likes to play at between 210 and 215 pounds. He went on training camp last season at 230 but found his play improved when he shed some weight. But the problem of poundage was never one of muscle than quantity, he explained.

"I've turned the baby fat into muscle," cracked Dailey.

Hockey Lancers Skin Cats

Loyalist hockey coach Bruce Cameron had a theory of how to beat the Algonquin Cats. "We have to go out and stomp all over them," he predicted before Friday's OCAA meeting.

Cameron's Lancers used that theory to their advantage to the third period as they bounced back from a 6-4 deficit to beat Algonquin 7 - 6 in their most crucial game to date. The victory gave Loyalist a 10-4 season record and moved them to within one point of the Cats as the two teams battle for the second and last playoff spot in the eastern division.

The home team had played aggressive hockey in the opening period to build a 3-2 lead over their rivals, but Algonquin bounced in midframe. The visitors used oils to their advantage in building a 6-4 lead.

The Lancers reverted to a hitting style in the third, but Algonquin was lighter defensive play to shut out the Cats' potent offence. Goalie Ron Carroll and bounced into the net for an unassisted marker.

Barry Boultree was the offensive star for the winners, netting a hat trick, inc.-ding

The Loyalist backstop pulled off a brilliant save on Algonquin's Mike Venaola

with just over a minute left to play in the game to prevent the visitors from tying the score. Caine sprawled in the ice to stop Venaola's initial shot and then got his stick in front of the rebound attempt while still in the prone position.

Gord Johnston scored the winning goal 2:28 of the third period, when his shot from the left side of the Algonquin end zone hit goalie Dan Carroll and bounced into the net for an unassisted marker.

Roantree credited left winger Brian Remington with his big night. Remington assisted on both of his third period goals, "I think he got two quick scores were the difference," said Roantree, "after that we just have to come back and wait for the breaks."

The Lancers were tagged with 15 of the game's 35 penalties.

Both defensive play by Loyalist kept the half time margin to 27-25 as the Lancer goalie Cats began to pull away. The loss was the fifth in 13 league games for Loyalist.

A full court press by the Algonquin in the third quarter proved to be the key to their victory. "It's the same old story," said Loyalist coach Bob Stinson. "We just don't seem to hold up under pressure."

Jim Norris hooped 15 points for the winners with Larry Hutchinson and Jeff Legault. Lancers it was Bill Kyle with 19 points and Ed Goody with eight.

Hornets Finally Recover Scoring Sting

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor

What's gold and black and bouncing back?

The Galt Hornets appeared to be a pretty good answer when they trounced the Belleville Quintes 9-3 in Friday night's OHA Senior A hockey meeting.

The defending league champs had look like chumps by the Quintes this season, losing three of four previous meetings. Their win last night not only avenged the 5-4 overtime edge to 3-2 but marked the first victory by the Hornets in the last eight outings.

"We were hustling Belleville tonight and we worked as a team rather than individuals," was coach Ken Schmidt's reason for the vastly improved showing by the Hornets.

Hoekstra also offered an explanation for the team's recent slump. "Our guys have figured that since we're Galt we just have to throw our sticks on the ice and we're going to win. We've found out that it doesn't work this way. Every team in the league now wants to beat us and they're up for the games. We're finding out that we have to work if we expect to win."

The coach was'able to find a silver lining in Galt's recent black hockey cloud. "It's as good a time as any to have a slump if you're going to have one. We've still got 30 or 12 games to get straight and stay away before the playoffs," he observed.

However, some inefficient netminding by Karl Bagnell allowed the visitors to pop in three unanswered goals.

Steve Bagnell covered at 4.42 from the top of the face-off circle before Ron Smith and Bruce Reier clicked on backhand shots. Darrell Hall ed to cut down the angle on Smith's tally which caught the far side of the net from the slot and failed to field Reier's easy 20-footer. It was one of the poorest home performances by the first year goalie who has been brilliant in his previous outings against Galt.

Defenceman Bob Edmunds cut the lead to 3-2 when he connected at 18.05 of the first as Pennington failed to cover the short side.

Reier scored the killing Galt goal as he broke down to right wing to take a goal-mouth pass from Kerzone to up his team's lead to 4-2. The Hornets scored two more unanswered goals in the middle frame to virtually assure themselves of victory.

They collected another two in the third period, including one by Reier to give him a hat trick.

The Quintes' final tally came when Wayne McConnell gipped a pass to Paul Gribbin in front of the Hornets' net and the centreman beat Pennington with a backhander.

Belleville will return home for a skirmish the middle

Bagnell faced 35 shots in the Belleville goal while Pennington was tested 27 times by the Quintes.

Golds Show Gains

By MIKE WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gold issues on major Canadian stock markets this week recorded their sharpest gains in several months but most other sectors closed lower as profit-taking flourished. Trading was moderate to active.

At Toronto, the gold index jumped 9.54 points on the week to 221.55, its highest closing level since early August. The metal during the week was also the largest since mid-May, 1972.

Demand for the precious metal continued strong despite rising prices. World production of gold declined 4.5 per cent last year with Canadian output alone off eight per cent.

France is also reported to be pressing for an increase in the official price of gold as part of a proposed reform of the world's monetary system.

Other sectors of Canadian markets, particularly industrials, continued to move lower throughout the week, a path that has been followed since the Vietnam ceasefire was announced.

Analysts continue to say the ceasefire should have no more than a minimal effect on the U.S. economy.

At Toronto, the industrial index, considered a major indicator of market trends, was off 1.65 on the week to 221.78.

At New York, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 key bluechip stocks plunged 22.73 points during the week to 889.81.

On the Montreal and Canadian markets, the composite index fell .83 to 232.80.

Total volume on the two exchanges was 11.13 million shares compared with 8.80 million a week earlier.

Trading at Toronto was moderate to active throughout the week with 14.18 million shares changing hands compared with 13.74 million the previous week.

Toronto's base metal index closed the week up 2.05 points higher at 97.81 while the western oil index climbed 4.34 points to 286.35.

The Toronto Stock Exchange reports total value of shares $753.3 million, an increase of 55.4 per cent over December's $483.5 million.

Volume on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges during January totalled 36.38 million at a value of $281.27 million compared with 32.16 million and $179.86 million in December.

Republican Veterans Denied Aid

MADRID (AP) — In a working man's neighborhood 15 minutes by subway from the heart of government, Florencio Martinez Duran lies sick, disabled and without income.

A veteran of the Spanish civil war, he lost a leg in the battle of Guadalajara, fighting the army of Gen. Francisco Franco.

Like perhaps 10,000 other disabled veterans from the losing Republican side, Martinez Duran has been treated as a non-person by the Franco regime.

Now, for the first time, there seems a chance the regime will reexamine the fate of these Republicans by giving them a pension.

There is no history, save accounts from the veterans themselves, of the hundreds of instances of discrimination in health care, jobs, housing and just ordinary living that the government has permitted against Republican disabled because they fought and bled for the "wrong" side.

"For 33 years we have not existed," says Martinez Duran.

Treatment by the ordinary Spaniard usually has been fair. But all help has come from private people, neighbors and friends, not from the powers that be.

"We don't want to mix up the affairs of the other side," he says, referring to the pensions and preferential job treatment France's disabled veterans have received since the war ended in 1939.

But at 56 he also speaks out: "We are the only disabled veterans of any war who have not received pensions. Italians, both Fascists and Marxists, get a pension. But not us."

Martinez Duran's hopes put a flicker in December when the first public show of the issue cropped up in parliament.

A former soldier on the Franco side, Manuel Escudero y Rueda, proposed that disabled Republican veterans be given a pension. He won qualified support from two Francos generals, but the show indicated tough going ahead.

Martinez Duran from his bed can see a colleague on the corner selling cigarettes. A few seconds' walk away, a man who legless selling cigarettes.

Canadian Ski Jumper Third

IRONWOOD, Mich. (CP) — "I felt just like a bullet, shooting through the air," said Jamie's Akitangi Konno after jumping 446 feet Friday to set a Copper Peak record.

"It was one of the best jumps I've ever seen," said Jim Balfanz, chief of competition at the Sky Flying Classic, 10 miles north of this upper peninsula com-munity. "If they keep this up, we'll threaten the world's record before Sunday."

Konno made his jump in near perfect weather, finishing ahead of Jerry Martin of Minneapolis and Peter Wilson of Ottawa. Ottawa's Richard Graves was fourth.

Wilson finished with jumps of 397 feet and 378 feet, and a total of 220.5 points. Graves best leap was 420 feet. His second leap of 215 feet amassed 310.5 points.

Tied for seventh was Kim Fripp, also of Ottawa, with 282 points.

"I think I can jump that far again," Wilson said, "but it depends on what kind of track we have tomorrow.

"It's in my mind though."

Canadian ski coach Slavomir Kardas of Thunder Bay, who himself finished 15th, had nothing but praise for his athletes.

"They can jump that far again. In fact Peter (Wilson) jumped two metres farther in Europe last winter."

Twenty-eight jumpers from Canada, United States and Japan are here to compete in the ski-flying classic. The victor will claim the North American championship.

Sky flying involves much longer distances than regular ski jumping. The hill is larger, and the lip of the takeoff is lowered to thrust the jumpers out to reach distances approaching 500 feet.

Konno, a silver medalist at the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, eclipsed the old Copper Peak record of 440 feet during a practice round Friday.

The old record was set by Norway's Zbynek Hubach in 1970.

Practice competition is judged on both form and distance, just as regular jumps. But practice points will only count towards final results if inclement weather cancelled either today's or Sunday's scheduled competition.

Konno's leap was surpassed by his Japanese team-mate, Seiji Aochi, who jumped 466 feet. But the jump was disallowed when Aochi fell near the end of the stopping zone.

Reaper tied for 10th with 271 points. Kardas had 252.5 points, Grady was 16th with 251, Marth 18th with 229 and Speers 20th with 217.5.

Leacock Lustreless

By DOROTHY SLOAN

A dramatic presentation of excerpts from Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town, by Stephen Leacock, was given on Thursday evening under the sponsorship of the Quinte Arts Council, at Centennial Secondary School.

The sketches were familiar pieces, dealing with the excursion of the Mariposa Belle, the affairs of Peter Pupkin, the Whitehall Club campaign to raise funds for the church and an account of the election proceedings in Mariposa.

There was a communication problem which seemed to be a matter of enunciation and acoustics and vitiated the effect of the gently subtle Leacock humor.

The unevenness of the vocal delivery ranged from lines directed to — and lost — in the atmosphere, to bombast which overshot the ear-drums.

Leacock's vignettes do not provide the kind of dramatic conflict that makes them easy to bring alive. Prestige it was unrealistic to expect that the evening would be a memorable one. The material depends heavily upon nuances and timing and it was unfortunate that both were missing.

The audience was unresponsive and the lack of feedback probably contributed to the fact that there were no sparks struck.

Unknown Heads Hawaiian Open

HONOLULU (AP) — Young Tom Watson looked surprised as he surveyed his lofty position four strokes in front of the field going into today's third round of the $700,000 Hawaiian open golf tournament.

"This is a new experience for me," the 23-year-old tour sophomore said. "I've never been in this position before. It will be a learning process for me for the next two rounds."

Resper tied for 10th with 271 points. Kardas had 252.5 points, Grady was 16th with 251, Marth 18th with 229 and Speers 20th with 217.5.

"Well, I told him it was foolish to wear all his skating medals!"

Tailbone Pains But Can't Grow

By G. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for the tailbone to become longer? Since my little girl was born 11 months ago my tailbone has been very painful. I fell on a hard surface (as in the game) and bruised it.

The doctor said it could be bruised but, to tell you, he couldn't find anything wrong. He did say I was a little slow in getting to gain a little weight on my backside.

My husband and I have snowmobiled for two years. Could this be the reason? Do you have any idea what can be done?— Mrs. D.G.

Put aside the idea that the coccyx (or tailbone) has grown longer. That doesn't happen.

However, pain in the region is not what you'd call rare. Quite a lot of falls have to struggle through a bout of that.

The pain (called coccygodynia) tends to worsen with spasm of the muscles attached to the tailbone, and that in turn ordinarily is the consequence of some injury or strain involving those muscles.

You've had this trouble since birth of the baby; it would be logical to assume that the muscles or related tissues were strained at that time. It happens sometimes in childbirth.

Most generally, the "treatment" you can give yourself is the most effective way of gradually overcoming the trouble. Heat, however, time and more pressure on the painful area does not help.

Spasm of the muscles can be relaxed by hot baths; in some cases physicians can massage the muscles through the rectum.

For the sake of accuracy, I must point out that infection in the area of the rectum or of the genital area in women can account for the pain that affects the coccyx.

Subduing the infection relieves the pain.

But since your doctor found no sign of such infection, that does not seem to be the source of the trouble in your case.

Should you mend yourself it make a pint f maintaining good posture, particularly when sitting. Avoid slumping; that aggravates the pain, since it puts more strain on those sensitive muscles.

Sit erect, and always on a firm but padded seat. Avoid overstuffed chairs or couches; you can hardly help slumping in them. Try padding in the bathtub, a folded towel will help. The secret is padding—but a little.

Watch your posture when driving or riding in a car.

As to snowmobiling, although safe in a sitting position are rather often the cause of tailbone pain. I would be inclined, on the basis of what you have told me, to think that difficulties rather than snowmobile caused your trouble in the first place.

But the bumping-sitting that can go with snowmobiling can prolong your trouble, so I'd act accordingly. If you are going to be, in fact, snowmobiling during this year, be careful to avoid any bumps.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♥	2 ♥
3 ♠

Opening lead—king of hearts.

A not-quite-square play is like the dado bird — rare but by no means extinct. Nonetheless, there are hands where this extra move makes its presence known — and here is such a case.

West commences hostilities with the ♥K A and another heart, ruffed by East. East makes the natural club return, the king forcing the ace, and declarer comes another club to South's queen. South now cashes the A-K-J of trumps and jack of clubs, whereupon this becomes the position:

	North
	♠9
	♥Q 7 6

♣—		♣9 8 4

	♦K Q J

South commences with the ten of spades and East finds himself in a most unenviable position. If he discards the five of diamonds, declarer stays a low diamond from dummy, following low from dummy, and East is endplayed. He makes a diamond trick, but no more.

East does no better if he discards the ten of diamonds on the ten of spades. In that case, declarer likewise plays a low diamond toward dummy, adjusting his play in accordance with the card West plays.

If West follows with the three of diamonds, declarer wins the six and East is endplayed.

If West follows with the nine. South covers with the queen, which loses to the king.

East now returns a diamond from the J 5 into South's A 8, which is all over him like a tent. East is helpless. However he does, he'll find the cost-out squeeze works like a charm.

Former Union Organizer Admits Forgery

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clive B. (Bud) Arnold, former union organizer, said on a radio program Friday he is the author of forged letters to Prime Minister Trudeau which attack the international labor movement.

Mr. Arnold said during an interview with Jack Webster on CJOR that he had tried to discredit two labor leaders to "attack the fraudulent methods of international unions who are reaping millions from Canadian workers."

The forged letters were purportedly signed by Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and Senator Ed Lawson, at the time a top Teamsters Union official in Canada.

Copies of the letters, received Monday, were also sent to some members of Parliament and news organizations.

A subsequent statement was issued by the Canadian Labor Reformation Service (CLRS) in Vancouver claiming responsibility for the letters and describing itself as non-profit organization financed by disgruntled members of American-dominated international unions.

Mr. Arnold, 33, is a former organizer with the United Steel workers of America and the Office and Technical Employees Union in British Columbia. In 1971 he worked in Sudbury, Ont., as an organizer for a new all-Canadian group, the United Metal and Mine Workers of Canada.

Mr. Arnold said in an interview later Friday that American-based unions have "lucrative and vast membership holdings in Canada." He said that between 1952 and 1962, these unions collected $89 million in net dues profits from Canadian locals.

He said the money could have been used in Canada to build labor colleges to educate and train union officials in collective bargaining, pollution measures and job safety programs.

Deflates Tire Duty

OTTAWA (CP) — Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) said Friday that Canada should react strongly to the United States decision to impose duties on tires manufactured by Michelin Tire Manufacturing Co. of Canada Ltd. in Nova Scotia.

Mr. Broadbent told the Commons the U.S. reasoning that the duties are justified because government assistance was involved in building the Michelin plants, gives Canada the opportunity to apply countervailing duties on all products shipped into Canada by companies assisted through the U.S. Domestic International Sales Corp. (DISC).

He said the DISC program is the same type of initiative employed on a thousand times" larger scale as that taken by Canada when it assisted Michelin through the government's regional economic expansion department.

Tried Switch

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — The News says a former employee of the Michelin Tire Canada Ltd. plant in nearby Granton has been arrested in Akron, Ohio, on charges of interstate transportation of stolen property.

The newspaper says the man was alleged to have tried to sell industrial secrets from Michelin to Firestone Tire of Akron.

Air Space Violated

QUANG TRI (Reuter) — A North Vietnamese MiG has flown over Quang Tri in the first ever intrusion of South Vietnamese air space, it was disclosed today.

Gen. Bui The Lan, commander of the South Vietnamese Marine Corps, said today the Russian-built MiG-17 made several passes over the ruined city Thursday.

Lan said the MiG flew south along the coast before turning inland and streaking over the city.

Lan said he believes the jet was on a reconnaissance mission. It was probably also intended as a morale booster to North Vietnamese troops on the edge of the city just south of the demilitarized zone dividing Vietnam.

Draft Dodgers Forgiven?

Amnesty Waits Better Climate

WASHINGTON (CP) — Some sort of amnesty for those who avoided or fled action in the Vietnam war is likely to come—but not until the political climate is favorable.

Despite President Nixon's firm stand against amnesty for military deserters and draft-dodgers, the feeling on Capitol Hill is growing that eventually forgiveness will come.

At the moment the United States is concentrating on what promises to be an emotional welcome for more than 500 prisoners of war.

In addition, there is the heart-searching hunt for 1,300 listed as missing in action.

This, many legislators fee, is no time to discuss forgiveness for those who evaded that war or fled from that action.

It is in this light, they say, that President Nixon's stern statement—"if they want to return, they must pay the penalty"—should be viewed.

Yet he was not always this firm on the subject. Early in his campaign he said he would be "very liberal" with regard to those who did not obey the call.

Another indication of how opinion can swing came from his opponent, George McGovern, who made a general call for amnesty early in his campaign. Six months later he reiterated, his stand but this time he excluded deserters. When he spoke on the subject again, he suggested alternative service as against unconditional pardon.

Undoubtedly, pressure during an election year contributed to the firmness of the president's stand. There now are signs of other pressure—to consider the problem of the evaders.

Henry Schwarzschild of the American Civil Liberties Union says that "it is an absurd and tragic irony if President Nixon can make peace with the enemy incarnate in Peking and Moscow and cannot make peace with the sons of our own country."

The justice department in 1969 prosecuted 996 cases of draft violation. Convictions ran 73 per cent—89 per cent of the guilty went to prison.

In 1971, there were 2,974 cases heard, with 25 per cent convictions. Of that number, 63 per cent won probation.

Some observers note that early draft evaders fled the country for beliefs that in later years might well have won them deferment.

Some legislators have introduced bills to soften the official stand against deserters and draft evaders. Nixon says he will not support such moves.

Those who return or are caught face a maximum sentence of five years and a $10,000 fine for draft dodgers.

Tenants Had Right To Bar Dog

OTTAWA (CP) — Residents of a condominium apartment building can legally ban pets from the building, an Ontario Supreme Court justice decided Friday.

In what was interpreted by some observers as a test case, Mr. Justice George Addy ordered Winifred Pierece to remove her dog from her apartment within 30 days.

Landlords of apartment buildings may forbid their tenants to keep pets, but there had been some confusion about the rights of tenants in condominiums, where residents own their apartments and a share of common space like hallways.

Justice Addy said that it is a principle of common law that private property can be put to almost any use that the owner wishes. But he held that the Condominium Act limits this right.

The other residents in Mrs. Pierce's condominium voted to ban pets.

Bell Under Labor Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress says Bell Canada is a "prime candidate for public ownership."

In a written submission to the Canadian transport commission, the CLC says Bell's "cavalier treatment" of the public would justify nationalization.

The brief, released Friday, was commenting on Bell's latest application for telephone rate increases. The company is asking for tariff increases which would yield an additional $38 million in revenue if in effect through 1973.

The Bell application, fourth in the last four years, is now being considered by the transport commission at public hearings. Bell territory includes Ontario, Quebec and Labrador.

Cornwall Police Foiled

Only Hostages Remain in Bank

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Three armed gunmen escaped from a Bank of Montreal branch here about two hours before one of nine hostages inside untied herself and telephoned police to tell them to enter the building.

Police said the three gunmen were accompanied by a lookout man and escaped in the bank manager's 1965 Rambler sedan. They denied a report that the gunmen took a hostage.

At least one police roadblock was set up outside Cornwall. Two police cars were noticed on Highway 401, 20 miles west of Cornwall. One policeman, armed with a shotgun, stood by while two others checked cars.

Earlier reports indicated the gunmen had escaped through police blockades set up in a two-block radius around the bank in a residential district about a mile from the downtown area. But these were later denied by police.

"We didn't have it surrounded," said Sgt. Herbert Raymond of city police. "They escaped before we had the place surrounded.

Police entered the bank about 11:10 a.m. EST and freed the hostages who included bank manager Robert Evans and assistant manager Angus Robertson. None was injured.

The bank vault had not been opened.

Descriptions of the gunmen were given to police by the hostages who were taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Mr. Evans told police the three men armed with sawed-off shotguns and masked entered his home near Martintown, eight miles east of here about 10 p.m. Sunday and tied up him, his wife and three children.

They held the family at gunpoint throughout the night.

Mrs. Evans was able to untie herself by about 9:05 a.m. and warn of trouble inside.

They had just received a call from Helen Gilham, a bank employee who had arrived late for work and noticed from the outside a pre-arranged signal to warn of trouble inside.

An estimated 15 to 20 city police and a half-dozen provincial police cruisers, with machine-guns and shotguns, surrounded the bank.

Two hours later the employee inside, who was unidentified, untied herself and called police.

Klondike Cut-ups

Klondike Night at Ben Bleecker Auditorium Saturday didn't attract many costumed guests, but at least two men got into the swing of Winter Carnival festivities. They were John Binnie and Bill "Jady", Bid Alcorn. The Kinsmen Club of Bellevilla sponsored the dance, that also featured a beard-growing contest. For carnival stories, see Page 3.

Troops Kill 6 Snipers

BELFAST (CP) — Gunfire continued to ring through the streets of Belfast early today as the death toll in one of Northern Ireland's bloodiest weekends rose to 10. More than 20 persons were wounded.

The latest victim was an 18-year-old Roman Catholic who died in hospital today. He was shot in the head at a gas station where he worked.

Seven of the deaths occurred early Sunday morning in the Catholic New Lodge area. An army spokesman said troops moved into the area to investigate after shots were fired from a passing car at a crowd outside a restaurant, killing one man and wounding several others.

The army says the troops came under heavy fire and fired back, killing six snipers and wounding two.

Local residents and the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army disputed the army version of the incident. They said the dead were innocent bystanders.

The Social Democratic and Labor Party, the main Catholic political group in Northern Ireland, called for an inquiry into the New Lodge shootings.

The two other dead during the weekend were a 58-year-old Roman Catholic fish-shop owner who was shot at point-blank range by two youths who entered his shop. And a 30-year-old Protestant was found dead beside a canal.

Police identified the Protestant as Ralph Boyd and said he had been beaten, stabbed in the chest and throat and branded. A doctor said he did not die until his torturers put a bullet through his brain. The killing was described by police as one of the "most horrific we have had."

The violence continued today as police reported a rash of sniping incidents and said they hit two gunmen.

Made a Lot Scream

MIAMI BEACH (REUTER) — A 49-year old man was arrested Saturday and accused of setting a fire in a crowded cafeteria which injured 139 persons, most of them elderly. Fourteen are in critical condition.

Police booked Charles Reardon of Bal Harbor—Fla., on charges of arson and throwing a destructive device following 12 hours of questioning.

Reardon walked into the Miami Beach police station 22 minutes after the fire and told police: "I've done something terrible. I've made a lot of people scream."

Police said a man entered the Concord cafeteria on lower Collins avenue, along the beach front, at about 11:10 p.m. Friday carrying a glass jar filled with a clear fluid. Witnesses among the 250 persons in the cafeteria said the man poured the contents on the floor and then dropped a match.

Several witnesses said they saw the arsonist flee in a panel truck, driven by a second man. The truck was found abandoned about five blocks away.

Officer Wounded By Shotgun Blast

TORONTO (CP) — A 36-year-old Toronto policeman was released from hospital Sunday after being treated for neck wounds received in a shooting incident Saturday night in the borough of Scarborough.

Constable Harry Burridge was shot while he and another unarmed but uniformed officer, Constable Frank Smith, were driving home in Constable Smith's car at about 11 p.m.

Constable Burridge was struck in the neck from short range by a shotgun blast. It was the second shooting of a city constable in three days and the third since the New Year.

Police have charged Ian James Patterson, 20, of Toronto, with attempted murder. He was arrested in a car which struck a hydro pole about a mile from the scene of the shooting.

Police said he is in fair condition in hospital with self-inflicted shotgun wounds which damaged his jaw, tongue, nosh and sinus bones. A .410-calibre shotgun was seized.

Off-duty Toronto police have left their cars at station houses since a ruling in 1962.

Constable Burridge said the shooting happened when Constable Smith stopped his car for a red light about 1,500 feet from the police station.

"There was a loud bang at the right side of the car," he said.

"I was showered with glass from the window. And the car beside us sped away.

"There was a sudden numbness and then a slight burning sensation of my neck and head."

Doctors removed three of eight pellets which struck Constable Burridge.

"There's still five pellets in my neck and they'll come out in work their way out," he said.

"The window took the brunt of the force—how much it reduced the blast, I don't know, but probably saved my life."

Constable Syd Brown of Toronto, president of the Canadian Police Association, said Sunday police officers should always carry their guns when in uniform.

Commenting on the latest shooting, Constable Brown said that regulations prevent off-duty police turn in their guns at the station when they finish a shift and pick them up when they start work.

"If the man is in uniform he should be fully dressed, which includes his gun. He runs into an incident on his way home he should have his gun on or else he may run into trouble."

South Vietnam Fighting Continuing to Slacken

SAIGON (CP) — Fighting in South Vietnam continued to slack off today as members of the International Commission for Control and Supervision of the ceasefire took their posts throughout the country.

Five officers from each of the four countries on the ICCS—Canada, Poland, Indonesia and Hungary—flew for Da Nang and Pleiku. A bus carrying another 28 officers drove to the town of My Tho in the Mekong Delta. Three more teams left by air or bus for Bien Hoa, Can Tho and Phan Thiet. The three other bases the peacekeeping force is to occupy.

In other developments, Michel Gauvin of Canada, acting head of the ICCS, said arrangements are being made for the release of prisoners—including two Canadians—this week, "probably by the middle of the week."

U.S. officials said U.S. aircraft and ships might soon be cleared for action in the U.S. Navy planted in North Vietnamese waters last year.

Despite the decrease in the fighting, U.S. B-52 bombers and fighter-bombers continued operations over Laos Sunday at the request of the Laotian government, U.S. spokesmen said.

U.S. officials were reported planning to receive one of the first groups of prisoners in the Ao Loc area, 95 miles north of Saigon and 19 miles from the Cambodian border. A subcommission of the four-power Joint Military Commission met for the third successive day in an effort to make final arrangements for the first phase of the prisoner release.

The two Canadian prisoners are Marc Cayer of St. Raymond, Qu., a civilian volunteer teacher captured in 1968, and missionary Lucian Oppel of Courtenay, B.C., seized when a southern Laotian village was overrun last October.

Canadians Battle Saigon Pickpockets

SAIGON (CP) — About the only major battle faced by Canadian military men here so far has been against the Vietnamese Moc Tui, the light-fingered pickpockets that abound in downtown Saigon.

So far they have dealt successfully with bedbugs, and have gained ground in an assault on giant cockroaches, mosquitoes and other biting insects.

But the Moc Tui continue to maintain their offensive and the Canadians are fighting back with undercover moves of their own.

"Some of the guys have taken to wearing money belts," said Maj. Vance MacDougall of Toronto. "Others have had secret pockets sewn into their uniforms.

"They are real smooth characters," said Maj. MacDougall who is with the military police here.

Maj. MacDougall said some of the men have all but given up the practice of carrying money in two pockets with the full expectation of losing at least part of it.

The man who carries his passport inside his shirt, said one of the favorite ploys is for kids to wrap themselves around the legs of the suspected victim.

Shy? Try An Ad

"I love you," he says.
"I love you," she says.
Just three little words that speak reams — colored volumes for people.
Simple, isn't it? Or is it?
Love is perhaps the most difficult symptom of the human condition to articulate successfully.
It wasn't just the litters that made Valentine's Day a centuries - old institution. In fact, the exchanges of greetings grew to such a cascade a long time ago, industry was swamped to keep the flow going.
Since corpumindustrin is The Intelligencer's business, 11th columns seemed a natural outlet for the exchange in the community.
So, the newspaper this year has organized a special classified advertising column for what it calls "person - to person" exchanges of Valentine's Day messages.
But, the staff in charges of the project, consciously or subconsciously — must have recognized this sometimes that simple to say 'I love you."
Promotion for the column — for publication Wednesday, Feb. 14 — however is subject to changes to run up to 25 words!

Mr. Bell's wife, Gwen, was a passenger in the car, a 1969 Ford. The Ford, owned by Mrs. Bell, was heading west at the time of the accident.
Damage to the cars was estimated at a total of more than $600. Mr. Bell was treated and discharged at Belleville General Hospital for a knee injury.

Parade Kicks Off Carnival

TRENTON — After many hours of hard work, gallons of paint and a lot of enthusiasm, CFB Trenton's first winter carnival began Saturday with a parade. The provincial theme created quite a bit of rivalry among competitors who will take part in a variety of contests this coming week.
At the end of it all, winners of the events will be judged and a winning province announced. At the big wrapup dance Saturday night at the base.
Unfortunately, rain virtually washed away the snow sculpture entries, but the reminder of events are expected to continue during the week.
Announcement of which provincial float was judged best, will also be made Saturday.

River High, But Safe

The Moira River is running higher than normal — but cooler weather is acting as a safeguard against flooding, say emergency and conservation officials.
Recent rains and warm temperatures — causing ground runoff along the Moira watershed — have been major contributors to "almost - like spring" water marks, said a Moira River Conservation Authority spokesman today.
Levels vary in different areas, but the norm is probably about two feet higher than usual for this time of year, says James McGeachie, authority secretary-treasurer.
In Downview Belleville, where flooding is an historic fear of the city's central commercial core, no problems were reported by officials due to any higher water mark.

Man Arrested

Allan Percy Frauts, 21, of 70 Dominion St., was arrested by city police after they received a call from the night's promoters, the Kinsmen Club of Belleville.

In fact, in the city, where the river threatened to breech the top of its banks at Victoria Park two weeks ago when jammed by blocks of slush ice, the water is actually reported receding.
Angus Duffy, co-ordinator, Quinte Emergency Measures Organization, said a check late Sunday night showed the river had dropped about 18 inches from its threatened overflow mark.
A big factor was clearance of slush ice Friday from the channel separating the river into the Bay of Quinte by the city works department. This kept the channel open'tn time to receive the ice that was caused later Friday and Saturday by heavy rains.
The city works department now has hoisting machinery permanently stationed on the most crucial spot in the channel — just south of the CP bridge — ready to begin operations in case a threat occurs.
Current drop in temperatures gives flood-visit officials an assist, since it freezes ground around, said the conservation official.
Best kind of weather sees temperatures rise 10 to 15 degree range, low enough to hold the runoff but not create dangerous volumes of slush ice.

Searchers Optimistic

TRENTON — More than normal optimism could be sensed among the spotters today taking part in the 12-day search for an aircraft missing with four aboard in the Quebec wilderness between Montreal and Val d'Or.
Until today, when skies cleared, spokesmen at the Search and Rescue Centre at CFB Trenton revealed the search had been hampered by poor flying an d'unusual' icing conditions at low altitudes. With the weather cleared, flying at lower altitudes is permitted for spotting conditions.
A long-range Hercules aircraft, with veteran observers aboard, flew out of here today to join other aircraft in the search.
The missing plane, a Beech-craft Baron, with a signal direction finder, disappeared on the 200 mile flight from Montreal Jan. 28 and since then there have been no clues to its whereabouts.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls this weekend.
Saturday — 2:52 p.m. — Hillview Towers; false alarm.
3:51 p.m. — Quinte Mall car engine fire, minor damage.
Sunday — 3:47 p.m. — Dorick's Island; railroad ties ignited intentionally.
6:02 p.m. — In front of Walker's Hardware; trash containers set on fire.

DO YOU HAVE A CHRONIC COUGH?

If you have a cough that has been hanging around for a month or more than you have a chronic cough. It doesn't matter what you call cough at certain times; morning, night, etc. If its more than a month, it's chronic.

CHRONIC COUGH IS A SYMPTON

A chronic cough is not by itself a disease but rather a sign of something wrong with your breathing apparatus. A cough medicine may help the cough but it could be masking the underlying illness. It is usually not wise to take cough medicine for more than a week or so unless your doctor tells you to.

SOME CAUSES OF CHRONIC COUGH

The most likely causes of chronic cough are tuberculosis, cancer, bronchitis, bronchiectasis (pus pockets form along the tubes), emphysema and other respiratory diseases.

TREATMENT MUST START EARLY

The instant you realize that you have a chronic cough, see your physician. He can make a number of tests to find out if a respiratory disease is the cause and start the proper treatment early.

FIND OUT WHY

If you are going through too many bottles of cough medicine or you always seem to have a persistent cough, you owe it to yourself to learn about it. Sure, we sell these products but we believe your job is to determine why your cough is something minor.

Hovercraft Steals Zwick's Show

Like a rampaging vacuum-cleaner to look at and a super-charged ballet dancer to ride, the Spectra II hovercraft was the unannounced star of the Zwick's Island show for Winter Carnival Sunday.

Treacherous ice conditions on the Bay of Quinte and the lack of snow which had cancelled out many other planned activities, were no handicap for the fast skimming air cushin vehicle (ACV) driven by Rollie Bonneau and provided by Bill Warren, vice-president MHV Industries Ltd. the all - Canadian, Ottawa - based ACV manufacturing company.

the Bay Bridge, crippling the machine until a torn skirt could be repaired. Driver Rollie Bonneau was uninjured and other damage to the craft was slight.

Jack Buyers of 34 Montrose Rd. and Mario De Castris of RR 7 Belleville also had their recreational hovercrafts out on the bay and helped Belleville City Police pull the Spectra II off the rocks. Mr. Beyers and Mr. De Castris own Spectra Is, forerunner of the more streamlined Spectra II.

Ashers, the rope was taut and muscles strained as the Belleville Kiwanis Club battled out the final round of the tug-of-war with the Belleville Lions Club. There was no more than talk of fastening one team's end of the rope to a conveniently placed tree, and after a close, energetically-fought third round, the Lions gained their victory.

Hugh Dyment of Loyalist College's Outward Bound and Dave Graham, a student at Loyalist College, set up camp at the park and attracted interest with their display of camping and outdoor equipment and their tips on comfort and survival in the wilds.

"All the comments I've heard has said that this has been the best Winter Carnival we've had," he said. "All in we've had," he said. "All in four days."

Dock Washrooms Lose in Committee

TRENTON — Town council has decided not to spend $2,000 and receive grants of $2,000 more for construction of public washroom and shower facilities on the government dock.

In report of committee of the whole, to be presented tonight to town council, says that because of potential vandalism problems, the plans should be scrapped. This is the recommendation of the administrative board.

When the project was proposed during the Jan. 22 council meeting, some concern was registered that the facilities were being specifically designed for summer boating tourist trade.

Councillor Edward Todd said he felt "that's a lot of money to spend for boating for six months. Those facilities will be made available, but people shopping downtown can't use them," he said at the meeting.

Council learned from acting works commissioner Arie Hoorweg that a full - time attendant is on duty at a nearby confection stand during the days, and would be in charge of the facility.

The administrative board feels the very public nature of the facilities would invite damage. Council will vote on this tonight.

Students Said Unable To Handle Our Language

"We are reverting steadily but obviously to a nation of semi-literate people."

This is the theme of another broadside fired by Quinte Secondary School teacher Alan Deacon to education minister Thomas Wells.

Mr. Deacon's recent letter is the second of his campaign to arrest "the slow erosion of the quality of education across this province.

"Students," contends Mr. Deacon, "have been receiving less training in effective use of language and in a disciplined approach to work than was true in the past.

"It is a distressing fact that high schools receive many students who cannot read at, to or close to their grade level, and a very few who are actually incapable of reading at all. Similarly, high schools receive students who often are incapable of writing a complete sentence, even a ungrammatical one. Sadly, these students cannot even recognize a complete sentence of the very simplest nature when they are shown it."

Mr. Deacon's comments came at a time when post-secondary institutions and employers are complaining about the poor knowledge of English exhibited by high school graduates.

Two universities, Waterloo and Guelph, have called for compulsory high school courses in English for students entering the faculty of arts at their institutions.

The fault, contends Mr. Deacon, lies in ministry of education.

High school graduates, he says, perform badly in English because the basics are not stressed in school. The fault lies with "ill-considered" changes brought in by the ministry of education.

Pupils now enter elementary schools with a larger vocabulary than ever but they don't know how to put words together, or how to put their language to work.

"Few (students) ever gain an understanding of the basic structure of the language (are) so glibly mangle," says Mr. Deacon.

He advocates the introduction of Latin at the grade 7 or 8 level "to aid and abet the learning of the basics".

"Some things in both elementary school and secondary school must be compulsory and language skills must be 'oil of them,' says Mr. Deacon. "Discipline must be the other."

Part of the reason for the increased incidence of emotional disturbance among young people stems from lack of authority, claims Mr. Deacon.

In his letter to the minister, Mr. Deacon calls for "a disciplined, logical approach" to learning and emphasis on the structure of English and ability to use vocabulary.

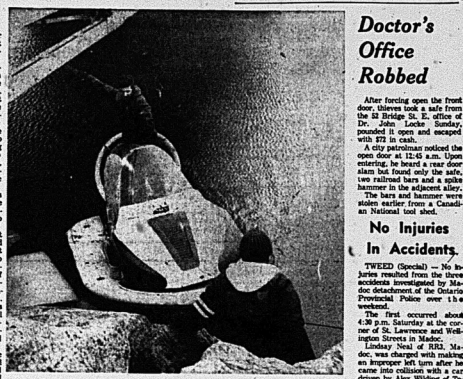
Richmond and Tyendinaga Townships

Thursday, February 8, 1973



7:30 p.m.

Tyendinaga Township Hall - Melrose

A new study is in progress to find the best location for the East - West transmission lines from Lennox to Oshawa.

At this early stage in the study it is important that YOUR views be made known.

This meeting has been arranged jointly by Richmond and Tyendinaga Township councils in co-operation with ONTARIO HYDRO.

Doctor's Office Robbed

After forcing open the front door, thieves took a safe from the 52 Bridge St. E. office of Dr. John C. Locker Sunday, pounded it open and escaped with $72 in cash.

A city patrolman noticed the open door at 12:45 a.m. Upon entering, he heard a car door slam but found only the safe, two rallied bars and a spike hammer in the adjacent alley.

The bars and hammer were stolen earlier from a Canadian National tool shed.

No Injuries In Accidents

TWEED (Special) — No injuries resulted from the three accidents investigated by Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police over the weekend.

The first occurred about 4:30 p.m. Saturday at the corner of St. Lawrence and Wellington Streets in Madoc.

Lindsay Neal of RR3, Madoc, was charged with making an improper left turn after he came into collision with a car driven by Alex Wilding of Toronto. Damage to the Neal car was $200 and to the Wilding car $300.

Angus Vincent Farrell of Wilsley, formerly of Tweed, went out of control early Sunday morning on the 4th concession road leading into Vanderwater Park, hit a rock pile and did $250 damage to his car.

Douglas Robert Francis of RR3, Madoc, was charged with careless driving after he hit two parked cars, both owned by Scarborough residents, at a crossroads on the old Marmora Rd. The mishap occurred about 7:30 a.m. Sunday, when Mr. Francis was attempting to make a turn at skidded into the two cars whose drivers were not in their vehicles at the time. Damage to the Scarborough cars totalled $750 and to the Francis car was $200.

On the Rocks

Spectra II driver Rollie Bonneau is helped off rocks under the Bay Bridge Sunday afternoon. A lost left in the hovercraft's cockpit during maintenance work jammed the throttle open and Mr. Bonneau lost control of the craft. It ran onto the rocks tearing the skirt and partially disabling the craft until the tear could be mended. Mr. Bonneau was uninjured and other damage slight. Spectra II was the property of the Zwick's Island Park Winter Carnival displays Sunday.

Beards Out of Style?

If the response to the Winter Carnival's beard growing competition is any indication, full facial foliage is going out of style in Belleville.

Only five contestants entered the race to determine the fullest beard, the best groomed and the over-all winner.

Judges Nev Burroughs, Jim Driscoll and Dick Lumbers finally gave Bruce, Prindle of 93 Octavia St. the trophy for fullest beard. David Brown of 55 Wright Ave. was judged to have the best groomed beard, with Cecil Mattier of 24 Gilbert St. runner-up. Best over-all was John Craig of 131 Albert St.

The contest, sponsored by Bill Kuipers of the Quinte Hotel Barbershop, was held at Klondike Night at Ben Bleeck-er auditorium Saturday.

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville sponsored the dance that featured the Commodores orchestra and Woody Reid and Momma Kat to inspire the dancers in a Gay Nineties setting along.

Winner of the door prize was Mrs. Stan Wiggins. The prize was a night on the town in Toronto, including accommodation and dinner donated by the Four Seasons, two red tickets for a New York hockey game, donated by H. J. McFaigal, and $50 spending money donated by the Kinsmen Club.

About 400 attended the dance.

Spinal Injury In Collision

The driver of a 1972 LTD car was admitted to Belleville General Hospital Saturday after his car ran off Highway 2 at Point Anne Lane east of Belleville.

His car left the road just west of the Point Anne intersection, at approximately 1 p.m. It tore through a fence and bounced over several rocks before coming to rest against a hay rake. Police said the fence apparently did most of the estimated $1,000-plus damage to the car.

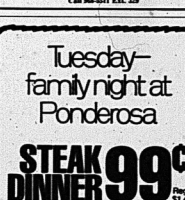
Heave-Ho

Roger Harver is backed up by Dick Lumbers and five other Belleville Kiwanians on the Tug-of-War rope at Zwick's Island Park Sunday. Belleville Lions gained an edge on the Kiwanians to win the trophy.



Car Just Misses River

A Belleville man escaped death and serious injury Friday afternoon when his 1959 Chevrolet car plunged within a few feet of the fast-flowing Moira River.

The 18-year-old was headed south on Canniffon Rd., when his car left the road just south of Latier's Dam. It crashed down a 20-foot drop, to be halted by collision with a tree.

Extensive damage was done to the car, and the youth was taken to Belleville General Hospital for treatment.

Too Much Crime

There are those who believe the death penalty is not a deterrent to crime. To this we say, if it is not a deterrent then what is? As it is, the coddling of criminals has become the norm in this country and is no serious deterrent. And we are thinking of premeditated crime as distinct from crimes of passion when insanity, inherent or temporary, may be involved.

A new member of parliament, Ian Arrol (PC, York East) said it best when he told the Commons last week that there is a growing tendency to idolize the misfits of humanity and deride "the doers," those who pay taxes, hold down jobs and live law-abiding lives.

And that is just about the size of it. Meanwhile, another policeman has been killed in Toronto and the city's police chief, Harold Adamson, has warned that if the circumstances continue 'we can compare Metro to many cities on the American continent."

The chief is highly critical of his cruisers' radio system, describing it as "totally inadequate." This is all the more lamentable for the fact that a radio tower the police have suggested has been blocked down by the Ontario Municipal Board. By such shortsightedness do the arms of Government become party to the criminality which increasingly is plaguing Toronto. And who knows where it will end? Chief Adamson, not surprisingly, is also critical of the new Bail Reform Act. He says there are many people on the streets who should not be on the streets.

Some other straws in the winds of crime: "Crime is spreading all over the world. Perverts agree, it is now far more dangerous here. But how long, how long?" The speaker — Stacy Weiner, a 27-year-old former teacher and unemployed actress who lives in New York. She was one of several young women interviewed on the problems of safety for a single girl in the big city. Other major U.S. cities have their perils too.

Again, in Toronto, columnist Scott Young has written of the dangers of hitchhiking by young women who increasingly are taking to this form of travel.

But to get back to our original theme, whichever way the vote on the death penalty goes, Canada will have to face up to the fact that things are now too easy for wrongdoers, while law-abiding members of the public are being placed more and more in jeopardy.

Army Fights Guerillas

Portugal Is Determined To Hold Its African Colonies

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Amilcar Cabral, the Portuguese-educated guerrilla leader in the Portuguese West African Colony of Guinea is the second major rebel against Portuguese rule in Africa to be assassinated since 1969.

Three years ago it was the turn to die of the better-known Dr. Eduardo Mondlane, leader of the Mozambique Liberation Front or Frelimo. He was determined to make Portuguese East Africa into another new independent African nation.

Mr. Cabral's death was almost blotted out from the world's news by greater events in Vietnam. But his cause, the victory of a peoples' liberation movement is the same as that of the North Vietcamese and Vietcong in Indochina and almost as long lasting.

The growing resistance against Portugal's rule is a widely held mandate in Africa where that small Iberian nation still has the world's largest colonial empire, has involved all the Portuguese African possessions.

These are Guinea, a swampy, economically backward enclave next door to the Marxist republic of the same name, Angola or Portuguese West Africa, a hugh large, and prosperous colony, Mozambique or Portuguese East Africa, the same.

Portugal's resistance to her anti-colonial wars has sapped that small country's limited resources for more than a decade. Between 40 and 50 per cent of her total budget goes to her military largely based in Africa.

The Portuguese formula of declaring her colonies part of Portugal, although they hold it water in a continent full of nationalistic, post-colonial countries.

Nearly all of these through membership in the Organization of African Unity or through independent action, openly support the Portuguese African Liberation movements with arms, money, and some economic aid.

Dar-es-Salaam, Tanzania's capital, is the home of more than one Portuguese African liberation organization.

This city was also home to the urbane Portuguese University-educated Dr. Mondlane, who had hoped in his lifetime to take his place along side Nyerere of Tanzania and Kenyatta of Kenya as president of an independent black nation in Mozambique.

The major difference between the struggle for liberation against Portuguese colonialism and that of South Africa's apartheid society has become a major Brazilian contribution to racial harmony in Latin America.

The so-called "Assimilados" from Africa, is that the Portuguese have every intention of holding on indefinitely.

They do this for cultural and historic reasons which the British and French did not use. The Portuguese through their strong use of miscegenation (intermarriage of race, language, and culture) which they practised earlier in Brazil, cling to the concept that because of it, their homeland and Africa are indistinguishable.

In practice it hasn't worked nearly as well as in Brazil where the multi-racial society has become a major Brazilian contribution to racial harmony in Latin America.

The so-called "Assimilados" that is the "assimilated ones" in Portuguese African colonies, are overwhelmingly outnumbered by pure African most of whom, as in Belgium's former Congo or France's former Central African Empire, have the advantages of education in the metropolitan country.

The Africans who have assimilated Cabral and Mondlane, the African living national leaders were products of a European education. Portugal has been committed to its destruction in Africa.

The wars of the future for wars of liberation in Portugal's African empire is temporarily calmed with the loss of these two key men.

Bitter-Sweet

These are difficult days for those who cater to the youngsters and to sweet tooths generally via the candy bar.

A letter from Cyril W. Balman, general-manager of the Confectionary Association of Canada, which has as its motto "Candy is Good Food," reveals some of the problems of the industry.

Mr. Balmen speaks of the "catastrophic" results of the rise by just one cent to six cents of popular candy products. That was back in 1968 and it resulted in a decline in sales — after years of slow but steady growth — of 39 per cent within a year.

One internationally-known candy — a long-time favorite of youngsters — experienced a drop in sales from some 580,000 boxes by early 1968 to 245,000 boxes by the end of 1969. Dollar sales in the same period dropped from $999,000 to $421,000. The consequences were bad also for the national coffers, the sales drop meaning $170,000 less in corporation taxes for the Government. It meant also a decline in employment.

"That is only part of the sad story of what happens in our industry," says Mr. Balman, "when we are compelled to depart from traditional pricing methods — remember that people are tuned to 'five-cent' and 'ten-cent' candy values."

Mr. Balmen also has a cogent argument against the 12 per cent federal sales tax on confectionary products when he says "our products are made of ingredients which any Canadian may purchase at the local grocery store and in that form are not taxed."

The figures quoted by Mr. Balman show that the public is not necessarily prepared to accept blindly each and every price rise, even if it hurts to do without. It is apparent that a lot of kids and their mums and dads have been going without their candy bars. All of which is bad for the industry and the economy generally.

Quiet Canadian Diplomacy Gets Results In Vietnam

By HAROLD MORRISON
CP Foreign Editor

The quiet form of Canadian diplomacy, on which the country has built its reputation, seems to be paying off in Vietnam.

This is probably the most difficult peacekeeping assignment Canadian troops have ever undertaken. The mandate under which the Canadians, Poles, Hungarians and Indonesians serve appears to be deliberately vague.

For them it is not really a question of trying to keep the peace but to watch and listen to complaints that one side or another from either and to report findings to a Joint Military Commission which at the south is composed of the North and South Vietnamese, the United States and the Viet Cong's provisional republican government.

If, in fact, the joint commission is ever given a unanimous report by the observers—and this may turn out to be a rare event—then the conclusion may agree on a joint solution, another unlikely prospect.

The maintenance of peace in a country which has been at it for 30 years will in the end depend on the will of the primary antagonists, the Vietnamese people and those based in the South.

Realistically, it seems the presence of the Commission, as well as the other truce observers, serves little purpose. Yet the facts demonstrate the perseverance and patience of Canada. The particularity of Ambassador Michel Gauvin, are producing results. It is significant that when a coup was underway a chairman assay the observer group, the truce observers decided on Gauvin, who at the time was acting, selected as a temporary chairman, originally for the initial meeting, the temporary nature of his job seems to be becoming more permanent.

Calmly and quietly, Gauvin has been urging the quarrelling Joint Military Commission to get on with the job of peace. The situation now seems to be resolving itself to the point where a delegation of the truce observers will move into areas of protection, to at least three of the points where they are to observe the ceasefire, to prepare reports for administration and communications.

While the sound of gunfire is still heard in many parts of South Vietnam, the number of peace violations seems to be declining as the diplomatic wheels turn more rapidly.

The adversaries speak now more of the battle of the flags than the battle of bullets. Oil enemies are trying to outdo each other in decorating villages with symbols of peace.

Capital Punishment Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The time is drawing close for our Government to decide on the very important issue of capital punishment. The public has expressed a good many opinions in the press and also medias, all feeling they are justified in their assessments.

In the Kingston Whig-Standard on Jan. 17, the information even recommended that our MPs vote vote in favor of what the term acting as humanitarian? This sort of thing is quite understandable, as some people feel their intelligence is so abundant that they are in a position through intimidation, to tell others how to think, but of course this is only a figment of nerves and reasoning.

According to the records, murder has increased in this land partly by 25 percent, with wounding and all crimes on the increase.

With capital punishment as a deterrent, anyone would be a fool to take the chance of murdering a police officer or anyone else. During this trial period it has been like open season with no personal rule of law for police or private people.

The voting people are making the decisions when our system does not permit a convicted murderer to be made a star in a public theatre and given a platform to broadcast, assault a boy and murder another, rape a man, and no doubt with our present system, be invited to participate in a short time to conduct his own show.

It seems that level of education is the first requirement for anybody today to qualify for a job. Therefore our decision — when more practical thinking and less theoretical and over protected people are available who could replace a great many of these so-called intellectuals as experts and make progress in this land.

At the same time the sincerest of these criminal acts are regarded as the work of some sick person. The lack of deterrent and the apparent growth of violent and encouraging and upholding these murderers.

What a sick society we have when some think this should be encouraged. Today a convicted murderer is sentenced to life in prison. The parole system is making a mockery of justice.

I truly hope our members of Parliament have the conviction of justice to vote for Capital punishment as before for premeditated murder or willful murder to make our country a safer place to live in. I have always felt this country should be decided by a plebiscite of the voters of Canada. I feel that then those will feel justified in blaming our MPs murderers if sympathies is their vote.

Problem Of Dogs At Large

Brockville Recorder and Times

Two recent incidents in Brockville, involving roving dogs and youngsters, should be sufficient warning to the owners of such dogs to keep them under control.

In one case a dog attacked a boy on the lane, and about roving packs of dogs around school yards. One failed to cross the street, and proceeded to rope with the children. That is a dangerous problem that has been present, but at what a price. One young girl is talking shots for rabies and undergoing pain and discomfort, and there may be more to follow.

Every winter one reads about dogs that have been left out in the cold and the threat they pose, not only to wild animals but to human beings. Dogs are known to have saved lives during fires and to be good companions, but they can be a menace and a danger.

There is a bylaw in force now that forbids dog owners allowing their dogs to run at large within the city limits. The bylaw is a good one, and effective. There isn't a city council but there is a dog committee, and if one is found owner to take the dog in and assess of them if necessary. Unless the dog is found owner, the dog at large is no longer a family pet but an abandoned animal.

Today, Trenton will be one of its oldest and most faithful servants when the old horse-drawn fire engine, which has served the town so well, left on its journey to the scrap pile to be turned into something useful. Bidder and his mate, Prince, years ago the engine, the very latest in fire equipment at that time, was purchased for its town during the time when the late R. J. Wolfell was Trenton's Fire Chief of the volunteer fire brigade. The engine was almost always on the scene and seconds after the fire bell would ring. Many will see a burning team (four horses in bad weather) bounding from the fire hall, Bridge Street, the driver perched high on the seat, and the fire chief standing by. As a fire fighting apparatus, it was the best in its little sized in 1916, at which time the Trenton Fire Brigade was motorized in order to give quicker and more efficient service to the then growing town which had in its midst a large munition factory.

Another big crowd filled the Tartan Lounge to enjoy the entertainment and dancing provided by the wild and wooly Westerneires last Saturday evening. Everyone was having a good time and, among the dancing couples, staying right up with the younger members, were the ever welcome visitors, Cdes. Bill and Marjorie Stewart from the Ottawa Unit. The lucky winners at the door prize, a pair of tickets for the Valentine Dance being held on Saturday Feb. 17, were Mr. and Mrs. N. Tapp.

On the sports scene, the regular Saturday Men's doubles was postponed as a good number of the players competed in the Dart's Open Tournament held in the Legion Hall. Some real fierce competition, as there were entries from all over Ontario but Unit 391 missed getting in the winner's column. In the evening, by popular demand, there was a playoff for the men's doubles with Garry Robertson and Pug Keller being the winners and Jack Scanlon and Stanley Lucas in the runners-up spot. Tony Rambeskie, with 169 had the high three darts.

Another round in the Mr. and Mrs. Darts was also played at the same time and the results were: Winners, Anne Feeney and Gary Genereaux; runners up, Ruth Woodley and Jim Nicholls; ladies high three darts, Arlene Cress, 388. Gents' high three darts, Jim Nicholls, 140. The next games will be held on Saturday Feb. 17. After the darts were over a number of the contestants finished up the evening by joining the dancing crowd in the Tartan Lounge.

Shooting Said Murder Attempt

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Police in the Trenton area have combined efforts in a hunt for a lone gunman they now state attempted to murder a Trenton tree surgeon last Tuesday.

Original reports released by police said Edward "Silver" Brown, 54, was wounded by gunfire during a scuffle with a prowler whom he discovered at his Hannah Park residence.

In a statement Sunday, Brighton detachment Ontario Provincial Police revealed the wounding is not believed to have been an accident.

"We feel he (the lone gunman) was waiting for this man," said Corporal Ed Carl Bush, local officer in charge of the investigation.

The story this weekend is that Mr. Brown returned home, spotted numerous tracks outside his trailer home on the edge of the park on Trenton's southeast boundaries, in Murray Township.

As he walked around his isolated trailer. Someone shot him with what is believed to be a .22 calibre rifle. The bullet entered his left upper forehead and emerged through the middle of his forehead.

Falling to the ground, Mr. Brown, described by police as an "extremely strong man" managed to pack his face and forehead with snow. This revived him and he staggered to his feet.

Police said he made a few remarks to the gunman, who fled on foot.

The wounded man, bleading heavily from his forehead, attempted to get into his trailer, but became worried at the amount of blood he was losing. He managed to drive into town, stopping at the 27 Marmora Street home of his doctor, Dr. W. W. Weaver.

Dr. Weaver took him to Trenton Memorial Hospital where bullet fragments were removed from his scalp wound. The shooting victim stayed in hospital overnight, but returned to work in the morning.

Corporal Bush said details were not made public because it was felt such information might have hindered investigation. Detective Sergeant Carl MacDougall and Corporal J. H. Moore, of OPP criminal investigation from Peterborough headquarters, were called in.

The shooting area has been thoroughly combed for clues. Photographs, examples of foot prints, urine from the area where the gunman is alleged to have vailed for some time for his victim, have all been sent to the Centre for Forensic Sciences in Toronto.

Motive for the shooting is not known. Police describe Mr. Brown as a "friendly man, well liked, with no enemies."

They say if the bullet had varied a fraction of an inch in either direction, it would have proved fatal. The fact he was wearing a hard hat, is thought to have helped save his life.

Police have released this detailed information in an effort to give the public a chance to reveal anything or anyone mysterious they might have seen in the vicinity near the time of the 9:10 shooting. Any information offered to Brighton OPP or other police forces, will be dealt with in the strictest confidence, Corporal Bush said Sunday.

Carnival Success Despite Weather

A warm weather wipe-out sent Winter Carnival organizers in Belleville scratching for snow and cancelled many events planned for Winter Carnivals across Ontario.

More than 200 truckloads of snow were shipped from the Quinte Mall and Northern Electric Co. Ltd. parking lots to provide three inches of discolored slush for the Quinte Cup snowmobile race Sunday. Belleville Agricultural Society president Doug Rollins organized the operation. E. C. Gowsell, Quinte Exhibition and Raceway manager, estimated the cost at $500.

The snowmobile races went ahead, but many other scheduled events, especially those involving people from out of town, had to be cancelled.

The dogsled races, cross-country and novice ski races, snowmobile rides and perch fishing derby all had to be abandoned. There was simply not enough snow and ice for the high schools' ice sculpture competition. The Astra Winter Carnival sponsored by Canadian Forces Base Trenton also lost snow sculptures to the weather.

Inside events were well attended and a better gauge of interest in the carnival. The Lindfest and the Klunzen's Klondike night both attracted capacity crowds. More than 1,000 young people turned up at Quinte Kiwanis' Karnival Stomp Friday night.

The Pancake Breakfast organized by the Club Alouette Saturday attracted a steady stream of more than 600 people.

Culprit behind the cancellations was an unusually large slow - growing low pressure system which moved on into Quebec. It dropped freezing rain on Northern and eastern Ontario, unleashed previously frozen rivers and washed snow from ski slopes cancelling winter carnival activities planned by the City of Trenton and the Borough of York.

Temperatures are returning to seasonal level and most southern Ontario centres are experiencing freezing and near-freezing temperatures today.

Consecon Man's Injuries Fatal

PICTON — A Prince Edward county man died in Kingston General Hospital last Friday night as the result of head injuries sustained in a recent farm accident.

The deceased, Ray Cornelius Pronk, 46, of RR11, Consecon, received the fatal head injuries when he fell into a manure spreader which he was operating in a field.

His wife, Carol, who became alarmed when he failed to return from work, investigated and discovered him lying in the back of the spreader. He was rushed to Trenton Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Kingston, where he died.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said it is not known how the farmer fell into the spreader but there is no suspicion of foul play.

The incident occurred on Jan. 22 but was not reported to police until Mr. Pronk's death Feb. 1.

Role of "Mother Courage" Becomes Challenge for Belleville Teacher

Enthusiasm, interest and a desire to understand are important in any profession or hobby. Perhaps more so when it comes to acting and adapting a character. Even more so when it's a character like Bertholdt Brecht's Mother Courage.

Diane Coyne plays the lead role in "Mother Courage and Her Children", which is opening at the Pinnacle Playhouse February 28. Diane finds the role a challenge and different from anything else she's done in the theatre. That includes small parts with the London Little Theatre, London where she attended the University of Western Ontario as well as work with experimental theatre in Belleville.

The philosophy of Brecht as a playwright is necessary to understand, for it is revolutionary and demanding in its own right.

Diane explains that one must maintain a detached position rather than becoming emotionally involved in the character. At the same time the audience must realize that they're watching a performance put on by actors. Many set and makeup changes are done in front of the audience.

One of the difficult aspects of the play from the actor's standpoint, Diane finds, is deciding how the character reacts when expressing Brecht's philosophy. "How does he really want you to react? It's necessary to interpret it and approach each new situation in a totally different way."

Diane, who is onstage for all but one scene, finds Mother Courage contains all sides of a person's character. She symbolizes all the opposites — the courage and the cowardice and feels she can be extremely cruel in order to be kind. "It comes down to a question of capitulating to one character aspect or another."

Struggle is essential, but it can be difficult to maintain the mental distance that Brecht desires.

The play has delightful moments of humor, and music is an intriguing necessity. It contains strong comments on war, the individuals in war and the final futility of it as well as comments on religion.

Diane, who teaches English at Moira Secondary School, finds a tremendous feeling of comradeship involved in the play production as well as optimism. It's a play that you grow with and "there's great satisfaction included."

The play, she says requires an audience to be open to be willing to think.

"Mother Courage and Her Children" is an epic undertaking with a lot of investment and it can be a profitable experience for actors and the Belleville theatre-goer alike.

Accessories Accentuate New Spring Fashions

Each season brings its own brand of accessories to pull together the super fashion looks.

This spring, hair is shorter, especially at the nape of the neck and close to the head. So along come the new hats, small and close to the head to go with the new hairdos.

The turban is the hottest spring accessory to achieve the small head look. There are also crocheted caps and tiny cloches.

The envelope bag, worn tucked under the arm, is the newest in the hand-bag category and returns after a long absence. There are small classic bags that hang from the shoulder to the waist and the big tote ones for the woman who likes to carry extra shoes or a book to read.

Look for bags in soft kid leather, suede and straw for daytime, velvet and satin for evening. The tiny clutch bag is back for evenings.

The scarf is another signature for spring, often wrapped around the head in turban style or into the open neckline of a shirt.

The newest belts are narrow, one or two inches wide. Often they're worn just below the waist. Buckles are small and big, bamboo or plexiglass.

Single strands of big beads in cream or pale, blue, and pink replace long ropes of chains. Massive pieces make the spring jewelry more obvious. Giant bead bracelets buttons and hoop earrings are new arrivals. There's lots of enamel, ivory and ebony wilful coral and jade, almost always linked with gold.

Gloves are part of the spring accessories. Watch for short ones to the wrist in white kid or cotton.

Strap sandals with platform soles and high heels lead the spring shoe parade. Other leading styles are the spectator pump and the plain pump with crepe soles and heels.

Many of the new sandals have crepe soles and heels.

In hosiery, it's natural shades and pale pastels. For evening, top designers favor light gray shades. Sheer knee socks arrive to wear with casual short skirts and pants. Skirts and blouses did their own as accessories to wear with skirts and pants.

The trend - setting jackets are the blouson, often teamed with a matching dress, and the shirt-styled one with the drawstring waist.

Beauty trends change along with each season's accessories and fashions.

Eyebrows are thicker and more natural looking for spring.

The one quick and easy way a woman can make her face come alive is by putting on makeup.

The spring make-up is more subtle than ever and very feminine. Shadows for the eyes and cheekbones match predominant fabric shades such as raspberry, apricot, almond, plum and soft gray.

Lips are colored soft reds toasty coppers.

It's the head - to - toe look that counts for spring, all achieved by the use of accessories and make-up.

Ann Landers

Arthritic 'In Hell' When Shaking Hands

Dear Ann Landers: Your slip is showing. When that woman wrote to say her new brother-in-law made a poor impression from the moment he extended his hand and gave her a "dead-fish handshake," you went right along with her and agreed that a firm handshake means "I am genuinely glad to meet you . . ."

Apparently you are one of the lucky people who knows nothing about arthritis. As one who has had it in my shoulder, elbow and fingers for ten years, I can tell you it's just plain hell when someone grabs my hand and gives me one of those "I'm genuinely glad to met you" greetings.

I usually extend my left hand promptly, but once let a while I'm not quick enough, and it's agony. Please, Ann, print this letter, and while you are at it, tell the world that arthritis is not a disease that occurs only in people of advanced years. Many young people have it, too. I'm 36. Thank you.—Iree Mountain, Michigan

Dear I.M.: Of course you are right, and I'm glad you wrote. Your letter provides me with an opportunity to tell the world something else. Arthritis costs industry about nine billion dollars a year for absenteeism and medical care. It is second only to respiratory diseases in days lost from the job.

Nobody dies from arthritis but it is a horrible crippler, can be excruciatingly painful, and we need to spend a lot more money on research to find out what causes arthritis and how to arrest it—or better yet, how to prevent it.

Dear Ann Landers: Sooner or later everybody sees himself in your column. I get mine today. I refer to the mother whose son gave her the silent treatment because she couldn't stand the filth in his apartment and decided to clean the place up. Unfortunately, she accidentally threw out some of his important papers. He was furious and let her know it.

I used to babysit for my daughter-in-law when they went out of town or had a sitter problem. When I say she wasn't the best housekeeper in the world I cleaned her cupboards or when washing the floors, my good intentions were interpreted as "fault finding." Her resentment came as a shock but it opened my eyes to the fact that some people want to live in filth. Orderly types, such as myself, should keep their mouths shut and not try to "help." I wonder how many other mothers saw themselves in your column today. Care to comment?—Myopic and Happier

Dear My: Dozens of women wrote to express similar sentiments and I found it fascinating that nine out of ten women whose "help" was resented were mothers-in-law—not mothers.

Dear Ann Landers: Here it is February and our daughter, age 9, is still playing Cowboys and Indians with the hat and holster set we gave our seven-year-old son for Christmas. He is playing with her doll. So we have a problem? Please answer soon.—Concerned In California

Dear Concerned: In all probability not, but it's too early to tell. Keep your eyes open, however. You might have two problems. If this pattern persists, particularly with the boy, I recommend that you have him bolen's newspaper Svenska Dar evaluated professionally. Give it bladet said. Kosygin's last visit was in 1968.

Miller of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Does a man yearn for a perfect wife?

CERTAINLY. What he settles for? . . . Well, that is up to him. Perhaps he won't settle—as they say—he might select. And the woman he selects as his wife might have many little imperfections. Yet, when the man yearns for this one to be his wife, he might think she is just perfect the way she is. As far as he is concerned he wouldn't want anything changed about her—even if a change would make her the perfect woman he might have once wanted.

Should slow-learning be hushed up?

NO; but neither should it be broadcast that a child is slow at learning. If he is told as gently but as clearly as possible that he is not as quick as some other children, two important points will be made: The child won't blame himself if he finds himself falling behind his classmates; and he won't get into the habit of using the fact that he is a slow learner as an excuse not to learn at all.

Is a gruff person cold-natured?

NOT as a rule. Many an individual adopts a mask in his relationships with others to shield his true nature. If he appears gruff and irascible, a person may have a low esteem of himself; he may believe others find him unresponsive and unsympathetic. Rather than try to prove he is just as concerned about other people as anyone else, the individual will appear coldly detached, hoping everyone will discover his true nature.

Successful Living

Communication A Must Even If It Hurts

By DORIS CLARK

A prominent marriage counselor says one of the signs of a marriage which is not what it used to be is when stubborn silence replaces common sense communication.

This means a couple or one of them — refuses to discuss things. Leaves the anxious, worried one, dangling, doesn't it? It may mean the mute one feels superior. It may mean he, or she, feels guilty and will not even try to explain.

Worse than all that is the thought that a continuing series of stubborn silences, finally accepted as a way of life, can completely destroy a marriage.

Don't let the conversations in your house become one-sided. Keep explaining yourself, keep sharing your concerns. Keep communicating, even if it hurts.

• • •

Dear Doris: Perhaps I can help the lady who asked about Masonry, from a wife's point of view. Below is their statement.

WHAT IS A MASON?

A Mason is a man and a brother whose trust is in God. He meets you on the level and acts upon the square. Trusts his compass and he is ever plumb. He has a true grip on all that is rite. He is loyal to his order and whatever his degree he is master of himself. In the Lodge of Life he wears unstained the white lambskin of innocence. From his initiation as an entered apprentice he travels ever east toward the light of wisdom until he receives the final divine passing which admits him into the ineffable presence of the eternal supreme grand master of the universe, God.

I am the wife of a Mason and Past Matron of The Order of The Eastern Star. It is my personal opinion that each Mason's wife should give him the fullest support in this great work of Freemasonry and should attend those functions while I was held for Masons and their wives whenever she can.

Doris, I just cannot express the feeling of reward I h s t both my husband and I feel toward the Masonic Order. I would by far rather have my husband spending his evenings at the Masonic Lodge than in a tavern. — Past Matron.

Dear Past Matron: Good for you. Thank you for putting it on paper for the enlightenment of others.

Bill Ireland of Belleville topped all other contestants on aggregate points Sunday to take the Quinte Cup, grand prize at the snowmobile races at Quinte Raceway. Belleville Agricultural Society president presented the trophy expected to become a winter sports fixture on the snowmobile circuit in coming years.

Ireland Wins Quinte Cup

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Although he finished first in only one race, Bill Ireland topped the greatest number of points Sunday to take the Quinte Cup at the snowmobile events at Quinte Raceway.

The Belleville competitor, driving a Polaris, was the first winner of the trophy, expected to become an annual attraction on the district winter scene.

The Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation's B Sanctioned event, held in conjunction with Belleville's Winter Carnival ,registered another first — it expects to come out in the red for the first time in three years of snowmobile racing.

About 1,000 spectators filled the bleachers and lined the fences to watch the 14 classes run off. Mild weather that forced the cancellation of other snowmobile races brought top racers to the Belleville competition, with three factory teams — Arctic Cat, Allouette and Ski-Doo — entered.

Unseasonably warm weather almost called off the races before yesterday. But organizers, headed by Belleville Agricultural Society President Doug Rollin, trucked in more than 200 loads of snow to cover the track with about three inches of slush. Quinte Exhibition and Raceway manager E. C. Gowsell, estimated that his board's substitute for nature's deficiencies cost about $200.

Competitors and their helpers squished through infield mud and water to service their machines, but the track held up until events were over.

Runner up to Ireland, who totalled 184 points to win the Quinte Cup was Tom Wood of Peterborough who took 162 points with his Ski-doo. Third place was taken by Dave Ostrum of Madoc with 141 points. He drove an Arctic Cat.

The two women's events were won by Betty Proctor and Mary O'Neill.

Hornets Wallop Quintes

GALT (Special) — Galt Hornets continued to make headway in the race for Stanley Quintes as they seek to regain the title they triumphed them last, year's championship.

The Hornets thumped Belleville 9-2 Saturday night, just 24 hours after administering a 9-3 loss to the Quintes. They also recorded only a single tie in eight previous OHA Senior A hockey starts.

A pair of first period goals by Ron Smith and singles by Bruce Bayer and Ron Hergott allowed the home to fashion a 4-0 lead and assume control of the game.

Ray Johnston's goal at 16:31 of the third period spoiled Brent Pennington's shutout bid. The netminder faced 24 shots in the game as opposed to Belleville's Ken Bignell who had 41 directed at him.

Johnston added a second goal with just 26 seconds remaining in the game to round out the scoring.

Shift Into High Gear

Belleville Auto Dealers slipped into high gear in the later stages of Saturday night's ice lacrosse exhibition.

The Auto team defeated Merchants 19-9 after the two teams had battled to a 4-4 deadlock in the first period. Both clubs were composed of members of the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association.

Gord Male counted five goals and four assists for the winners while Kevin Dockrill had four and four. Dockrill was voted as the game's most valuable player.

Other Auto Dealer tallies came from Rick Watt with three, Rob Richardson and Jim Scott with two apiece and singles by Bick Burbeau, Kerry Rowland Glen Sine.

Joe Muldoon had a hat trick for the Merchants with Rob Turner and Sandy Waterson getting two apiece and Jo-Shields and Danny Nuttal counting singles.

Pickering Extends Slump With 4-3 Win Over Cats

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor

And the slump goes on.

The Belleville Bobcats lost their fourth game in a row, dropping a 4-3 decision to Pickering Sunday. A hot goaltender had a lot to do with Pickering's win over the slumping local Metro Junior B entry.

Larry McIntyre kicked out 42 shots and was particularly brilliant in the third period when Belleville outshot their opponents 22-4. "I can't complain about our play tonight," said Bobcats' coach Moe Horster. "Their goalie played a great game. Look at the shots on goal in the last period. We were working tonight. That's all I can ask."

Brian Cousins opened the scoring with a backhander that beat McIntyre at 7:37 of the first. He was playing with right winger Rick Meagher and left winger Ken Hunter as the Belleville coach attempted some new forward combinations.

Peter Smrke was called up from the Western Tire Juveniles for the game along with defencemen Joe Edwards. Smrke centred a line with wingers Mike Watt and Paul Lavender while Edwards filled in for regular Wally Dainard who is sitting out a five game suspension for throwing his stick and gloves at an official. Jeff Gilmour's tally evened the score at 1-1 before the close of the opening period.

Lavender pushed the Bobcats into a 2-1 lead in the second period when his hard drive from the blueline went between the Pickering goalies' skates. Meagher, performing at right wing for the first time this season, picked the far side on McIntyre to make it 3-1.

Jim Soetsinger scored the winner at 17:20 of the second period with the puck from Moore in the crease. The Belleville goalie did not have one of his better nights as he looked shaky in some of the 31 shots that he faced.

McIntyre was pretty much the whole story in the third period, particularly when Pickering scored two men short for over a minute in the early going. The Panthers' backchecking aside two hard point shots by Tim Yohn, a deflection by Mark Coates and made an outstanding stop on Coates' drive from the point. He also had his stick in a scramble in front of the net but still managed to get his glove on the ballet shot.

Hunter admitted that his team might have suffered a bit from fatigue after losing 7-4 to Oshawa Saturday night. "We thought we were tired, at least until the third period, when we got rolling," he conceded.

The Cats were rolling in the third period of Saturday's game as well, outscoring Oshawa 4-1 in that space of time. Unfortunately for the Belleville club, however, the home - team had established a 6-0 lead over the first 40 minutes.

Bob Newton potted three goals for Moire Secondary School to earn his team the high school hockey crown in the Belleville Wirter Carnival Hockey Tournament.

McKay's Moire is a 7-5 victory over BCI in the championship game Sunday to "end a short season" according to co-coach Dave Langille.

According to Langille, who coaches alongside Dave Sneddon, the Moira hockey team was not able to COSSA play as Quinte Secondary did last year. "It's a bit disappointed we can't play in COSSA," said the coach.

Moira moved into the final game with a 5-0 victory over Nicholson Catholic College after which goalie Bruce Clarke "played very well" according to Langille.

Gord Male of the Belleville Auto Dealers attempts to check Merchants' Rob Turner in exhibition ice lacrosse Saturday night. The Auto Dealers recorded a 19-9 win in the event which was held in conjunction with the Belleville Winter Carnival.

Moira Captures Hockey Title

Mark McKay scored four goals for Moira Secondary School to earn his team the high school hockey crown in the Belleville Wirter Carnival Hockey Tournament.

McKay's Moire is a 7-5 victory over BCI in the championship game Sunday to "end a short season" according to co-coach Dave Langille.

Rebels Capture Northern Pennant

A 3-3 tie Sunday with Falconbridge Dynamiters give the Rebels the Northern Electric Hockey League pennant.

The split decision left them with a one-point margin over the Falconbridge club in a 7-4 verdict from the Yankees. The Rebels finished the season with a 5-1-3 record.

Bruce Pascoe netted two goals for Falconbridge going to Randy Longhurst. Bill Carson earned two assists. For the Falcons it was Darwin Hoskin, Dwight Rathwell and Bearcats who looked after the scoring.

Tuesday's scoring champion Rick Rosebush netted a single goal in the Bearcats' win with others going to John Brunette, Ron McFarlane, Jim Haggerty, Marco Mior, Ed Eley and Don Mathews.

Swimmers Snap Six Records

VANCOUVER (CP) — Swimmers from the Vancouver area, led by 17-year-old Leslie Cliff, snapped six Canadian native swimming records and three age-group marks at the Canadian Dolphin weekend meet.

Miss Cliff, who competed in both the 1972 Olympics and the Pan-American games in 1971, set native records in the 200-metre butterfly, the 200-metre breaststroke and the 800-metre freestyle.

She swam the 200-metre butterfly in 2:25.3, chopping 1.8 seconds off the record set by Patti Stenhouse in 1972. In the 200-metre breaststroke she was clocked in 2:45.4, a tenth of a second less than Jane Wright's mark set in 1972. She won the 800-metre freestyle in 9:19.4, well under Mary Beth Rondeau's 1972 record of 9:36.4.

Ian Mackenzie, 16, set his record in the 100-metre backstroke, swimming the distance in 59.7, the first time a Canadian has broken the one-minute barrier in the event. Mackenzie and Bob Keeling shared the previous best of 1:01.3.

Paul Hughes, 19, set a native record in the 200-metre backstroke, knocking a second off Ralph Hutton's 2:12.5 clocking recorded in 1966.

Wendy Cook was the other native-record breaker, winning the 200-metre backstroke in 2:33, one-half second under Donna Marie Gurr's mark, set in 1972.

Linda Borsbost broke her own record in girls' 10-and under 100-metre breaststroke. She swam the distance in 1:26.5, 2.3 seconds under her previous best.

Janice Stenhouse, 13, took the 200-metre freestyle for girls 13 and 14 in 2:11.7, knocking one-half second off her own age-group mark.

Janka Samuhel, 11, set an age-group mark in the 100-metre butterfly for girls 11 and 12. She swam the distance in 1:24.4, just a tenth of a second under Becky Smith's standard.

Wilson Fourth In Ski Flying

IRONWOOD, Mich. (AP) — Jerry Martin was the North American ski flying champion after the Copper Peak Sunday, leaping 463 and 427 feet for a two-day total of 607 points in the Ski Flying Classic in which three Canadians placed in the top 10.

Martin's effort in the sky flying classic was nearly overshadowed by Japan's Masahiro Konno, 26, who broke the Copper Peak record for the third day in a row. Konno soared 453 feet, eclipsing the hill record of 447 feet set Saturday by Martin.

Konno, however, finished fifth over-all behind Peter Wilson of Ottawa. Wilson had 629 points to 607.5 for Konno.

Martin was followed by Tom Dargay, who comes from Marquette, a hometown of Minneapolis and Japan's Minoru Wakasa.

Sky flying is ski jumping on a grand scale, involving longer distances. The hill at Copper Peak is rated at 320 metres, largest in the Western Hemisphere.

The lip of the ski flying ramp is lowered to thrust the flyer out, enabling him to reach distances approaching 500 feet. Normal ski jumping distances approximate 200 feet. Skiers were averaging over 65 miles an hour down the slide.

Dargay earned 634.5 points to 625 for Wakasa.

Richard Graves, also of Ottawa, had a seventh in the final, points standing with 590 while Tom Reeper of Montreal finished ninth with 571.

Canadian coach Slavomir Kardas of Thunder Bay was 17th (567.5 points) while Kim Pripp of Ottawa finished 18th (566.3). Lyle Speers, Edmonton was 21st (496.5). Paul Martin, Toronto, 22nd (454.5) and Richard Grady of Edmonton, 28th (250).

Schlee Wins First Tourney

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — John Schlee's wife Sherri was running on a beach when a messenger informed her that her husband was coming up to the 71st hole leading the Hawaiian open golf tournament.

When Schlee, the lanky veteran, holed a birdie putt on the final hole for his first victory in eight years on the pro tour, his pretty blonde rushed into his arms and told him:

"I can't believe it."

It was the end of almost a decade of struggle and frustration for the Schlees.

"I wish I could express the feeling of winning a tournament," he said Sunday. "It's something I've always dreamed of."

The 33-year-old Schlee picked up $40,000 out of the total purse of $200,000 after his final-round 68, four-under par on the picturesque Waialei Country Club course.

His 273 total, 15 under par, made him a two-stroke winner over Orville Moody, a runner-up for the second time in as many weeks.

Tom Watson, the 23-year-old tour sophomore who led or shared the lead through the first three rounds, slipped to a 75 and third at 276.

Gay Brewer, at one time locked with Schlee, Moody and Watson in a four-way tie for the top, bogeyed two of the last four holes and was fourth with a 69—277. J. C. Snead was alone with a 278 total after a closing 69 he'd really want in the four-man scramble for the lead.

Toronto's George Knudson, who just managed to survive the halfway cut Friday, finished among the tailenders with a 292, worth $100.

Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino, who weren't factors, Trevino closed with a 68-282 and Palmer had a final 76 for 284.

Summer Olympic Issues Appear to Be Broached

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (CP) — A variety of controversial issues connected with plans for the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal have been broached again in this picturesque lakeside city as part of the vital points dealt with during the weekend by the top brass of the International Olympic Committee.

Everything from disputes over television rights to the matter of where the Olympic village will be situated figured in the documents presented before the Saturday approval of the Canadian city's plans by the IOC's executive committee.

Reporters in Lausanne for the IOC's executive meeting were given the report of the Montreal city group's TV committee. This insisted that "at no time was any definite offer of services submitted to us" by the major competitors of the American Broadcasting Co. in the United States.

The TV committee came down against use of any "open bidder" procedure in the awarding of U.S. rights and, in defending its selection of ABC said:

"We absolutely refuse to give the slightest credit to rumors which allege that a much higher offer (in return for the rights) might have been obtained had we followed a different procedure."

Asked to comment on this aspect of the TV situation, Lord Killanin, president of the IOC said the world Olympic executive had approved the ABC agreement.

But a few little small points remain to be settled, he said.

Killanin also told a news conference that, although the working facilities to be built in Montreal for 1976 would be two metres or more above the present level, the IOC is not prepared to authorize any future "radical" changes similar to the miniature world's fair-like stage by Mayor Jean Drapeau on the Expo site since 1967.

Despite past doubts that Montreal's preparations for 1976 are on schedule, the city's Olympic organizers assured the IOC that presently all plans are going in accordance with predetermined estimates.

Killanin's reporting on the weekend meeting between his executive and the Montreal group, said that although the project of the projected Olympic village in Montreal was discussed, "the actual location has not been confirmed."

Roger Rousseau, Montreal's Olympic commissioner-general, said the village would "most likely" be constructed in one place.

But the city had to make the decision on this, he added. The situating of the village involved the future of the city . . . the people who have to live with it afterwards."

Possibly the biggest single worry about Montreal in the minds of Europeans has been the financing of the 1976 Games.

Montreal's acceptance of a $310,000,000 budget has created doubts in the minds of some West Germans, whose country has lost to the Summer Olympics last year.

Olympics To Be Montreal Show

LAUSANNE (CP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) says Toronto would have been able to share in the Summer Olympics" if the Games had been allotted to Montreal in 1994.

But the 1976 games, Killanin told a news conference here, "have got to be held in Montreal"—with the yachting events in Kingston, Ont.

Killanin was commenting Saturday night on a statement attributed to Mayor David Crombie of Toronto that the Ontario city should get a share of the 1976 Games.

Killanin also said that in the past, "there have been events have been held in areas outside the single centre chosen as city and site of the Games.

The president singled out basketball and soccer in this connection.

"If the organizing committee says they'll be held at various places, the IOC will consider it," Killanin said.

On the general principle of spreading out the Games, however, the Irish peer indicated, as in his remark about 1984, that he feels some years must pass before anything of this sort can be implemented.

Over the next four years, the IOC will have to consider the practical aspects of such a suggestion, Killanin said.

The committee can either extend the Games over a longer period or spread them over a certain area, he added.

Roger Rousseau, commissioner-general of the Montreal Olympic Committee, said his group is studying the possibility of holding what he called preliminary events in Toronto.

But he also said "the real preliminaries" will be held in Montreal.

Hot NHL Teams Continue Pace

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks and Philadelphia Flyers continued unbeaten streaks in the National Hockey League during the weekend, but coach Jack Gordon used the "homeice" rule to advantage to end Minnesota North Stars five-game winless string Sunday.

The Rangers won their eighth straight and stretched their unbeaten string to 15 by blasting Atlanta Flames 6-0 Sunday while Chicago went eight games without a loss by dropping St. Louis Blues 5-2 and Philadelphia skated to a 3-3 draw over Vancouver Canucks and Montreal Canadiens maintained a four-point lead atop the East with a 6-1 victory over California Golden Seals.

In other Saturday games, when all 16 teams saw action, the scores were: Vancouver 2, Toronto 1; Los Angeles 4, Rangers 7, Boston 3; Montreal 1, Atlanta 0; Buffalo 1, Island ers 1; St. Louis 4, California 1 and Philadelphia 2, Chicago 2.

Toronto visits the Islanders and Vancouver is in St. Louis for Tuesday contests.

Pete Stemkowski's second three-goal night of the year paced the Rangers past Atlanta as Flames goaltender Phil Myre feared for York shooters. Rangers goalie Gilles Villemure faced 29 shots in posting his second shutout of the season.

The Rangers now lead the fading Boston Bruins by nine points while the Sabres closed to within five of Boston, and Detroit remained just one more point back.

Saturday's Boston-Ranger game, in which Ranger Walt Tkaczuk scored three goals, was marred by three separate fights, including a clean decision for New York rookie Steve Vickers over rugged Don Marcotte in the third period.

Chicago, while padding its lead in the West to nine points over runner-up Philadelphia, gave goalie Tony Esposito all the offence he needed in the first period when Chico Maki, Jim Pappin and Dan Maloney opened a 3-0 Hawk lead.

St. Louis defenceman Steve Durbano, who picked up four assists Saturday, had a part in both goals—by Garry Unger and Barclay Plager—to pull the Blues within one of Chicago midway in the third period.

Bobby Clarke's 100th NHL goal at 13:14 of the final period at Boston salvaged the stalemate for Philadelphia. The game was delayed twice by fights in the third period involving Flyers veteran Ed Van Impe and Wayne Cashman of Boston and a later fracas between Andre Dupont of the Flyers and Bobby Orr.

Gordon, with the last say on line changes, sent his checking line of J. P. Parise, Dennis Hextall and Buster Harvey out to nullify Pittsburgh's high-scoring trio of Syl Apps, Lowell MacDonald and Al McDonough.

The "checking" Stars responded immediately. Parise scoring at the 1:46 mark and Harvey just 57 seconds later. Hextall later assisted on Doug Mohns' goal to make it 3-0 and scored again to give Minnesota a 4-0 lead in the second.

Hextall was aggressive throughout the game and was involved in fights with Bryan Watson and Darryll Edestrand.

Hull Collects Hat Trick

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Bobby Hull decided last summer to jump to the World Hockey Association, it was generally felt he could be comfortably become the first professional hockey player to register 100 goals in a season.

His former employers, Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, launched court action that prevented him from practising or playing with the Jets.

The court proceedings finally went in Hull's favor, but by that time the fledgling WHA's season was well under way and Hull had a lot of catching up to do.

The Golden Jet got three goals in a WHA game for the first time Sunday night, leading Winnipeg to a 5-3 comeback win over Alberta Oilers and padding the Jets' lead in the Western Division to five points over Houston Aeros.

The Aeros, idle Sunday, had closed to within three points of the division leaders Saturday with a 7-1 decision over Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Elsewhere Sunday, New York Raiders edged Quebec Les Nordiques 5-4 and Cleveland Crusaders took a three-point lead in the eastern race by defeating Ottawa Nationals 3-2 while New England Whalers were dropping a 4-3 decision to Los Angeles Sharks.

In the only other Saturday contest, Chicago Cougars and New York played to a 2-2 tie.

Ed Joyal and Bob Wall gave the Oilers a 2-0 lead in front of 5,200 Edmonton fans before Winnipeg got untracked. Chris Bordeleau, with his 37th of the year, Bill Sutherland and Hull put the Jets ahead before the second period ended.

Hull, with Nos. 27 and 28 of the year, added to the Winnipeg totals before Bernie Blanchette closed out the Alberta scoring with about four minutes left in the game.

New York, playing in front of a home crowd of 10,304, got two goals from Wayne Rivers to move into third place ahead of Quebec in the East.

The goals broke a six-game scoring drought for Lemaire and boosted him within 11 points of National Hockey League scoring leader Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins.

Terriers Dogging Flyers' Footsteps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Orillia Terriers shared two points ahead of Owen Sound Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings on the strength of a 6-4 weekend victory over fifth-place Owen Sound Downtowners.

As the Terriers were forging their victory Sunday night in Owen Sound the Flyers were keeping pace with a 6-5 overtime decision over fourth-place Brantford Foresters in Brantford.

In the lone Saturday game, third-place Galt Hornets soundly defeated last place Belleville Quinte 9-2 in Galt, getting two-goal performances from Ron Smith, John Sweeney, Bruce Reier and Ron Hergott. Jack Powell added one.

Ken Reynolds, Dave Johnson, Jim Reid, Terry McKnight and Joe Pelaga each scored for Brantford.

Action resumes Friday with Belleville at Orillia, Galt at Owen Sound and Barrie at Hagton.

Sanderson Still Talking

BOSTON (AP) — Contract negotiations between the lawyer for centre Derek Sanderson and Boston Bruins are continuing at a snail-like pace.

"I think we made some headway today but there is nothing concrete," Bruins' managing director Harry Sinden said Sunday after meeting with Bob Woolf for a fourth consecutive day.

"We'll meet again tomorrow," Sinden said.

Sanderson, who helped the Bruins to two National Hockey League Stanley Cup championships in the last three years, gave Sinden a private showing of his ability in a workout last week.

Since, Sinden, who coached Sanderson in the Bruins' first Stanley Cup year in nearly three decades in 1970, and Woolf have been trying to get together on agreement of a new contract.

Sanderson, according to legal sources, was offered a new contract calling for $80,000 a season by the Bruins last year. However, he jumped to Philadelphia Blazers of the new World Hockey Association for a reported 10-year contract, totalling $1.5 million.

The Blazers became disenchanted with the flamboyant veteran and negotiated a release from the contract for a $1-million payoff a couple of weeks ago.

Lakers Best Bullets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Bullets lost while giving up 125 points, 48 more than in a winning Friday night effort, but coach Gene Shue still praised the defence.

"I was pleased with the way we played, but Los Angeles was just super," Shue said after the Lakers won 125-115 Sunday and ran their National Basketball Association winning streak to 10 in a row.

Eastern's Central Division leaders, who had 23 of 29, have held their opponents under 100 points in 27 games this season.

But the Lakers ran their first place record in the Pacific Division to 44-11 as Jerry West and Gail Goodrich combined 38 points apiece.

In Sunday's other games, Chicago Bulls pummeled Milwaukee Bucks 121-99, Boston Celtics overtook Philadelphia 76ers 123-115, New York Knicks beat Cleveland Cavaliers 114-97, Houston Rockets defeated Buffalo Braves 109-108 and Kansas City-Omaha Kings slugged Seattle Supersonics 128-96.

On Saturday it was New York 9, Cleveland 99; Boston 104, Philadelphia 98; Detroit Pistons 105, Buffalo 101; Phoenix Suns 122, Houston 112; Kansas City-Omaha 105, Portland Trail Blazers 97, and Golden State Warriors 122, Seattle 101.

Bob Lowe scored a career high 25 points for Memphis and unbeaten Dennis Awtrey outplayed Lloyd Abdul-Rahman under the boards.

Lowe got 25 points to Awtrey's 19, Awtrey outrebounded the Rockie' big man and forced him to his limit in fouls, six.

Boston, playing without John Havlicek, out with a knee inflammation, trailed by a dozen points after the first period, but rallied behind Jo Jo White and Art Williams to saddle the 76ers with their seventh setback in a row.

Earl Monroe scored 22 points for the Knicks. He hit six straight field goals in the final period to hand New York past the Cavaliers.

Jerry Sloan scored 30 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 28 for the Rockets, who grabbed an early lead and never yielded it to the Braves. Nate Archibald tallied 31 points to pace the Kings past the Sonics.

Rich Get Richer In Jr. 'A' Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The rich got richer and the poor got poorer, with one exception, in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league on the weekend.

The leading Toronto Marlboros romped to a 9-2 victory over Kitchener Rangers Sunday and second-place Peterborough Petes trounced Sudbury Wolves 10-1 at Peterborough in the only game Saturday.

In other Sunday contests, fourth-place London Knights defeated third-place Ottawa 67's 5-2, St. Catharines Black Hawks topped Sudbury 6-4 and Oshawa Generals beat the visiting Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 7-3.

Paulin Bordeleau and Bruce Boudrea each scored three goals before 7,107 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens to pace the Marlboros, who maintained their eight-point spread over Peterborough.

Other Toronto scorers were Glen Goldup, Peter Marrin and Paul Crawley.

Rick Chinnick and Bob Gainey were two-goal men for the Petes who stretched their winning streak to nine games in a row. Singles went to Jim Johnston, Brad Price, Colin Campbell, Mike Fryia, Bob Nantais and Russ Jonathan.

The seventh-place Sudbury team came closer at St. Catharines as the Wolves rallied after trailing 6-1.

Right-winger Rick Middleton of the winners scored three goals to become the first player in the league to reach the 50-goal plateau this season. He scored 36 last year.

'Australia Protests Bomb Test

CANBERRA (Reuter) — government spokesman said today that Australia is preparing an approach to the World Court to try to stop French nuclear tests in the Pacific, but he denied that diplomatic relations with France might be broken.

He was commenting on a report in the French news magazine Le Point that this possibility was mentioned in an Australian note to the French government asking for an end to nuclear testing in the Pacific.

The spokesman said Australia opposes the testing but is not considering breaking off relations and did not raise the possibility in its note.

He Has Way To Avoid Strikes

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Dennis McDermott, Canadian director and international vice-president of the Auto Workers Union (UAW), said Saturday he has a formula to eliminate strikes.

He told delegates to a UAW seminar to follow the example of doctors and lawyers who have their own organizations to set their wages.

"Doctors select their grey-haired old men for the Royal College of Surgeons and lawyers who are trusted in their wisdom to simply tell every one else what their fees will be?" he said.

The Law Society of Upper Canada has a similar setup, he noted.

"Their judgments are so infallible that they are above the law. If a lawyer cheats a customer, there's a shark fund for bailing him out.

"A doctor who is ripping off thousands or hundreds of thousands of dollars gets slapped on the wrist by his associates and the unemployed worker gets a fine—with sentence for rioting and $127 from the Unemployment Insurance Commission."

Whitechapel Foundry To Copy Liberty Bell

LONDON (CP) — Most Canadians know about the famed old American Liberty Bell—the one with the crack in it. It was cast in 1752 by the Whitechapel Bell Foundry in London and now, with the bicentenary of the Declaration of Independence coming up in 1976, the foundry has been commissioned to make 2,400 small models of Liberty Bell—one for each month of the life of the United States.

The process by which these 2,400 bells will be made is a new version of one that, in 1,000 years old. It originated in West Africa where artisans made a core of earth and mud and cow dung. They covered this with wax, which is carved as though it were the finished product.

The wax was then covered with a further layer of mud and dung, with a hole at the top through which molten bronze could be poured and small holes at the bottom through which melted wax could escape when its place had been taken by the bronze.

Normally bells are cast individually, but to make 2,400 of each the same as all the others presented a problem. The found-

Nicholson Rink Wins Bonspiel

Joe Letersky skipped the only rink from Nicholson Catholic College in the John Pepsi Bonspiel over the weekend, but the lack of other home school rinks did not bother the four man team.

Letersky's rink won the high school mixed spiel, edging out Quinte's Steve Bennett and Moira's Wayne Clelland rinks.

The rink for top spot in the spiel was a tight one according to Russ Brady, bonspiel chairman. "If Quinte's Bennett had made the last rock of the last end of his second game, he would have had as many points as Letersky's rink," said Brady, "it would have given him enough points to win a tie, and the championship because he had won his games by greater margins of victory."

Skip Bennett's rink, with lead Garnet Hiest, second Don Anderson, and vice Penny Alkins placed third after Clelland's rink with lead Joy Ferguson, second Peter Jones, and vice Theo Palmer.

Due to the fact that the tourney organizers "ran out of girls" according to Brady, the place rink was filled up with lead Kelly Pender, second brother Tom, and vice Ron Chartrand.

Drummondville Faces Heavy Bombing

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In 47 games this season, Drummondville Rangers have won only 11 games and lost one in the nine-team Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League.

Sunday night, Trois-Rivieres Ducs, whose record is slightly better than the last-place Rangers, bombed them 14-3 in one of four league games played.

In other action, Sorel Black Hawks dumped Shawinigan Bruins 7-3, Sherbrooke Beavers tripped Montreal Red, White and Blue 4-1 and Quebec Remparts trounced Laval Nationals 9-5.

Gilles Rompre sparked the Ducs' win, scoring four goals while Alain Daigle added three. Marcel Lapierre, Jean Beaulieu and Daniel Dubac each scored twice and Claude Beaudry once. The Ducs are nine ahead of the Rangers.

Denis Patry, Daniel St. Cyr and Richard Lecomte scored for the Rangers who two weeks ago were clobbered 17-5 by Sorel Black Hawks.

Pierre Larouche's two goals spacked Sorel over Shawinigan as the two teams continued to fight it out for last place. The win moved Sorel to within four points of Shawinigan.

Serge Camelin, Michel Deziel, Michel Bergeron, Reynald Gill and Jacques Cossette also tallied for Sorel while Claude Arbinais, with two, and Jean-Pierre Burgoyne replied for the Bruins.

Yvan Bouillon and Hal Pearson engineered the Cornwall win with a pair of goals each while Bob Chase, Stuart Davison, Yvon Dostel, Brian Barker and Gary McGregor added single goals for the winners.

Francois Rochon scored two third-period goals for Sherbrooke in its win over Montreal. Dave Dussault and Marcel Labrecue also tallied for the Beavers while Daniel Begin replied for the Red, White and Blue.

Collegian Cagers Win Two Titles

"BCI played some good basketball," said the KCVI coach. Belleville Collegiate could not defeat the Kingston club in the first round as they ended up on the short side of a 47-43 final score at the end of the second overtime period.

Both Quinte and Centennial were knocked out of the competition with loses to Oshawa Eastdale, Sudbury, and Dundas and BCI respectively.

BCI defeated Centennial 49-45 in the semi - final while taking Sudbury by a wider margin of 59-44 in the final for the consolation series.

The championship of the tourney was won by the host school in a 65-63 final with four seconds to go in the second overtime period.

"We fouled a guy (McLaughlin) to try and get possession of the ball," said coach Gesloch, "but he made both of his free throws to win the game for them."

The BCI Collegians and the Quinte Saints will be appearing in another tourney February 17-18 on the courts of the Kingston Collegiate.

The junior Collegians, however, came out of a 16 team tournament at Napanee with the "A" series championship. BCI defeated Quinte Saints 59-49 in the final game for their fourth win of the tourney. The Collegians won victories from LaSalle, Napanee and Picton with scores of 69-22, 49-18, and 42-31 respectively.

Runners-up were Kingston, while teams from Toronto, Odessa, Kingston, Trenton and Belleville took part in the consolation series.

The local team of Glen Denike, Jack Scanlon, Ray Marsh and Dick Thomson captured the consolation round beating another Belleville entry composed of Bob Reid, Bob Deline, Paul Hannah and Ivor Bowley.

Belleville Pair Wins Provincial Dart Title

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

TUESDAY, FEB. 6

Your birthday today: Relations struggles with people sharing this problem. Today's natives do their greatest thinking and most enduring work in isolation, after having gathered materials over a long period.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Nothing works out according to yesterday's plan. Take the next-best expedient, knowing that further changes are inevitable.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Those who don't take suggestions learn by their own experience—today's lesson up with such learning. Stay unbiased.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): It is just as challenging is ready for final decision or disposition. What is taken to be settled can yet be negotiated.

Cancer (June 21 — July 2 2): Your sympathy runs strongly—don't let it tempt you into expensive commitments. Family obligations should be deferred.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You have a duty to exercise on behalf of the common good, steer ardship over others' resources, a contribution to make.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Resisting a general drift toward negative reactions is your challenge now. Both partners and rivals pose complications.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your work is cut out for you, balancing what you must do with your available resources. Essentials come first.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The handiest form of entertainment today is walking and speaking, doing things alone if need be. Checking details can bring flaws to view.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It is your turn to see your basic course in a critical light, resolve to correct old habits before going on to direct others.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Steady routine and calm temper mean you have a day of minor setbacks, slowdowns. Give people a chance to turn around.

Saturday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three Ls, X for the two Os, etc. Single letter apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Do Not Diagnose Aneurysm Yourself

By G. C. THORSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know more about a ruptured abdominal aorta, which took my father's life. It caused kidney and blood pressure failure and possible brain damage.

I would like more people with hardening of the arteries to be aware of this dangerous condition—L.G.M.

An aneurysm—a weakened, bulging place in a blood vessel—can occur in any major artery. It is, obviously, more dangerous when it occurs in a vital one.

This is true of the abdominal aorta. The aorta is the main blood vessel that carries the blood supplying blood for the whole body. Branches of it serve the myocardium (heart muscle) and other areas of the upper body.

Another large branch extends through the abdomen, serving the abdominal organs and legs. If it ruptures, obviously blood will flow copiously into the abdominal cavity. The loss of blood from the rest of the circulatory system; blood pressure is drastically lowered; all the deprived organs, including the brain, suffer.

High blood pressure, prior to the rupture, increases the danger of rupturing...of course; it earlier stages.

...ecerts that much more pressure on the weakened area.

Symptoms of an aneurysm are usually minor, if any, until the bulge becomes large. In the abdomen, a pulsating mass may be felt—but one should be cautious of self-diagnosis for an abdominal aneurysm because, in persons with a thin abdominal wall, the pulsation of a normal aorta can be felt.

However, x-ray of the abdomen may show calcium in the wall of the aorta, and confirmation of the aneurysm is by aortiography, a technique for x-ray of arteries.

After a diagnosis has been made, modern blood vessel surgery can take care of the situation, various techniques being available according on the exact location and nature.

Such a rupture of the lower aorta is a common occurrence, however dangerous it is if it occurs. I repeat, self-diagnosis is a misleading undertaking in this condition. The two things that can protect us are keeping blood pressure under control, and having a periodic physical examination. While the patient is not likely to be able to spot such an aneurysm, a physician can—although not in the ...ter of rupturing...of course; it earlier stages.

Opening lead—king of clubs.

This famous hand occurred in the 1961 European championship during the match between Norway and Great Britain. West was J. S. Simon, author of the classic Why You Lose at Bridge, and East was the British star, Terence Reese.

Reese opened his cue, as he himself relates, but it is likely that most players would have done the same thing.

Simon raised the A K of clubs — East playing high-low — and led a third club which Reese ruffed. Some thought a heart.

The Norwegian declarer won the heart, crossed to dummy with a diamond, took a trump returned, to dummy with a diamond, took a second trump finesse, and so made four spades. His only losers were two clubs and a ruff.

The same series of plays occurred at the second table, and there the declarer also made four spades. The deal proved to be a Masterpoint standoff, but later received wide mention because both East-West could have defeated the contract by making a most extraordinary play.

East can stop the contract by discarding a diamond at trick three, instead of ruffing the third round of clubs! Declarer can then breach dummy only once, and — since he ...pares to run trump leads from dummy to stop East from ...ashing two trump tricks — he must eventually go down one.

The contract is easy enough to defeat on paper. But at the table, where second round thoughts don't count, practically every bridge player in existence (including the Reese cards) would ruff the third club and then start thinking of what to do next.

The lead of an exceptionally fine example of why you can't afford to play the game automatically and without thought.

Answer relax!

Tomorrow: Guesswork.

CP News Roundup

Macdonald Won't Pool Resources

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada is not interested in pooling resources with the United States in a continental energy policy, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Sunday.

In a two-hour CBC radio program, Cross-Country Checkup the energy minister told listeners across Canada and in the United States that this country has surpluses to meet its own needs.

However, Canada has reached a situation where it may not export any more gas and may not in future increase its oil exports, he said.

The program was broadcast on a U.S. network as well, and callers from several states and from Washington joined Canadian callers in debating the energy question with Mr. Macdonald.

Several of the U.S. callers urged Mr. Macdonald to take a firm stand against selling more oil and gas to the U.S.—"or if you do, make us pay."

James Ridgway of Washington, D.C., author of a recent book on energy resources, The Last Play, said a continental policy would be disastrous both to Canadians and Americans.

He suggested that Canada should take steps to nationalize all gas companies.

PC Leader

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Melvin James Mcquaid, 61, a Souris, P.E.I. lawyer, was chosen leader of the island province's Progressive Conservative party Saturday.

Pot Seized

BROMONT, Que. (CP) — About 450 pounds of marijuana were seized and two men arrested in a raid on a campsite here Saturday, a RCMP spokesman said Sunday.

The marijuana was found in the false bottom of a trailer which, police said, was occupied by a man, woman and three children. It had come here through the U.S. from Mexico.

Papers Kept

NEW YORK (AP) — News-week magazine said Sunday that a White House aide had withheld documents pertaining to the Watergate case from the FBI in an effort to protect persons close to President Nixon.

The magazine said John W. Dean III, one of Nixon's law ers, had "reviewed and safeguarded" the documents for a week before turning them over to federal agents.

Close to Door

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Canadian forces are in Vietnam as peace observers, not peacekeepers, and "we're making pretty sure we'll be pretty close to the door if all hell breaks loose," says Prime Minister Trudeau.

He made the comment in a wide-ranging television interview Saturday during which he was asked about circumstances he in Vietnam that might lead to withdrawal of the Canadian observer force within the 60-day trial period.

Poor Sharing

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, says that despite a growing numbers of doctors in the province people outside Toronto are not receiving adequate medical attention.

Mr. Lewis cited a 1969 study by the Ontario Council of Health that the province should strive for one doctor for 675 to 680 people by 1986.

"By 1971, it was one for every 820 people, already better than the target," Mr. Lewis said. "If we take the ministry of health's projections, by 1976 there will be one doctor for every 520 residents of the province.

"Why, then, do we have in Northern Ontario communities that don't have adequate medical services?"

Snake Hunt

OTTAWA (CP) — The great Ottawa snake hunt ended happily Sunday afternoon.

A 10-foot boa constrictor, abandoned in an apartment by a departing tenant, disappeared into the woodwork. Eerally, when discovered by the janitor Friday night.

Police and a local snake expert kept a two-day vigil in the apartment while the reptile cruised around the walls.

The hunt ended Sunday when the snake crawled into view and was tucked away in a bag to await disposition by the humane society.

JOSEF STALIN

Stalin Praised

MOSCOW (REUTER) — Just a month before the 20th anniversary of Joseph Stalin's death on March 5, a new Soviet novel about the Russian dictator has become a best-seller overnight.

The sympathetic image it presents of Stalin—many of his critics call it a whitewash—is how much of the older generation may remember him: the wise and tireless war leader, the masterful statesman.

But the novel, which appears to have official sanction, does not stop there. It portrays the country's most controversial figure as, privately, a lonely man striving to come to terms with his mistakes.

Leader Named

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Creditistes, up to now a force only in rural parts of the province, Sunday elected a leader they hope can make inroads for the party in Montreal.

Yvon Dupuis, once a federal Liberal cabinet minister who was forced to resign over charges of influence-peddling, was later acquitted, won the leadership in a remarkable political comeback.

He represents political capital for the party because of a large and loyal following he built up during his years as a radio hotline host in Montreal after he left the Pearson government.

Youth Held

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — William Thomas Dollack, 20, of Peterborough will appear in provincial court here Tuesday to face an attempted murder charge as a result of the shooting of Collingwood businessman Danny Haight last week.

Dollack was arrested at his home Saturday.

Farm Raided

Spending Programs Inspected

OTTAWA (CP) — The minority Liberal government will come under concerted attack this week as it finds itself in the uncomfortable position of having to give opposition parties as much time as they want to criticize its spending program.

The Commons was to start the week with a debate on 3 government bill to remove the ceiling on the amount of money the treasury can advance to the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC).

After getting that, following predictably strong Progressive Coiservative opposition, the government must ask the House for approval of spending until March 31 of about $1.3 billion over the about $16.5 authorized by Parliament last year.

The New Democrats, who hold the balance, have said they will vote for both measures. So there is almost no question of the Liberals being overthrown.

But the NDP will join the Conservatives in forcing the government during the debate on the $1.3 billion in customary supplementary spending estimates. The government will have to take it until the opposition chooses to shut up.

LIP Grant Protesters Annoy PM

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told a group of protesters, upset because they will be ineligible for unemployment insurance after their government-sponsored programs expire, that they should be grateful.

In a 10-minute discussion with them, he told them they were just "beefing" and "bitching."

Mr. Trudeau said the government, under its Local Initiatives Program (L.I.P.), had given them the chance to gain experience as entrepreneurs at taxpayers' expense and didn't see why they should come back seeking unemployment insurance when grants expire.

The protesters said they were representing 15 co-ordinators of area L.I.P. projects. The co-ordinators will be ineligible for unemployment insurance when their projects expire because they are considered employers by the government.

JAMES RICHARDSON

Richardson Backs West About Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson has aligned himself with Alberta in the skirmish with Ontario over raising natural gas prices.

Mr. Richardson, one of two Westerners in the federal cabinet, was interviewed on the CTV television program Question Period for broadcast Sunday. The minister represents the riding of Winnipeg South.

The wrangle between the two provinces has threatened to escalate to full-scale war in recent months as various parties chose sides. The contention of Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed is that low-priced Alberta gas is subsidizing Ontario industry.

The increase favored by the premier would cost Ontario homeowners and industries $21.4 billion over the next 30 years. What rankles many in Alberta Ontario proposes selling gas to the United States at prices lower than those charged there.

"I endorse what Mr. Lougheed has been saying," Mr. Richardson said Friday. "Like him, we have been paying above world prices for years for what is produced in Ontario," Mr. Richardson said, and added it is only natural that Alberta should reciprocate by selling natural gas to Ontario at a higher price.

Premier Lougheed's proposal would help subsidize industrial development in Alberta, Mr. Richardson said, as has been done in Ontario for years.

Baby Shot

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Lori Lyn Petrie, nine-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Petrie of London, died in hospital Saturday after accidentally being shot when a .22 calibre rifle held by her 13-year-old brother discharged.

Scholar Socreds' New Chief

EDMONTON (CP) — He lacks political poise, experience and a legislature seat but Werner Schmidt, the Alberta Social Credit Party's new leader, has something he considers more important.

Faith in himself, the party and the wisdom of God, he says, will help him restore Social Credit back to its rightful role—the people's government.

Mr. Schmidt, a 41-year-old deep thinker with intense religious convictions, will need all the faith he can muster to meet mind-bending problems which are only as far away as today.

He pulled off one of the most stunning political upsets in Alberta history Saturday. A novice without election win, he came from behind to squeeze out former education minister Robert Clark, 35, by 39 votes on the second ballot.

Whom to appoint opposition leader in the legislature, how to direct the party from outside the house, when to try for a seat, even how to get paid are a few of his problems. Also requiring immediate attention is charting of strategy and policy for the spring session of the legislature which opens Feb. 15.

Because he doesn't have a seat, Mr. Schmidt, can't receive the $33,300-a-year salary paid to the Opposition leader. Mr. Schmidt, a personable man with dark wavey hair, first tasted politics 18 years ago when he campaigned for a Social Credit candidate in northern Alberta. However, positions as a superintendent of schools and chief executive officer of the Alberta School Trustees Association kept his interest in politics "a distant one."

In 1971, he was in a position to pursue political ambitions and entered the provincial election as a candidate in Edmonton Belmont. He was badly beaten by Bert Hohol, now labor minister, in a progressive Conservative tide which swept away 36 years of Social Credit rule.

A Winter's Tale?

It's surprising what a man can find in a locked park in mid-winter. City parks department worker Norman Allen pauses a moment in Corby Park to scan paperback — one of an armful among other junked items he came across during cleanup. How and why they got there at the coldest time of year, when the park is closed in winter months, is unknown.

Prisoners' Release Due This Weekend

SAIGON (AP) — The chairman of the international ceasefire commission said today that the first groups of United States prisoners of war to be freed in both North and South Vietnam will be handed over about Saturday.

Michel Gauvin of Canada, chairman of the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS), told reporters as he entered a meeting of the commission: "I don't have any specific time or date, but I know it's around the 10th for American prisoners."

After the meeting, he expanded on this: "There are no definite dates, but I understand American prisoners will probably be released around the 10th of February, some of them, not all, from Hanoi."

Gauvin said he also understood that shortly after the first group of Americans is released, Vietnamese prisoners would be freed or exchanged in South Vietnam.

Gauvin mentioned two possible sites for the transfer of prisoners held by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam: the An Loc area, 60 miles north of Saigon, and Phu Hoa, also north of Saigon.

There was no word on the possible release of two Canadians held by the Communists. They are Marc Capre of the Raymond, Que., a civilian teacher captured near Hue during the 1968 Tet offensive, and Lloyd Oppel of Courtney, B.C., a missionary captured in Laos last October.

Meanwhile, the U.S. military command announced that 2,000 more U.S. troops were withdrawn from Vietnam during the last four days, dropping U.S. strength to fewer than 28,000 men for the first time since December, 1964.

Under terms of the ceasefire agreement, all U.S. troops are to be out of Vietnam and all prisoners released by March 28.

The Joint Military Commission—made up of the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong—asked the ICCS to have three of its prisoner release movements ready to move out on two hours' notice. Each team includes two representatives of the countries in the commission—Canada, Indonesia and Poland.

U.S. prisoners handed over in North Vietnam will be flown direct to Clark Air Base in the Philippines. U.S. prisoners released in South Vietnam will be given preliminary checkups at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Base, and at Da Nang, then flown to Clark.

Law Splits Families

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's new conflict-of-interest law has forced a daughter of a school trustee to leave home and left another trustee considering legal separation from her husband as a way around the legal technicality.

Georgia McCleary is serving his seventh term as a North York trustee and until recently her own apartment, eliminated the risk of running afoul of the legislation.

Fiona Nelson, finance chairman of the Metro school board, is married to a teacher in North York. She said the fiction of a separation agreement may be the only answer to the problem.

The new law concerning municipal councillors, school trustees and members of other local boards, states a conflict of interest occurs if a family member living with the official has an interest in a contract with the body of which the official is a member.

News Briefs

Man Beaten on Job

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of five elevator companies broke off talks Monday with the International Union of Elevator Constructors after a company supervisor was beaten in Hamilton. James Stephen, 33, of West Hill, Ont., was beaten by three men while working in the elevator machine room at a Hamilton apartment project. Mr. Stephen, employed by Armor Elevator Canada Ltd., was treated in hospital and released.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Aaron Thomson, 22, of Midland, Ont., was arraigned here Monday on a charge of attempting to sell a chemical formula reported to be worth millions of dollars to the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. last week. Thomson entered no plea to the specific charge of interstate transportation of stolen goods during the arraignment before Magistrate Herbert Maher. Bond was set at $5,000.

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Juan V. Corona has begun serving 25 consecutive life prison terms for the slaughter of 25 itinerant farm workers found buried two years ago in peach orchards along the Feather River. The 35-year-old Mexican national was sentenced Monday by Superior Court Judge Richard Patton while a crowd of about 250 young Mexican-Americans demonstrated in support of Corona outside the courthouse. One demonstrator was arrested for malicious mischief.

Increase in Unemployed Slows During January

OTTAWA (CP) — Estimates of actual unemployment took a jump in January over December, but the underlying trend of joblessness showed some improvement, Statistics Canada reported today.

An estimated 691,000 persons, 7.1 per cent of the labor force, were without work in mid-January, up from 384,000 or 4.2 per cent of the labor force in December.

But adjusted to take account of seasonal factors and to point up the blue trend, the statistics bureau said the percentage figure dipped to 6.2 in January from 6.7 in December.

The size of the labor force remained high and the number of persons working also showed a drop that was less than the usual slide between December and its pre-Christmas activity and January, the figures show.

Seasonal factors mean that more generous unemployment insurance benefits, with a shorter qualifying time at work, to become eligible for them, have a number of persons into the labor force who otherwise would not be there.

Adjusting adjustments for seasonal factors that iron out the hills and gullies resulted from winter layoffs in many economies compared to high summer activity, the bureau put the January participation rate at 57.3 per cent, highest since it started recording the figure.

California Sues Four Car Companies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Suits against American Motors, Ford, Chrysler and Volkswagen claiming their 1972 models failed to meet California exhaust emission standards and seeking more than $1.4 million in civil damages were filed in Superior Court Monday by the State Attorney General's office.

The suits also ask the court to fine officers and employees or distributors of the cars from selling any more automobiles regardless of year — in California until the penalties are paid.

Attorney-General Evelle J. Younger said he took the action on the recommendation of the state air resources board.

Freeman Ready In Doubt Do Nothing Truce Rule

That's one of the lessons he said he learned in Cyprus, "where I spent hours negotiating over very little."

Maj. Eastwood is the leader of one of three teams set up by the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) to supervise prisoner-of-war exchanges or releases.

"We're ready to go anytime," said Maj. Bill Freeman of Belleville, Ont. "We have been since we got here Jan. 27 and we're still here.

He said the six Canadians on the three ICCS POW teams are supposed to stay in the field for five days at a time before returning.

"According to the protocols signed in Paris, each POW teams will go to the prisoners' last place of detention," he said. "That could be five separate back in the jungle.

"The teams are self-sufficient food for five days, plus a survival kit.

Both men said they had received no special instructions about how to treat prisoners released at any of the exchanges.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin, leader of the Canadian ICCS delegation, has presented letters to the Vietnamese and Viet Cong governments for the last week asking for the release of Canadians, preferably through Ottawa.

By this he was understood to mean they could be turned over to the Canadians and flown to Hanoi with the old International Control Commission.

Pair Held Captive by Trio

Cornwall Bank Robbers Aided by Radio Reports

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — A woman held captive by three escaping would-be bank robbers Monday said they left her house after turning on the radio to hear that police believed they were still holed up in the bank.

Jean Morgan said the three men, two with hair and moustaches and the other wearing a mask, burst into her home and tied her and her brother, Emile Burton.

She said she overheard the men discussing ammunition, eluding police and breaking away from the scene.

They changed their minds, however, after hearing the radio report. They then took Mr. Burton's car and left. The car was found abandoned in a parking lot later but there was no sign of the trio.

The bedsheet began early late Monday night when the trio, armed with sawed-off shotguns entered the farm home of Conservation Reeve Robert Evans near Martintown, nine miles east of Cornwall, near the Quebec border.

Police said the men bound Mrs. Evans and the couple's three children early Monday, forced Mr. Evans into his car and drove to his Bank of Montreal branch in Cornwall, arriving about 5 a.m.

The four were unable to open the bank's time lock and an eight other employees—a man and seven women—filed to work later, they were handcuffed or tied with rope.

Police got ahead of the foiled holdup attempt when Helen Gilmour, another employee, arrived at the bank about 9 a.m.

She was unable to get into the bank, however, and contacted the telephone police about the situation. Mrs. Evans freed herself and also tipped police.

Police said Mrs. Gilmour spoke to the bank and spoke with Angus Robertson, the assistant manager, who was being held at gunpoint. He gave police a code word indicating there was a robbery in progress at the bank.

Shortly after the bank employees arrived at the bank, police broke up in front of the bank. The three men inside went out the back door and escaped. They were met by the fourth who drove the first getaway car.

Their take was $95—$90 from Mr. Evans and $5 from Mr. Robertson.

About 20 police surrounded the bank.

Det.-Insp. Percy Riviere of the Cornwall police said police were still seven men—filed to work at first became "according to the information we had they had left the bank." Riviere said. "We were going to shoot him."

"We were not sure how long-ages is there . . . we didn't want to rush the bank."

Police said Constable Sylvia Fitzpatrick freed herself about 10 a.m. and freed Mrs. Evans herself and also tipped police.

Police said the behavior of the bank and spoke with Angus Robertson, the assistant manager, who was being held at gunpoint. He gave police a code word indicating there was a robbery in progress at the bank.

Shortly after the bank employees arrived at the bank, police broke up in front of the bank. The three men inside went out the back door and escaped. They were met by the fourth who drove the first getaway car.

Man Burned to Death at 401 Roadblock

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Pierre Comier, 21, of St. Thomas, Ont., died about 2 a.m. this afternoon in the flaming wreckage of a car at a police roadblock on Highway 401 here.

Provincial police set up the roadblock after a provincial cop had a Port Hope bank of $2,000.

Police said Mr. Comier was a passenger in a car driven by Albert Hoole, 24, of Huntsville, Que. The car apparently stopped behind another car at the roadblock when a third car rammed into it from the rear.

Two of the cars burst into flames and Mr. Comier was trapped in the wreckage. Two others were taken to hospital with undetermined injuries.

Trevor Gilman of Toronto was charged with impaired driving after police said he was involved with his car in the fatal accident. The driver of the other car was not charged.

Thomas Bear, 35, of Colborne, Ont., was charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Police reported no arrests in the robbery.

Dynamite-laden Man Robs Bank

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — A grinning, chewing gum bank robber with a bundle of dynamite sticks in his belly made $2,000 from a bank here Monday and escaped on foot.

Police said Mr. Comier was a passenger in a car driven by Albert Hoole, 24, of Huntsville, Que. The car apparently stopped behind another car at

"I want cash for that," the man told her, waving a gun in her face.

Police said the teller immediately rang the alarm but the gunman fled with the bank loot.

He got 10 sticks of dynamite, connected to a fuse and I'll blow you all up," Chief O'Neil quoted him as saying.

Case Dismissed

You can't always believe your eyes.

Dalton Kring was sitting in his Shannonville home one evening last October when he heard a loud bang outside. Rushing to the window, he saw that a car had struck his air compressor parked by the road.

Mr. Kring saw a man emerge from the driver's side and recognized him as Lorne Ray, a friend, also of Shannonville.

Two provincial police officers arrived about 20 minutes later and arrested Mr. Ray, charging him with impaired driving, having consumed liquor in excess of .08 per cent blood alcohol and driving with a suspended licence.

But Monday in provincial court, another Shannonville man, Ernie Mayo, confessed it was he who drove into the compressor. He was testifying under the Canada Evidence Act.

He said he left the scene and went into a neighbor's house where he had two cups of coffee. Asked why, he said, "I didn't see anything better to drink."

A few minutes later, he testified, Mr. Ray's wife, whom he knew, came into the house and told him the car husband had been arrested.

Mr. Mayo said he immediately returned to the accident scene where he told his story to a third policeman who had just arrived. He pointed in Mr. Ray to a third policeman who had just arrived. He pointed in court to Constable Robert Burkholder and identified him as the officer.

Questioned about this alleged conversation, Constable Burkholder said he did not attend the accident and had never seen Mr. Mayo before.

Judge Clendenning, citing doubts arising from the evidence, ruled in favor of Mr. Ray and dismissed the case.

Plan Costs Up

PICTON — Members of the Prince Edward County planning board have been advised that it will cost approximately $6,500 to update portions of its draft plan and background studies.

This cost was questioned by Picton reeve James Bird last night during a meeting of town council. Reeve Bird said he did not understand why the plan must be updated when it has not been submitted yet. He added that initially it was estimated the plan would cost $20,000 but this figure has become $30,000.

Reports of county planning board minutes routinely are forwarded to town council for examination.

Curve Causes Complaint

City hall should do something about the sharp curve on Cannifton Road north of College Street which poses a danger for school children crossing the road at this point.

That is the claim of Mrs. F. Thompson, who yesterday requested a request for proper signs and for a school patrol to members of the city traffic committee.

Mrs. Thompson said numerous children — including several of her own — cross Cannifton Road just south of the curve on their way to the Hillcrest school across an open field.

Town Washrooms Defended

TRENTON—Councillor Ronald Price believes there is still a way for the town to provide washrooms on the government dock as a service for everyone.

He voiced his opinion at last night's council meeting when town council's decision not to spend $20,000 and receive grants of $2,000 more for construction of public washrooms and shower facilities at the dock was presented.

Councillor Price suggested the washrooms be constructed of wood and be open to the public as soon as possible for tourists during the summer months. "If they (the washrooms) don't pan out then move them over to Centennial Park."

Council explained the reason for turning down the proposal was mainly due to the facility of vandalism and stripping while proper supervision was lacking if the facility was open to the general public.

Apparently there is a need for washrooms and shower facilities at Centennial Park and over-all plans for the recreation area call for their installation with adequate supervision to be provided as well.

Council approved the appointment of Belleville barrister Don Templeman to represent the town in connection with the hearing with regard to Senior Citizens' Centre proposed for Centennial Park.

Additional expenditures were approved for construction in connection with the new municipal offices and parking garage on the site of the old post office. The sum of $1,000 was allowed so that steps in the building would be replaced to ramps for access to people confined to wheelchairs. The sum was agreed to share 50 per cent of the cost up to $2,500 for extra sliding doors planned in the building of the new municipal office and parking garage. The added expense requested when contractor Myron Wagners Construction Co. Ltd. compelled to work from a different survey than is in the contract.

A bylaw to rebire D. H. Tucker of Stirling as animal control officer is being held up for final reading at the request of Councillor Ronald Price. Mr. Tucker's agreement would run for two years at an annual rate of $2,000 a year to the taxpayer. Councillor Price said he wanted to talk with Mr. Tucker about a report that the town was going to be fined $100 a day by mais longer than the three days they are to be held before the owners claim them.

Picton Parking Plan Proposed

PICTON — Picton mayor Harvey Hall has indicated he is closely with his council in the weeks ahead studying solutions for town parking problems.

Mayor McFarland last night declined to say if he would name a special committee to plan with him for the facilities "no matter" needed, although he is unsure of the cost for the project he now has in mind.

The mayor reflected that the town needs parking space, that Picton's streets are narrow and a lockup and said if the town is to have a police administration when the former Picton police force was absorbed he probably would have to have fought to save the building.

He noted the demolition needed to create a parking lot "down the drain" since the Picton Business Improvement Area fires nor parking facilities since the school went to town hall.

Mayor McFarland observed that $75,000 is needed for the town's needed facilities and that a parking structure can be purchased for $15,000 but then he originally expected.

"How much it will involve I don't know but I'm afraid to do it the best thing," he told council last night.

Hatcheries Hit By Epidemic

Quinte-district anglers who fish the lakes and streams of the Tweed forestry district in future could have their caldest of brook trout severely slimmed.

It's due to an abnormally high disease rate in provincial hatcheries — source of fish stocking programs.

Preliminary estimates so far indicate there will be only enough fish in stock 65 or 70 ems, say officials.

The cutback scale is likely to be province-wide. Says a ministry spokesman at Tweed:

"While disease is always a problem in fish hatcheries, the increased incidence can be traced to two factors — (1) heavy demands on the hatchery system and (2) increased domesticated breeding stock."

The problem has emerged despite and —ironically — in part because of expanded hatchery facilities.

A core problem is an Ontario United States treaty under which the province rehabilitates stocks of fish in lakes Huron and Superior. This program demanded increased numbers of fish and new hatchery facilities.

But, despite "extensive research" no site has yet been found that can provide the amount of fresh, cold water flow necessary to a modern hatchery.

Meantime, existing hatcheries have been expanded with most being used "as intensively as possible" to keep up with the demand for fish stock says the spokesman.

There's an adverse side effect: Such intensive use means crowding. Fish under crowded conditions are more likely to become diseased and transmit disease to other fish.

There's a further complication: Domesticated species of brook and rainbow trout, bred primarily for ease of handling and fast growth, appear more susceptible to disease than hardier, wild species.

"Under the prevailing conditions of intensive use," this susceptibility makes an already serious situation worse," says the official.

The result? In some hatcheries producing cold water fish — especially brook and rainbow trout — disease rates in "recent months have been extremely high."

Hardest hit are the Chatsworth hatchery near Owen Sound, and Hills Lake Hatchery near Peterborough. Hills Lake already has been quarantined.

"With such drastically reduced supplies, we can stock only a comparatively s m a l l number of lakes and streams can be stocked this year," says the Tweed forestry district official. "Those sites receiving trout will tend to be popular, heavily - fished spots with easy access and high rate of use."

Trustees Go to School

Becoming familiar with all departments of board administration are newly elected trustees Kenneth Little and Don Thrush.

Close Call in Bush

GUNTER — Kicking each other to keep awake as cold numbed their senses, three young men early Monday trekked through the night to safety near this north Hastings County bush country community.

"We were a little worried a little puzzled," was the way Allan Hinchey, who lives three north of Highway 7, first described the ordeal of the trio's ordeal.

Then, seriously, he admitted: "We were damn near frozen. We kicked each other to keep awake."

Yesterday, with Dave Ingle, 20, of Tweed, and 17-year-old Harold Price, Actinolite, he was recovering at home from exhaustion and exposure — but, apparently, no serious injury.

They figured they walked eight hours, stumbling through the ice of creeks, hopefully seeking to find their bearings in the darkness of the frozen bushland.

How many miles they did not know. The misadventure began near Northshore on Highway 62, and ended on the Wesleyanton Road somewhere near here.

As for tought safety, the trio was unaware that provincial police — reinforced by off-duty officers — were probing the bush on snowmobiles in a vain, night-long search for traces of them.

Aided from unexpected ordnal had its beginnings when the three — driving north with two other young men from Tweed — decided to "find an exploration around" the bush near Bannockburn.

They left their companions — who were to return to them — about 2:30 p.m. Sunday and began walking into the bush where "we ended up getting slightly mixed up and lost".

Darkness fell more quickly than they expected, adding to their apprehension. They kept on trekking, at one point following an Ontario Hydro line cut through the bush.

David Ingles' mother, Mrs. Gerald Ingles, said they came to several bush and logging roads, but could not get their bearings in the darkness.

At times, to keep their spirits up, says Allan, the three sang songs and told jokes.

They stumbled through the ice covers on creeks and fell down — sometimes and were forced through the ice.

Meantime, their companions who returned to the spot where they left the trio from the bush, had called provincial police at Madoc and Bancroft with no sign of their friends.

Two on-duty OPP officers and two others off duty, began searching the area for missing darkness on snowmobiles.

They found the trio at about 1 a.m. or so when he and the others finally arrived at what proved to be the Weslenkoon Road —somewhere between there and the lake 20 miles away. One of the best maintained — and occasionally heavily - travelled access roads in the area — they decided to stay put. (By Wood, Gunter and Gilmour are about 22 miles apart.)

Breaking brush, they lit a fire to keep warm, and were still fuelling it about 2 a.m. when a man drove in on a truck. Allan said they never got his name, but he was headed to Eldorado and gave them a ride as far as Madoc.

From there, says Allan, they hitchhiked to his home a few miles east and immediately went to sleep — unawafe, he adds that they were objects of an intensive search under airway in the bush.

Allan said they didn't learn the three had returned to safety until they received Staff Sergeant Ken Hitchcock residence about 9 a.m. yesterday.

Bus Service Rumored

TRENTON — Town council has been approached by owners of a local bus company, requesting a franchise to operate a service in the town, it was learned this weekend.

According to sources, Loyalist Coach Lines of Carrying Place wants to put buses back on the streets either on a regular route system or as a dial-a bus service.

More than a decade ago, a bus line operated in the town but was discontinued because of failing patronage.

Complete details of the proposed service are not available, but it would seem council will require extensive research into such an operation before permission would be granted.

The owners of the bus lines may be asked to closely examine systems in Belleville, Port Hope and centres with small transit systems. Council is concerned that if a service is introduced but does not prove profitable, the town will have to bail it out.

It is felt that once operating, a line would be hard to discontinue.

Council will also look into any provincial or federal grants available as assistance for improving or establishing transportation in town centres. Such grants are being provided in an effort to relieve traffic tension and reduce congested private traffic in downtown cores.

Rehiring Protested

PICTON — Picton councillors last night voted to rehire animal control offi.cer Donald Tucker of Stirling despite opposition from deputyreeve Ross Crookwright.

Mr. Crookwright suggested the single-handed officer selected able to the town when the dog catcher is re-instated from his $2,000 salary he will receive for a year's work.

The deputy-reeve reported he has received many calls from concerned residents complaining of dogs running at large. Several said they had been bitten by the animal control officer who was hired six months ago to succeed Wayne Cook residence about 9 a.m. yesterday.

"My objection in the hundreds of dogs he's not catching," stressed the deputyreeve.

An annual report showed Mr. Tucker patrolled in Picton on 35 occasions in 1972 and impounded eight dogs.

Deputy - reeve Crookwright suggested council should advertise locally for a dog-catcher who could provide immediate action on complaints.

It was noted a local man, Wayne Soules, had applied for the job but lacked the required facilities for impounding strays. Also he requested $200 more each year than Mr. Tucker would receive.

Council agreed to rehire Mr. Tucker and to mention to him the areas of town where dogs are creating problems for residents.

Snowmobile Law Would Tighten Restrictions

Municipalities are responsible for snowmobile bylaws and Belleville city solicitor John Miller has drawn up a new one which includes among other things an age limit of 16 for an operator's permit, a ban on operating the machines between 1 h.m. and 6 a.m. and a requirement that they be equipped with mufflers to meet noise order.

Word of the redrafting of the bylaw was revealed yesterday to Belleville Rotary Club by Inspector Ralph Blatchford of the city police department. He said he understood it would come before city council shortly.

In a wide-ranging survey of the snowmobile phenomenon, Inspector Blatchford noted that while there were three categories of persons — those who are avid enthusiasts, those who are deeply annoyed and those who are indifferent, with variations depending on the psychological climate of the moment — one thing was sure, "snowmobiles are here, as they are known, "are here to stay and multiply." And they are here to stay both as a recreational device and as a commercial tool.

There are at present 40 manufacturers of these vehicles in Canada and a conservative estimate indicates that a year from now, ownership will total some 2.4 million.

The Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications licensed 230,000 machines in 1972 and expects to issue an additional 30,000 in 1973. And, while provincial legislation decrees that all machines be licensed, the fact is some 10,000 machines are unlicensed.

"To those who decry the industry — who wish it would evaporate," Inspector Blatchford went on, "I can only suggest that you look at the economy."

Up to $1½ million in license fees was such a factor, he said, not to mention the marketing of parts, clothing and trailers. And, in addition: food and shelter at recreational areas, the winterizing of the summer cottage, even the use of motorized mobile homes, as well as the increase in motel use on winter weekends. One motel owner in North Hastings, said Inspector Blatchford, had increased his annual gross by 50 per cent through being open the year round and 30 per cent of it stemmed from snowmobilers.

But while the sport was here to stay and while the economy benefited, the police point out that such new contrivances created problems and, unfortunately, snowmobiles were "producing an amazing number of tragic incidents." Among them, he said, was the death at the weekend of Toronto Metro assistant police chief Ross Hall.

A recent study, he said, had determined that the following were the most predominant reasons for accidents and injuries: 1. Alcohol. 2. Not knowing the machine and its capabilities. 3. Unsafe loa. 4. Railroad tracks and unsuspected trains. 5. Lack of adequate warning signs of the road. 6. Travelling alone and getting lost. 7. Improper and loose clothing.

Inspector Blatchford said as far as the law provides concerned, while he considered it a fallacy that the newest immigrant should know the laws of the country on setting foot on Canadian soil, he did not feel it too much to expect people, old enough to run motor vehicles, to know the law.

"In criminal law one must recognize a responsibility to exercise judgment above the various degrees of negligence and wanton disregard for the safety of others.

"In provincial law there is an onus again with respect to carelessness as well as the fact that snow vehicles should not be operated at the recklessly access highways and only on the shoulder portion of highways, except in remote areas.

"As well, one must recognize limits under provincial statute the fact of careless driving or snowmobile is not restricted to highways, but can be used to applied to public and private property such as schoolgrounds, public parks and farmers' fields."

Liability insurance, the topic of another address, was touched on as was the reporting of all accidents causing personal injuries or damage exceeding $200 to other people's property.

Board Gets LIP Grant

Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board has been awarded a federal government Local Initiative Project grant of about $21,000.

The money will be used for school libraries and to hire painters for the winter.

The grant will enable the separate school board to hire 10 people, said business administrator E. J. Lumley. Three will be painters and the remaining seven will work at improving a school libraries, repairing and catalogueing library books, preparing a film and audio - visual collection and collecting unneeded but still useful books for assignment to underdeveloped countries.

North Park Flood Relief Awaits Builders' Sewers

Flooding conditions on North Park Street following heavy rains will not be remedied until the planned housing subdivisions get under way.

This was learned Monday by members of the city traffic and light committee, who were told by City Engineer Wilbur Purcell that the flooding storm sewers were constructed by developers through the subdivision area.

The storm sewers are to be installed by the developers as per their subdivision agreement with the city and would be over-sized to take care of surface water on North Park Street. The city pays 25 per cent for over-sizing.

The committee was told the developers were now getting cost estimates for the sewer installation. Until the sewers are installed, pumping is the only way to get rid of the water.

Flooding on North Park St. was the cause of numbers of complaints from city council members after last Friday's rain.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey told the committee that she had received more than 50 calls as a result of flooding in various parts of the city.

The city engineer said the sewers from Park Street also eventually drain into the new east end Park Street storm sewer which was constructed last summer.

REAL ESTATE:

WHAT MAKES A HOUSE SELL FAST?

It is a time-honored axiom in the real estate profession that "there is a buyer for every house" — a fact that probably comes apparent to anyone engaged for any length of time in residential transactions.

Why, then, are some houses a problem to sell, remaining on the market for months and months, while others are sold in a buyer for every house, then what happened to the buyers of those houses?

The explanation usually lies with the fact that they were improperly listed. A misjudgement may later be corrected, of course, but the first impression is important and sale and valuable time has been lost.

A fair price is foremost, based on the type of home, location and condition. If a fair price is first established, then the terms and conditions should be tailored for the home's usual type of buyer.

Engineer Resigns

PICTON — Town council has accepted the resignation of its engineer David McIntosh, who has taken another job.

Employed by the McFarland Construction Company for 17 years, Mr. McIntosh was hired by town council on Monday, instantly one year ago. Prior to becoming a town employee he held a seat with the public utilities commission.

Mr. McIntosh said he was not yet free to reveal where his new job will take him, but it is a letter of resignation noted the offer was "too attractive to refuse."

The engineer's resignation will become effective February 16, 1973.

End of an Era

By Sunday the long-drawn out "execution" was under way. The residents had already moved out of course and there was a day or two when in the night-time watches it looked like something from the covers of a paper-back mystery novel, except that even the last dying lights had been extinguished. The demolition of St. Agnes Manor was under way, the windows in the front section were gone Sunday and the bare bones of the walls and high ceilings were visible.

By mid-morning yesterday the shell was still there and the distinctive Tuscan tower was still visible even from farther down the street, as it always had been even when the rest of the building was obscured until the observer was more or less abreast of it. Still, the building's fate was sealed.

Workmen, lurching heavily under the weight of them, were carrying radiators, like so many coffins, from the old building and stacking them outside. A television aerial swung drunkenly over the edge of the roof after two men had eased it down.

A citizen asked us recently about the possibility of acquiring some two by four from the property and others apparently had had the same idea, for an elderly woman was placing timber into the trunk of her car and a man was carrying an armful of smaller stuff from a side door. Another demolition man was tugging at a fire ladder.

Another chapter was closing on Bridge Street and another connection to the planning concepts of our times — which as we all know is the subject of continued debate — was under way.

If anyone cared particularly, it was not noticeable. There were no pickets, no demonstrators, no tears that were visible — only the workmen doing their job. A historic place, one of Belleville's most interesting, was coming down.

Is it a trend? There was the old Hastings County Museum too — another recent victim of our times. And for what? Extra parking space, they say, for the county building.

Bilingualism Costly

Keith Spicer is a government man in Ottawa and he has a job with a difference. He is Commissioner of Official Languages and as such is responsible for upholding the equal status of English and French in federal agencies and institutions.

It is an odd title and how Mr. Spicer covers the considerable ground that must be involved in fulfilling his task is not revealed, though he has answered questions around to check on the fluency or otherwise of people in the various government departments. However, since the civil service complement runs into thousands he has his work cut out.

Be that as it may, Mr. Spicer has just issued his second report to Parliament and the impression he has amassed — small staff or not — would seem to be considerable. Sufficient, that is, to be able to say that the teaching of second language skills is a "country-wide catastrophe."

The Commissioner does not mince words. He says: the money spent by provincial and federal governments on second language courses is producing meagre effects.

It has seen known for some time of course that the costly efforts to produce bilingual bureaucrats has been in trouble. Now it seems the efforts to drill it into the youngest task, in the schools, is not doing too well either.

By the end of 1974 the current federal program for the encouragement of facility in both English and French will have cost some $760 million. It is a pretty penny as they say and one which on Mr. Spicer's own admission, has fallen far short of expectations in terms of progress made at the billingual level.

Rise of Japan and China to Super-Power Status

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Who will be the world powers of the 1980s? Not necessarily the United States and the U.S.S.R. according to a recent futuristic study by the planning and co-ordinating division of the U.S. state department.

Watch for the continued rise of Japan as the capitalistic giant of the future and China as the Communist one, predicts the state department study. Implied was that neither the world economically nor will war its admitted big power partner of the 1970s. That is Japan may not work with the U.S. nor China with the U.S.S.R.

The latter, at this point in time, looks closer than the 1980s. The two Communist super-powers have been at each other's throats almost since the days of the late Nikita Khrushchev in power. The tendency over the last decade has slowly increased.

The falling away of Japan and the U.S. will be much more subtle if it takes place—unlikely edly over conflicting trade issues. The growing Japanese economic penetration of the U.S. worries American industries and companies more than ever and Congress is about to apply punitive tariff and quota measures.

But the future seat of Japanese-American clashes might be the times when they compete in the very near future for the largest market on earth, the 800 million consumers of China.

Great power status however, will not rely solely on this anticipated trend, but in India's case on her ability to perpetuate a democratically-ruled sub-continent in a region of many totalitarian systems.

In any case, her estimated population by 1985, at the crushing accelerating rate of births will be close to China's present population—the hundreds of millions of human beings giving her global status in a world which will be desperate by 1985 to feed them all.

Then there are the economic power blocs—the European Common Market and further east, the Communist or Red-block common market. Superficial in structure and purpose, each will probably generate a political power of its own, putting fear into whatever countries are left outside of these economic super-powers, for example, Spain, Norway (if they are still outside the common market by 1985).

In the Third World, Brazil is sure to become a world power. In her own right, even if her present capitalistic-oriented military regime doesn't hold out, until then. The industrial thrust she has brought about since seizing power in 1964, (almost a decade ago in fact!), and her still growing internal market which could be 150 millions by the mid-1980s, mean it will supercede perhaps India as a large power to be reckoned with.

All these prognostications talk about growth (either of populations or economies) and boom. But internal deteriorating trends in the two super-powers of 1973 will help change their status.

The state department study obviously doesn't say so. But the "American Empire" like the Roman one long before it, is many societies in one which have several aspects each sharer in the recent past, while against black, poor against the well-to-do.

Their unresolved conflicts could lead to greater internal violence in the early 1980s.

Environment Minister to Step Up War on Litter

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

A most unusual news conference was held here a few days ago by Environment Minister James Auld.

One reason it was unusual was that Mr Auld really didn't have that much to say.

And then beyond this because the minister was given a most intensive grilling.

The announced point of the conference was to report that two sub-committees of the study group on waste management were to be set up.

One of these was to investigate beverage containers and to make recommendations by late spring or early summer.

The second was to review dairy containers.

But the real purpose appeared to be to get across to the public that the government wasn't forgetting about waste management, and particularly litter, and intended to do something about it.

Reporters, however, weren't buying too much of this and were putting the bag on Mr. Auld.

The most persistent question was: why had not something been done long ago.

The minister was talking about possibly banning all non-returnable bottles, or perhaps imposing a tax on them. Or, again, putting such a stiff deposit on them that the public would take pains to return them.

Non-returnable bottles had been on the market for 10 years, newspapermen said. Why was it that only now the government was facing up to them. And that, why was it still having more research done, Dr. Auld simply just hasn't got it, overright.

There are thousands of jobs involved. Even B.C. and the other western provinces which have put on controls aren't in the same position for the bulk of their containers would be made in Ontario.

After this conference, however, there definitely was an impression that this time Ontario would act on litter.

But since it knows it has to be cautious as it can not to damage the economy any more than possible.

Care For A Degree In Magic Old Boy?

BBC London Letter

A warning to employers to beware of academic "qualifications" that can be bought through the post was issued by BBC World Service recently.

Reporter Stuart Hibberd explained that educational bodies were worried about the number of bogus academic institutions that are springing up at home and abroad.

They sell Bachelor of Arts degrees for as little as £28, or award the title of Professor Emeritus on payment of £100. The subject doesn't matter much—you can take your pick from an impressive-sounding range including hypnotherapy, educational science, human relations, even magic.

In a recent magazine article this booming trade was exposed by Lyndon Jones, principal of West London College. He discovered more than 200 bogus establishment — 30 of them in Britain. The problem, he said, is not the obviously ridiculous qualification (such as "cosmic mastery") but those which appear to be sound qualifications from respectable institutions.

Advertisements offering fake degrees, including those emanating from Britain, are particularly widespread in Commonwealth countries where desire to obtain degrees is especially keen. Bona fide universities in Britain are being plagued by inquiries from all over the world asking whether they can vouch for degrees which, by implication, at least, appear to come from them.

More alarming still is the danger that "degrees" in medicine, dentistry and so on may be issued to totally unqualified people who then proceed to practise.

Diplomas "suitable for framing" are available at extra cost. Elaborately inscribed, often in execrable Latin, they offer "ecclesiastic add chival-ric orders" or confer doctorates in recognition of your extraordinary effort in connection with the economical and industrial alignment of our country.

Perhaps the most extraordinary example of the ease with which it is possible to obtain some sort of impressive qualification was discovered by Mr. Jones in the early days of the campaign. A postal qualification was obtained by a certain Oliver Greenhalgh whose application form stated that he was "a rodent operative". Two referees vouched for the fact that he had "worked diligently" during the period they had known him. Oliver Greenhalgh was a cat.

Smokers and Non-Smokers

Brockville Recorder and Times

This newspaper has carried comments about the nuisance, and health hazard, that the smoking of others poses for the non-smoker. People who don't smoke are quite often forced to sit in smoke-filled rooms at public and private meetings simply because the majority of those present have no consideration for the non-smoker. An interesting survey in relation to this topic was carried out in Cornwall by the city's newspaper last week.

The subject of a possible ban on smoking in public places came under discussion at a recent meeting of the Cornwall Environmental Advisory Committee. As a result it was felt a recommendation should go to the city council to impose a ban on smoking in city-sponsored activities. The committee, however, felt that it would be better to test public reaction before proceeding along the recommendation. The Cornwall Standard-Freeholder in order to test public reaction, did a survey based on the question: Do you think smoking should be banned from public places? Nine out of 10 people, many of them smokers, thought there should be a ban.

A typical reply was: "Smokers are harmful to those who don't smoke. Smokers should be separated from non-smokers in public places." Another said: "I smoke but I have not forgotten how it bothered my eyes when I went to the theatre and so many people were smoking". Eye pollution is a side-effect of smoking that is quite often overlooked in criticisms of smoking at public gatherings.

Cornwall is smoking conscious as the result of a "Five Days Smoking Plan" clinic held last Fall with the aim of aiding people to quit smoking. Sponsored by the Seventh Day Adventist Church and supported by the Canadian Cancer Society, the Heart Foundation, the TB and Respiratory Diseases Association, the clinic, if nothing else, has pointed up the hazards of cigarette smoking and drawn to the public of the non-smoker in smoke-filled rooms.

Perhaps it is a bit infringement of human rights to ban smoking in public places but the suggestion of separating the smokers from the non smokers makes sense . . . at least to the smokers and non-smokers interviewed in Cornwall.

And in the 'Clear' Blue Sky

New York Times

The passenger plane revs up, gets airborne, and — even before the pretty young thing takes the drink orders—a sign begins to tell the cabin's gaze-ette smoke. In this the way to have an adult time. The level of carbon monoxide in contained cabin filled with cigarette smoke exceeds legal limits or air pollution.

The supposed rule would also benefit the courteous smoker who otherwise might hesitate to light up. It is a workable compromise between those who smoke and passengers who don't mind filled with dangerous smoke exceeds legal limits or air pollution.

The supposed rule would also benefit the courteous smoker who otherwise might hesitate to light up. It is a workable compromise between those who smoke and passengers who don't mind inhaling the irritant and health hazard. A separate smoking section would be mandatory on all airlines.

Boston Parley to Try To Link Eight Murders

BOSTON (AP) — Sandra Ekramjian decided to take a few days off from her job as a cable last Nov. 20 so she could visit her family in East Meadows, N.Y. She left her Cambridge apartment and headed south. She was hitch-hiking.

Two days later and only a mile away, Diamaris Synge Gillespie was running late. She only had a few minutes to get to her part-time job in Boston. She looked for a quick ride to the nearest subway station. She, too, was hitch-hiking.

Neither Miss Ekramjian, 21, nor Miss Gillespie, 22, was ever seen alive again. They were two of eight young Boston-area women who have been slain since last summer.

As scores of lawmen and prosecutors gather in Boston today to attempt to find a common link in this area's most recent wave of killings, a district attorney says he has sufficient evidence to prosecute for the slaying of Miss Gillespie.

But law officials say they do not yet have conclusive evidence to tie one man to the eight murders, all of them committed against young, white women and all by strangulation or suffocation, recalling the case of the Boston Strangler, in which 13 women died alone in their apartments in a strangulation in 1962. Those murders remain unsolved.

Albert DeSalvo, who claimed to be the Strangler, is serving a life sentence in Massachusetts for unrelated assaults on four women. He was never charged in any of the Boston Strangler deaths.

As Boston-area law officials work on the most recent series of killings, their counterparts on the suburban North Shore are investigating a wave of rapes.

Two attempted rapes last weekend in that area brought the number of such attacks and attempted attacks to 13 since November. In nearly every case, police say the attacker approaches his victim wearing a ski mask and takes her to a deserted area where he is joined by another man.

But the focus of police is on the murders of the young women. All were between 18 and 20. Most were sexually active. Four were college students. At least four were last seen hitch-hiking. Two others have met her death when she picked up a hitch-hiker.

John J. Droney, the district attorney for Middlesex County, says he will present to a grand jury "within days" sufficient evidence to indict a man for Miss Gillispie's murder.

That man, authorities say, is behind bars — charged in an unrelated crime. They claim to have evidence from the man's apartment, and from a car he once owned.

Police in Cambridge, meanwhile, say they have evidence linking the deaths of Miss Gillespie, Miss Ekramjian and that of Ruth A. Hamilton, 22, a school teacher whose body was found in her Cambridge apartment Dec. 24. Miss Ekramjian's body was discovered in a park at Brockton, 25 miles southwest of Boston, Nov. 28.

Police believe that Miss Hamilton was abducted while driving her car. She was taken to the apartment, they say, and forced to write a $385 cheque. Then she was killed.

A key to the case, according to police, is a blood-stained gold Cadillac found last month at a salvage company in Brockton.

The rear seat and trunk of the car—which was just about to be crumpled into bits when police found it—are covered with blood. Police are now trying to determine whether the car might have been the death site for several of the victims.

Constables Tell Court Of Beating of Accused

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Cpl. Wilfred Lewis of the Wallaceburg police department allowed a white youth to beat two Indian brothers in the identification room at the Wallaceburg police station last Sept. 2, a city police officer testified Monday.

Lewis is charged with assaulting Bradley Sands, 16, by holding him by the hair. The trial was adjourned until today after Crown evidence was completed.

Three full-time Wallaceburg police officers and one auxiliary constable gave testimony Monday of a scene at their police station when Kim Robinson, 18, victim of an alleged assault by the two brothers, was allowed to "get even" with his assailants.

Court was told Bradley Sands and his brother, Donovan, and Robinson were brought to the station after the brothers were arrested for allegedly beating Robinson on a city street.

Lewis asked Robinson if he wanted to get even with the brothers and Robinson answered "Yes." Constable Larry Murdock testified.

Lewis first directed Robinson into the identification room then grabbed Bradley Sands by the hair and threw him across the door of the room," Constable Murdock said.

"A fight was allowed to happen," the constable testified, adding that the Indian youth did not defend himself. Lewis ended the fight when he said: "That's enough."

Constable Murdock said Donovan Sands was directed into the room after his brother was removed to the cells and "a fight was allowed to happen again."

Donovan Sands was punched several times in the nose and eyes and "There was a lot of blood," the constable testified. He said the brothers were "very co-operative in the street following their arrest".

Constable Murdock said he had been a member of the department for only a few months at the time and "didn't feel it was my place to tell a senior officer what to do."

Constable Del Lunn told the court the Sands brothers, sitting in the lunchroom at the time, probably couldn't hear Lewis when he asked Robinson if he wanted to get even.

Constable Lunn said Lewis later said:

"Now look it, you guys, you never saw nothing."

However, Constable Lunn said he and Constable Murdock advised Staff-Sgt. Walter Holmes of the incident when he came on duty later that evening.

Constable Darnell Bell said Lewis asked Robinson if he wanted to "get back" at the Indians. Robinson said "Yes, I do," and the corporal said "You'll have your chance," Constable Bell testified.

However, he told Provincial Judge Lloyd Henriksen the Indian brothers were "mouthy" and "very uncs-operative" after their arrest.

Layoffs Avoided

More Than Enough Sign to Quit Mine

GRANDE CACHE, Alta. (CP) — The spectacular rebirth of Alberta's coal industry ran into problems last week when growing pains surfaced in this mining community 230 miles northwest of Edmonton.

McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. announced plans to lay off 148 miners at its nearby Smoky River plant to save money. It was estimated that the move would result in a population loss of 450 persons, about 10 per cent of the total.

It was the first major setback in the industry which had its heyday in the 1920s. The industry slumped during the 1940s and 50s following the use of oil and natural gas resources. It started to boom again in the late 1960s when energy-hungry Japanese industry negotiated contracts to supply cokeable coal for voracious steel-making blast furnaces.

Grande Cache is one of Alberta's newest towns, carved out of scenic wilderness, with new housing served by paved roads and underground utilities provided by injections from the provincial treasury. It was established Sept. 1, 1966.

The layoffs came as a shock to the residents, particularly the local of the United Steel Workers of America.

Initially, union members rejected the layoff plan and there were suggestions that if men were laid off, the remainder would quit work.

However, at a weekend meeting, it was agreed job reductions would be made on a voluntary basis with full severance benefits—one month's pay for each year worked—to those miners who wanted to leave.

The new deal emerged following a union-management meeting Saturday attended by R. B. Fulton of Toronto, company president, and union officers, including Jed Farmer, Local 7621 president.

Mr. Farmer said the union office would keep a list that any member could sign and if the figure of 148 was reached, layoffs would be accomplished without anyone having to be laid off.

However, when the list was completed Monday, there were 174 names on it, 26 more than were required to leave.

Mr. Farmer said this indicated the extent of employee dissatisfaction at the mine.

The company agreed to select the most senior employees who wanted to go—a reversal of its practice—and lay them off with one months severance pay for each year worked.

Canada's Immigration Regulations have changed.

As of January 1, 1973—all visitors coming to Canada must have an Employment Visa if they intend to work here, or be registered with an Immigration Officer if they intend to visit more than three months.

Those who arrived before January 1, 1973 have until March 31, 1973 to register at a Canada Immigration Centre if they plan to stay beyond March 31. Some will already have legal permission to work here, or stay more than three months. They needn't register until this authorization is to expire.

Exemptions

All Canadian citizens and landed immigrants are, of course, exempt.

All diplomats and visiting Armed Forces personnel performing official duties here are exempt.

Foreign newsmen, visiting businessmen, clergymen, and professional athletes don't need an Employment Visa, but they must register to stay here more than three months.

There are other exemptions: full details are available at any Canada Immigration Centre.

Coming to Canada to work?

Visitors will not be allowed admission to Canada to search for work.

Arrangements for an Employment Visa for a foreign worker can best be made in Canada by the Canadian employer. He should contact the nearest Canada Manpower Centre, which will determine whether Canadian workers are available for the job. The Employment Visa will only be issued if no qualified Canadian citizen or landed immigrant is available.

Penalties

Any violation of the new regulations is an offence, and could result in a fine of up to $500, and/or imprisonment up to six months, and removal from Canada.

Summary

From now on, all visitors must have an Employment Visa to work in Canada; or be registered with an Immigration Officer if they intend to stay here more than three months.

is available at any Canada Immigration Centre, and at many Canada Manpower Centres. And the information is free.

Quebec Labor Chief Joins Pair in Jail

QUEBEC (CP) — Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, returned to jail Monday night to join Quebec's other two top labor leaders in serving a one-year sentence for contempt of court.

Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, and Yvon Charbonneau, president of the Quebec Teachers Corp., returned to jail last Friday after the Supreme Court of Canada turned down their appeals of the convictions.

Mr. Laberge held a news conference Monday afternoon after a luncheon with about 100 fellow union officials. Thomas after a Florida vacation which he cut short during the weekend to return to Quebec, Mr. Laberge said:

"I don't find it funny to go back in to Orsainville prison."

Asked if the three planned to ask for pardon, Mr. Laberge said:

"There's no question of a common front. I don't know what the others have done. I've just arrived.

"But I will never ask for pardon for an action I've taken in full knowledge of the issues and in accordance with the directives of hundreds and of thousands of our members, and for which I have no regret."

Mr. Laberge joined Mr. Charbonneau and Mr. Pepin in a province-wide public servants strike last year.

They called the alliance of the province's three labor federations a "common front" of public servants' unions.

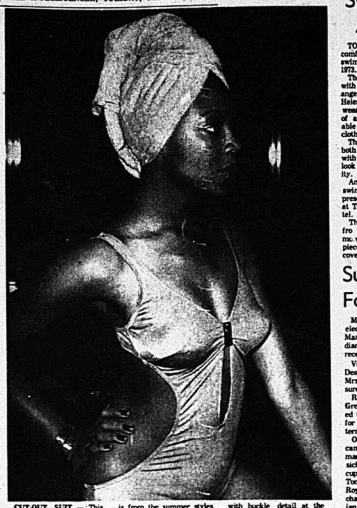
Farm Leader Would Jail Bad Corporate Citizens

WINNIPEG (CP) — Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers' Union, has called for the imprisonment of officers of large, multinational corporations which are not "good corporate citizens."

Good corporate citizenship is a myth in Canada, and drastic steps are needed to make foreign companies operate more responsibly, he told the Manitoba legislature's standing committee on economic development.

Another alternative, Mr. Atkinson suggested, would be to expropriate the companies, like railroads, however, to name any particular company and said he was advocating penalties "as a matter of principle."

The legislative committee is currently studying the subject of foreign ownership.



Earlier in Mr. Atkinson presentation, Mr. Atkinson referred to the farmer and food processing industries as dominated by foreign interests.

He said Kraft Foods Ltd. is responsible for marketing between 70 and 80 per cent of all cheese in Canada and even co-operatives have become "slaves to the company's economic power."

In the fertilizer industry, foreign control has resulted in high prices and shortages, yet export markets still are being supplied, Mr. Atkinson said.

Free Schooling

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Island residents who are 65 years old and more can go to university for any course they wish to take this year for free. The University of Prince Edward Island says enrolment will not require older citizens to provide educational or other prerequisites. It's one of several UPEI projects for Centennial Year.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Dulmage Honored

On January 6th, 1973, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Dulmage, Dufferin Ave., Belleville, Ontario, were treated to a surprise supper and dance at the Elk's Hall, in honor of their 40th wedding anniversary.

The master of ceremonies for this special occasion was Mr. Keith Gordon. Relatives, friends, and co-workers of Mr. Dulmage, were present from the surrounding area. The music for the evening was supplied by Mr. Thomas Brady, of Marmora, Ont., a co-worker of Mr. Dulmages at Marmorium Mines.

The couple received a kitchen suite, money tree, and numerous gifts commemorating this event. A few of the women presented a humorous mock wedding, and a scrap book was prepared for the couple to have as a memory of their lives together.

The couple have four children; Mr. Elwood Dulmage, Jr., Belleville, Ont. Mrs. Harry Hoelke (Janie) Cold Lake, Alberta. Mrs. James Hatton, (Audrey) Regina Sask., Mrs. Douglas Mitchell, (Frances) Belleville, Ont. They have eleven (11) grandchildren. Daughter Mrs. Janie Hoelke made and decorated the anniversary cake.

Swimwear '73 Features Assortment of Styles

TORONTO (CP) — Colorful comfort just about sums up swimwear for summer of 1973.

The colors will be bright, with emphasis on pinks, oranges, blues and greens, says Elaine Sekeli, women's swimwear buyer for Eaton's. Dots of all sizes will be fashionable as for all summer clothes.

The comfort aspect applies both in and out of the water, with the soft, unconstricted look providing easy wearability.

Th tyles ran the gamut fro the briefest bikinis to no. e sedate two-piece and one piece suits. Lace and voile cover-ups in long and short styles veiled the suits. Long halter dresses and palazzo pants with halter tops co-ordinated the other suits.

Newest trend will be the one-piece mid leg suit and the brief bikinis — both best suited to the young figure. But in all styles the skirted look will be prominent this year. Backless suits will also be more apparent on the beaches.

Necklines follow the general trends, with the halter and double spaghetti straps leading the way. The newest shapes in bikini bras are the triangular and sliding bras. The "no bra" and softline bras will be most popular in all suits.

Lycra blends lead the way in fabrics, but they will all be lightweight and fast drying — stretch nylons, polyesters, acrylics and nylon jerseys.

Successful Year Reported For Marmora Red Cross

Mrs. George Wiest was elected president of the Marmora branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society at the recent annual meeting.

Vice-president will be Mrs. Dean Alexander, secretary Mrs. Roy Frost and treasurer Mrs. Sid Demorest.

Retiring president, Mrs. Grenville Meiklejohn thanked the officers and members for their efforts during her term in office.

Other officers elected were: campaign committee chairman, Mrs. Stewart Hardy; sickroom equipment loan cupboard chairman, Mrs. Tom Hanley, assisted by Mrs. Roy Frost; water safety chairman, Mrs. Eldon Killian; disaster services chairman, Mrs. Howard Bleecker; blood donor service chairman, Mrs. H. Perkins; homemaker service chairman, Mrs. Len Bicknell; senior citizens liaison committee chairman, Mrs. Don Bailey; telephone committee chairman, Mrs. D. Fleetwood; publicity, Mrs. C. McCoy.

March 12 was chosen as the date for the 1973 "blitz" in Marmora.

A successful year of activities was reported by the various committee heads.

During the year Mrs. Vera Spry was awarded a citation and medal for having participated in 20 consecutive years of organized Red Cross Youth work.

Of the $711.44 collected for the Red Cross in the 1972 "blitz" $250 was spent locally to assist the Marmora Recreation Committee in its water safety and swimming program at the Legion Park.

An emergency appeal in May by the International Red Cross for a donation of rare Luxerbam B negative blood to assist a woman in Charleston, North Carolina, was answered by a Marmora man.

The Marmora Branch added another service for the community during the year. In an effort to assist those people with a serious health problem, applications for registration with the Medic-Alert Foundation, 174 George St., Toronto, are available from Mrs. Don Bailey.

The students at Marmora elementary school contributed $100 of the $674.99 raised in Hastings County last year. The money is used for other children in Ontario to provide glasses, orthodontia, emergency medication, dentures, transportation and accommodation and handicraft parcels for disabled homebound children.

A year end report from the Ontario Division of the Red Cross indicated that $1,511.09 was actually spent in Hastings County last year for youth work.

Parishioners Honor St. John's Anniversary

The 60th anniversary service of St. John's Anglican Church, Point Anne, was observed on Sunday with a full congregation attending. Friends and former parishioners from as far away as Ottawa attended. Sister parishes, Shannonville and Desoronto were represented, with the Desoronto Choir contributing to the service conducted by Rev F. C. Bell.

Mr. Bell, pastor of the Quinte Anglican charge, gave the service and sermon. The hymns and lessons were identical to those at the dedication service held on February 9, 1913.

Mr. Bell based his sermon on the lesson the way the parishioners had looked after St. John's Anglican Church since it was moved from Belleville by ice in 1913 when the church was 28 years old.

It was announced that the vestry meeting will be held at the church on Sunday, February 18 at 7 p.m. after the evensong.

It is important that all parishioners attend for the future of the church, as due to the Canada - Lafarge Cement Plant closing, many employees and parishioners at St. John's Anglican Church will be leaving.

Baskets And More Baskets

ESKASONI, N.S. (CP) — One would think that rearing 16 children would be enough to keep any mother busy.

Not so, says Margaret Johnson of the Eskasoni Indian reservation here who during the last 47 years has managed to make, by her count, more than 20,104 baskets of all shapes and sizes.

For her, the making of 10 large baskets, or 15 picnic baskets, constitutes an average day's work.

Last summer, Mrs. Johnson was an instructor at a handcraft school here, attended by 24 students. She says she is particularly anxious that the skill and dexterity involved in Indian arts and crafts should not be lost.

They're Not Truckers— They're Librarians

MASSTOWN, N.S. (CP) — The driver wheeled the truck through an icy obstacle course with all the dexterity of a pro, brought it to a smooth stop and stepped down from the cab.

A burly teamster? Not quite. She's a librarian.

Four librarians and library technicians spent five weeks here taking a truck-driving course at the site of Commercial Safety Surveys Ltd., six miles north of Truro.

"Bringing library services to smaller areas seemed to offer a different challenge," said librarian Muriel Allen.

"But to qualify for such positions a truck-driving certificate is needed."

The librarians took their course through the Canada Manpower training program. Commercial Safety Surveys, a Maritime-owned company, specializes in training drivers to professional standards for the transportation industry.

"The transportation industry has become so complex that it's no longer sufficient simply to take a man off the street to drive a truck," said Mike MacDonald, the company's director of operations.

"The industry works on a small profit margin and companies just can't afford to entrust thousands of dollars worth of vehicles and cargoes to people who don't know what they're doing," Mr. MacDonald said.

Mrs. Allen and her co-trainees—Pamela Forsyth, Sally Hughes and John White—agreed there is more to the business of driving a truck than first meets the eye.

"The classroom sessions are not difficult if you pay attention," said Miss Forsyth, "but it's a different story in the field.

"It takes time and patience to develop the skill and confidence to handle a large vehicle."

Mr. MacDonald said the five-week courses, which are offered year-round, have an average enrolment of 20 students. It is a combination of classroom sessions and field work, with about 40 per cent of the time spent in the classroom.

The course has three main objectives—to teach basic driving skills, preventive maintenance and highway safety.

The field work imposes the students to all kinds of driving conditions and problems. They learn how to back, brake and park; how to judge clearances; how to handle a truck whether driving the Trans-Canada Highway, a country road or through urban traffic.

"About 32 per cent of the people who enter our courses have to be dropped," Mr. MacDonald said.

He said they fail "because they can't acquire basic driving skills, or, often because they haven't the proper attitude toward driving and highway safety."

Instructor A. J. Morrison says training women doesn't present any difficulties at all.

"As you might expect, their presence caused more competitiveness among the trainees. The men worked extra hard to make sure they didn't fall behind the women."

Miss Hughes finished second out of a class of 21 in straight truck driving. She had the top mark for driving attitude.

Do children welcome permissiveness?

NOT as much as anyone would think after comparing permissively raised children with those brought up under stricter rules. Perhaps it is because some permissive parents unconsciously believe they have discharged their obligation to their children by giving them their "head." More disciplinarian parents, on the other hand, often use extra expressions of love to try to soften the rules they impose on their children.

Will a happy wife ever get angry?

CERTAINLY, even if she is provoked by the person she is usually happiest with: her husband. Indeed, the very fact that a wife or a husband believes she or he can haul off and express that anger is a positive sign that the marriage is "working." There is no sense denying that anger is an everyday, human emotion; and if a wife feels confident that she can "let 'er rip" when she has to, just shows how happy she is to be married.

Is it unhealthy to worry?

INDIRECTLY, worrying can cause someone to become run-down physically, and it certainly doesn't do his mental health much good to be unduly concerned all the time. Yet, in the end, perhaps it takes a pool to say it best about worrying's effect. Robert Frost, as quoted by Samuel M. Silver in "How to Enjoy This Moment" (Cornerstone Library), said: "The reason why worry kills more people than work is that more people worry than work."

Successful Living
Don't Hit A Child . . . Isolate Him—He'll Learn

By DORIS CLARK

Physical punishment is an inferior way of bringing about obedience in any child. Perhaps there are times when a hand-slap may be a little relief justifiably; but talking and firmness and consistency are better.

Isolation — being sent to his room until he can think things over and come out ready to give out more acceptable social-type behavior — is usually effective. Especially if the culprit knows his Mom or Dad is being fair. And that he is loved.

If beatings are unreasonably cruel, sooner or later a child loses his own feeling of self-worth and may indeed develop a chronic conviction that life is not really worth while.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a teacher and my present job is managing the library in an elementary school.

I am concerned about something I have discovered: that many otherwise good students are held back because of difficulties they find in reading. It seems to me this area of teaching needs more attention than it gets and I am thinking of going into it myself.

Would you please send me your leaflet: "Children With Learning Disabilities" in the large envelope I am enclosing? I am also enclosing 20 cents and a stamp. — Teacher in the Library.

Dear Teacher: It is true: We need more specialists in this area of teaching. The learning difficulties are varied; sometimes a child reads backwards, sometimes writes upside down; or can read a story but no way can he reproduce its contents, either orally or on paper.

So we are warned that correct diagnosis about just what the problem is, comes before treatment. My leaflet goes into this and also supplies names of a number of books and booklets for resource material.

One I might add is the magazine called World Traveler, issued 12 times yearly. In quite large print, it tells in simple language fascinating stories and facts about countries and peoples around the world. Published by the Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf, in cooperation with the National Geographic Society.

* * *

Dear Doris: In all my 15 years, I've only had one real boy friend. Almost all of my girl friends have boy friends and I don't. If they're getting one, why can't I? How do I get a guy? Boyfriendless.

Dear Boyfriendless: Patience, my dear. Fifteen isn't so very old, and you have plenty of time. Meanwhile, just be the nicest sort of person, and join in plenty of activities where there are boys and girls of your own age. The boy friends will soon come along.

German Studies Comics

BONN (AP) — A West German professor is conducting a profound study into the merits of Superman and Mickey Mouse.

And so Dr. Malte Dahrendorf, lecturer in trivial literature at Christian Albrechts University, spends time on the job reading the funnies.

Dahrendorf, 44, lectures on "ideology" the professor says.

The pro-culture aspects of comic strips at the university's philosophy department, located in the north German port of Kiel, and conducts a comics seminar for 80 students at Kiel Teachers Training College.

"The students are mostly highly interested—though some of my colleagues are a bit offended by it," the professor says.

Dahrendorf says his research is helpful for future teachers because it will give them a better idea of what their pupils really read. His study shows that 80 per cent of German children avoid books as regular reading and "prefer things like Micki Maus, a Disney's creation is known here.

Like kids everywhere, they're likely to sneak peaks at comic books hidden behind textbooks in class.

Trying to find out the effects of comic strips on young minds, Dahrendorf has been conducting a year-long study complete with questionnaires submitted to children.

He says preliminary results show there are a number of worthwhile comics among those available today—Die Peanuts, for instance, or Asterix have extremely positive aspects."

Asterix, big in Europe but virtually unknown in North America, is a plucky little Gaul who fought in the resistance against the ancient Roman occupation of France.

Asterix got its start in the comic book world during the Second World War French resistance against Nazi occupation.

Despite its anti-German origin, many West German high school teachers today use comics featuring Asterix to enliven their teaching of what could be a dull subject—early European history.

A Stuttgart publishing house claims total circulation of 10 million for its Asterix teaching aids, begun four years ago.

Dahrendorf himself never read comics as a child.

"I grew up in the Hitler era," he said, "and comics were taboo then." They were considered decadent.

Dangerous Dinner

LONDON (CP) — Thieves who stole seven geese from a coops owned by greengrocer Thomas Gravell have been warned not to eat the birds. Gravell told police the geese have been treated with a drug aimed at increasing their weight and preventing mating. "Anyone who eats one of these geese within the next month will become sterile," Gravell said.

Royal Predictions

LONDON (CP) — Princess Anne will get engaged in 1973, predicts astrologer Maurice Woodruff. The young man involved will have a Christian name beginning with R, Mr. Woodruff said. Writing in Woman's Journal, he also predicted that the Queen will abdicate and that the health of an elderly member of the Royal Family will cause concern.

Song and Dance

YORK, England (CP) — A young Scottish piper caused havoc in the baggage car of an Edinburgh-to-London express train by opening scores of parcels with unusual contents. Yorkshire magistrates were told. Tropical fish were found all over the floor, 20 tortoises were crawling in the corridors and piper Gordon MacKay was locked in a lavatory with a greyhound. He was fined $48 and ordered to pay restitution.

Ale Remedy

HORNCASTLE, England (CP) — The remedy for all ailments is home-brewed beer, says Lincolnshire doctor Stanley O'Hagan. He maintains it relieves high blood pressure, wards off heart attacks and soothes irritated nerves. "Home brew is the ideal tranquilizer," writes O'Hagan in his annual report.

Sharp Practice

BIRKENHEAD, England (CP) — A firm in Cheshire was fined $70 after supplying a packet of peanuts which contained a pair of dog's teeth. A spokesman for the concern said that although the most up-to-date machinery was used to sort the raw peanuts, "occasionally foreign bodies slip through the net."

LONDON (Reuter) — British and Italian television companies will make a $6.25-million film series on William Shakespeare.

The production was announced Monday by Sir Lew Grade, head of the British independent company, Associated Television (ATV), which is to co-operate with the Italian network Radiotelevisione Italiana (RAI), in producing 12 hour-long episodes, each costing more than $600,000.

Sir Lew said the high costs were largely due to filming taking place at the actual locations of Shakespeare plays—Venice (The Merchant of Venice), Verona (Two Gentlemen of Verona), Elsinore, Denmark (Hamlet), and Scotland (Macbeth).

The programs, which will be shown in 1973, will be based on the biography of Shakespeare by Anthony Burgess.

Sir Lew also announced that ATV has bought two major film productions of Shakespeare plays and that they have already been bought by American Broadcasting Co. for showing in the United States.

They are the Royal Shakespeare Company's Anthony and Cleopatra and the National Theatre Company's The Merchant of Venice.

LONDON (AP) — A strike against censorship blacked out Britain's commercial television network for 30 minutes Monday night.

Technicians and cameramen stopped work for 30 minutes to protest the Independent Broadcasting Authority's ban on a documentary about John Poulson, a former building magnate whose bankruptcy has resulted in allegations of graft in high places.

The authority ruled that some people named in the documentary could not be shown because the bankruptcy hearing still is in progress. The authority is the government-appointed watchdog for the commercial network.

The BBC was not affected by the strike.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers has signed a new contract with 22 film industry local unions which is intended to encourage filmmakers to work here.

The contract allows producers to use a nine-person crew in which each member can assist any other member, regardless of what union they belong to.

Previously, the various unions drew rigid jurisdictional lines that hampered film-making by preventing members of different unions from helping each other.

Producers complained that these lines forced them to hire more people than needed, forcing costs up. Many began filming in Europe, where union requirements are not as stringent.

A spokesman for the Producers' Association said the contract's terms apply only if the nine-person crew is used. If a larger crew is required, he said, the old jurisdictional boundaries will be in effect.

The new contract, signed last Saturday and announced Monday, covers 25,000 members of the 22 unions, primarily involved in behind-the-scenes craftwork. It does not cover actors.

Artillery Duelling Halts Peace Team

HAI LANG, Vietnam (AP) — A team of the international peacekeeping force headed for their first day in the field today, but an artillery duel prevented them from getting into Quang Tri City.

Eight officers of the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) stopped five miles short of the devastated capital of South Vietnam's northernmost province. They were on a one-day trip north from their new regional head quarters at Hue.

North Vietnamese 130-millimetre shells raised towering clouds of black smoke near South Vietnamese positions in units west of Highway One and the government troops answered with their 105-millimetre guns. No shells hit Fallen Quang Tri City itself for several days.

"We are only on a reconnaissance mission and we are not here to observe artillery fire," Col. William MacLeod of Canada told disappointed South Vietnamese officers who had prepared a welcome for the first observers in Quang Tri.

"But don't worry," he added. "We'll be back."

MacLeod said he was under orders not to subject his team to any danger. The team was composed of three Canadians, three Indonesians, three Hungarians and two Poles.

Kidnapped

TOTNES, England (CP) — Many residents of this tiny Devon community woke up to find their lawns stripped of gnomes and toadstool ornaments. Ransom notes had been left in their place by the Garden Ornament Liberation Front, demanding $ pence for each gnome and 10 pence for the toadstools. The missing ornaments were later found in a local churchyard and police are not pressing charges.

RAINHAM, England (CP) — When Patricia Dawkins remarried, she didn't change her surname—just her brother-in-law. Separated from her husband Donald Dawkins, Pat fell for his brother Arthur and when her divorce came through she married him. "Arthur was best man at my first wedding," Pat said. "Just goes to show that the best man always wins."

Aerial Jungle As Manor Falls

As salvage crews gut St. Agnes Manor, radiators and television aerials clutter the lawn, waiting to be sold. With the building now vacant, crews are stripping the innards from the manor to sell and to make easier total demolition of the roof and walls. A crew foreman said he was not sure how the walls would be knocked down.

Earlier in the week, there had been rumor of a legal action to halt demolition based on an alleged illegal eviction notice. The action never materialized, and despite protest marches and petitions, a 79-unit highrise will soon replace the 100-year-old manor.

Dentists Declare War on Plaque

Quinte district dentists are taking this week to declare war against dental decay.

If they win, they have talked themselves out of a good percentage of their work and their patients.

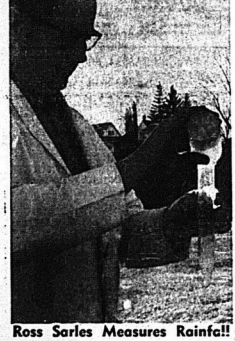
Their slogan for Dental Health Week, Feb. 4 to 10, is Plaque Free for '75. And a plaque free mouth virtually guarantees sound gums and teeth.

Plaque, say the dentists, is an invisible film of germs and saliva that forms over the teeth. Clumps of germs in this plaque turn certain foods into acids that eat at tooth enamel and cause cavities. The same clumps of germs attack the gums and cause ulcers. To eliminate the problem, calcium in the saliva deposits out into the soft plaque to form a hard deposit on the teeth.

A break in this destructive chain will prevent cavities and dentists now believe they have a three-pronged weapon to attack plaque.

There's only one catch — it must be self-administered for a few minutes each day to be effective.

The weapon is flossing, brushing and rinsing.



Flossing is a relatively new technique in the war against dental disease. To reach as many people as possible with the technique, dental nurses and assistants will put on demonstrations all day Saturday at Quinte Mall.

Brushing say the dentists, breaks up plaque on the easily reached surfaces of teeth. But to get into crevices between teeth and to break up germ clumps just under the gum line, dental floss must be used.

Anyone determined to embark on a program of dental care has an extra going for him if he lives in Belleville. The city is the only local community with fluoridated water — a proved decay preventative. Fluoride toothpastes are also beneficial.

But other, expensive, gadgets are unnecessary for any one but an handicapped, says the Bay of Quinte Dental Society.

Electric toothbrushes are great for the lazy and water irrigation devices are good for people with bands on their teeth. Mouthwashes contribute nothing to dental health and are only briefly effective as breath fresheners.

Ross Sarles Measures Rainfall

Weather Station Source of Data

PICTON — Information recorded daily at the Picton water purification plant's weather station provides facts and figures for the local department of agriculture, the meteorological branch of the Department of Transport, Canada and for many Prince Edward residents.

The weather station's records date back to 1962 and show the high and low temperatures recorded for each day. Also given are rainfall figures and recorded snowfalls.

Ross Sarles, an employee at the purification plant yesterday explained that outdoor thermometers are read twice daily at 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. to ascertain high and low temperature readings.

Atmospheric conditions are charted by a barograph and graphs forwarded to the Atmospheric Environment Service in Toronto. A climatological station report is sent regularly to the meteorological branch, department of transport, Canada.

Mr. Sarles said rainfall is measured by a cylindrical device inserted in the ground. After a rainfall, contents of the metal container are measured in a glass tube and charted. Monthly averages of temperatures, snowfalls and rainfalls are included in weather station records.

Snowfall has varied greatly in the past four years as shown by records at the purification plant.

In 1970, a January snowfall of 26.4 inches was recorded in comparison with 18.4 inches for January, 1971. In 1972 snow fell to a depth of 19.8 inches in January compared with a fall of 3.4 inches last month.

If an inch or more of snow falls, Mr. Sarles or one of his co-workers calls the Kingston weather office to report. A weekly call to this station each Friday reveals the depth of snow, however light.

Since the Picton weather station is the only official one in Prince Edward County, newspapers in this area frequently call to obtain information after heavy storms.

Mr. Sarles said weather information when entered in the books at the plant also includes brief comments on cloud conditions.

He observed that he can readily research facts and figures for the past seven years when information is needed. Other employees with an eye to the sky at the purification plant are Robert Tolley, Earl Coghlan and relief operator Harold Sedore. Superintendent is Leslie Tolley.

MP to Appeal LIP Turndown

A decision to to fund work on the Quinte - Hastings trail under the Local Initiatives Program will be appealed in Ottawa.

The Quinte-Hastings Trail Association — which now has responsibility for the 225-mile trail through Hastings and Prince Edward counties — last weekend was told by LIP officials that its request for a $73,000 grant this year has been turned down.

The funds would have been used to extend the trail another 25 miles and would have employed up to 50 men.

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, said yesterday from Ottawa he was going to appeal the decision of LIP- authorities.

Aside from the trail being an environmental asset, LIP officials would have created winter jobs in a "hard-core" area of unemployment in Northern Hastings County, said Mr. Ellis.

The trail was created by LIP funds. Endorsed as the official project of the Belleville and District Employment Committee last winter, it drew a total of $121,000 in federal funds and created 1,200 man weeks of work as the trail was been and cleared from Lake Ontario to Lake St. Peter in north Hastings County.

It was widely used in its first season and attracted such diverse groups as school students on nature classes and militia units on long-distance hikes.

This year's planned project would have extended the trail from Lake St. Peter to Whitney, linking it into Algonquin Park.

Unnofficial Result OKs Napanee Booze

Napanee turned completely wet over the weekend, with only 46 disputed ballots awaiting the vote on the sale of liquor in lounges to the affirmative side.

However, the result of a Friday recount of the ballots cast last Dec. 4 is still unofficial. County Judge Gerald Smith, who did the recount, refuses comment and Town Clerk Carson Graham, returning officer for the election, would not release any information until a certificate has been issued by Judge Smith.

Gordon Hutchison, president of the Napanee and District Hotel Association, who represented the recount, said the affirmative side barely scraped over the line with a 69.4 per cent of the votes in favor of lounges. A 66 per cent vote is required before liquor in lounges becomes legal.

Two questions were put to the electorate in the town of only 46 disputed ballots awaiting the vote on the sale of liquor in lounges to the affirmative side.

Committee Agrees on Pinnacle Bridge, Cannifton Rd. Overpass

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Routes for the two proposed arteries planned to relieve traffic congestion in the downtown area have been approved by the city council traffic committee.

The recommendations for construction of a new bridge over the Moira at the north end of Pinnacle Street and for an overpass over the CN double track east of the present Cannifton Road level crossing will now go to city council for ratification.

Decision on the two routes was made at a joint meeting Monday of the traffic committee and city council members.

Both projects have been under consideration since the receipt of the north-south arterial roadway study done by consultants Totten, Sims and Hubicki, who submitted several alternate routes for the two projects.

The recommendation for the Pinnacle Street artery is for a new five-lane bridge over the Moira River to the west end of Pinnacle Street.

The plan would see the acquisition of about 12 properties north of the river and would have an estimated overall cost of more than $870,000. As a highway link, most of the expenditure would receive a 75 per cent subsidy, while property acquisition would be subsidized 50 per cent.

None of the new road-unit apartment structure north of the river would be affected by the route proposed.

The proposal had been rejected as being impractical for several reasons.

It would have necessitated reversing proposed traffic flows on Moira and Harriett Streets while the Moira Street intersection would have posed geometric problems as traffic flows mounted.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell noted that the development was projected to handle 1990 traffic flows and a sufficiently widening of the present Upper Bridge would prove inadequate.

"If traffic flows remained as they are we could live with it," suggested the engineer.

The route recommended for the new Cannifton Road alignment would see the roadway cut across the CNRA athletic field, pass over the tracks by an elevated grade separation, extend north behind buildings east of Cannifton Road and intersect with Cannifton Road north of College Street.

The south end of the new alignment would swing east and meet Cannifton Road to provide a ullbrough route into the city's east end.

Alderman Jack Ireland chairman of the traffic committee, said the city's cost for the overpass - roadway project would be estimated at about $478,000.

Four different alternatives had been prepared by the consultants for the Cannifton Road project.

One of these had called for a subway at the present Cannifton Road crossing, while another suggested a route using Hamble Street.

However, construction of a subway at the present Cannifton Road crossing would have necessitated a CN track diversion and construction of a temporary railway bridge over the Moira.

Also, a subway further to the east was likewise ruled out because of dangers of flooding and high maintenance costs.

The city engineer said that under the plan chosen, Albion with Station Street some distance west of its present location.

The engineeer was instructed to check into the proposed artery's intersection with Cannifton North of college with a view to the eventual elimination of the present curve north of College Street.

Pool Leak Stalls Swim

Chairman of the Kiwanis pool committee, Murray Workman, told the club last night there is four feet of water and the leak has been lost already and further losses could be expected until the leak was repaired.

Filling of the pool began last Wednesday for weekend commitments but the pool would not hold water. Mr. Workman said the leak could either be in the main drain or through a crack across the centre of the pool.

"We're hoping it's in the main drain," he said, "If it's not, we have a problem."

Century Pools Ltd. attempted an air pressure test on the main drain on the weekend but their equipment was not large enough for the four-inch drain. Tests will be made late today.

The costs of repairing the leak won't be the responsibility of the Kiwanis Club," Mr. Workman told members. "but we do face the loss of further rentals." Many instructional programs have been postponed because of the leak.

U.S. Link Revived

PICTON — A network of bridges linking Prince Edward County to the United States was approved last night by Picton mayor Murray McFarland.

He observered the federal government has announced it will spend $51.4 million this year on summer jobs for youth and suggested construction of the bridge system would offer employment that "do something for the people of Canada."

Mayor McFarland proposed bridges from Clayton, New York, to Wolfe Island, then to Amherst View, then Kingston and finally, "across to our place here."

He referred to communications he has had with American officials and said he has been led to believe the United States would co-operate with no extra cost to Canada in such a project.

Inquest Called

PICTON — Prince Edward County coroner Dr. D.E. Richmond has ordered an inquest into the deaths of the man and woman killed last weekend while crossing Main Street in Picton early Saturday morning. The inquest will be held some time in April.

Keitha Jenkins, 59, of RR3, Picton, and Wilbur Bungard, 64, RR2, Picton, were fatally injured when struck by a car driven by Richard Parks, RR1, Bloomfield.

Small World Isn't It

PICTON — Mayor Harvey McFarland reminded council that because of the press it can be a small world when a letter from Zambia was read before a meeting of council.

Written by H. J. Fast, former manager of the CNR in Zambia, the letter included a local press clipping containing an announcement by Skylight Homes of Toronto of its plans to manufacture plastic houses in Picton.

Mr. Fast owns the general manager of Zambia Airways said he has 2,000 employees and must launch an immediate program to build approximately 1,000 low-cost accommodations for workers and the chief planes proposed by Skylight Homes attracted Mr. Fast's attention. He asked to have his request for cost estimates and further information forwarded to the sales manager of the housing company.

Brother at Father's Trial, Boy Sentenced

Michel Martell of RR2, Trenton, was given a suspended sentence and placed under two years' probation Monday in provincial court for his part in a break-in Jan. 3 at Clerney's Furniture World and an attempted break-in at I.M.P. Appliances in Bayside Nov. 28.

His older brother Simon, 18, was also suspended for sentencing on the same convictions but was unable to appear. He was in Montreal, where he has been attending the court martial of the boys' father, Cpl. Steve Martell of the Canadian Armed Forces.

Michel, 18, was ordered by Judge J. A. Greenwood to spend the next three years at the House of Concord, a Toronto rehabilitation centre.

He and his brother pleaded guilty Jan. 15 to the break-in attempts. Both have been in custody since they were picked up the day after being spotted in the window of Cherney's by a patrolling city police officer.

Simon also pleaded guilty to a charge of public mischief, about an hour after leaving Cherney's to report his car had been stolen. The auto was found in the Belleville Plaza parking lot with the keys still in the ignition.

Simon will be sentenced when he returns from Montreal.

Cpl. Martell was charged following a theft last year of postal money orders from St. Hubert, Quebec. The money orders were later reco ered in Bayside.

Discussing the Details

Clutching pet poodle with which she fled fire along with two young children, Mrs. Robert Rutherford discusses the blaze with Sidney township firemen. Fire damaged Montrose Road home of Rutherford family where they had moved little more than a month ago.

Damage Heavy in Blaze

Fire yesterday bodly damaged the new Sidney township home of Robert Ford and Jane where they had been living little more than a month.

Workmen were still putting interior finishing touches on the home at No. 2 Mrs. Robert Rutherford, on Montrose Rd.2 two miles west of Belleville's city limits.

Deputy Sidney fire chief Jack Rushbell said fire, smoke and water damage to the bungalow and its contents could run as high as $10,000.

Mrs. Rutherford said she and her family had moved into the house Dec. 31.

She said the fire started after her children Mark, 4, and one-year-old Kathleen had moved into a basement bedroom while workmen were repairing a floor upstairs. Sometime later — before 10 a.m. — she heard the workmen yelling, looked out and saw smoke and fire coming from the basement window. With the children and the family pet spaniel, Candy, she hastily fled to a neighbor's after turning in the alarm.

Volunteer township firemen brought the fire under control. Deputy Chief Rushbell said its cause was still being investigated.

Montrose Rd. runs north from Highway 2.

Ward Continues Pace

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CP) — Ron Ward is being touted as the Lamplighter around the World Hockey Association—and with good reason.

The third-skating forward last week, giving him 30 for the season, and padded his league-leading points total to 94 in games through to Sunday night.

Another Lamp, Philadelphia Blazers centre who was tied with Ward a week ago, fell three points off the pace in the WHA statistics released Monday.

Johnson Fired--Nothing Personal

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — Tom Johnson, and Harry Sinden have been warm, personal friends for quite a while. But when a once-great team as the Boston Bruins goes into a tailspin, personal feelings invariably are laid asides and changes are made.

Johnson was fired as coach of the Bruins Monday and given another job in the organization. Bob to the end, Johnson is a loyal member the Stanley Cup champions would snap out of their slump.

The former Hall of Fame defenceman almost blew his top after the all-star game in New York last week when it was suggested that perhaps the Bruins weren't training as they should and that they were living it too much luxury.

"How do you know?" he retorted when asked whether he might have something to do with the slump. And to another question whether he was keeping check on his players, he fumed: "No! Do you?"

Sinden, managing director of the Bruins, picked Bep Guidolin, coach of Boston Braves, the Bruins' farm club in Hershey League farm team, to succeed Johnson. Guidolin, 47, is known to run a tight ship.

Guidolin's appointment laid aside, at least for the time being, rumors that Sinden was just hiding out in the front office and was itching to get back to running the team from the bench as he did three seasons ago.

Tony Esgerard in the Boston Sunday Globe quoted Sinden as saying several days before Johnson was sacked: "When I came back to the Bruins last fall, I signed a contract as managing director for duties the title indicates.

"But I probably shouldn't say this would never do some coaching under certain circumstances. Sometime in the future, if we get into a predicament where we couldn't find the right man for the job, I would definitely might step in—but only on an emergency basis."

But Sinden found Guidolin and Johnson was elevated to an administrative job.

Johnson received little credit, but he can't be chalk any, for his preceding two - year record of 113 victories, 39 losses and seven East Division of the National Hockey League and two Stanley Cup. During those two years, his team made a total of 113 goals and lost only 27 in 156 regular-season games.

Johnson says he feels "not even the ideal coach, combining the positive qualities of Dick Irvin, Hap Day and Toe Blake" but he was the right man for the Bruins until they start doing more for themselves.

Johnson's first coaching job in Boston before he got the axe:

"All you need to get back into things is a little winning streak. I'm sure we're capable of something like that."

The third-place Bruins, 13-8-4 in their last 25 games, have 26 games left to play. They go on a six-game road trip this weekend—Philadelphia, Minnesota, Chicago, Vancouver, Los Angeles and California.

Crusaders Cage Chicago Cougars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland—coach Bill Needham always said he wouldn't quit World Hockey Association game wasn't an artistic success, but his Crusaders were willing to take the two points anyhow.

The Crusaders used the free-wheeling Chicago Cougars to solidify their fourth-place Eastern Division with a 7-5 victory in front of 2,673 Cleveland fans.

"The big goalie, Needham admitted after the game in which the Cougars took the lead 46 seconds into the first period. "They (Cougars) were all over the ice and we made the mistake of trying to run with them.

"But after that first quick goal, the guys calmed down and better start skating and we got going."

In the only other game, Houston Aeros lost a chance to close the gap on Western Division-leading Winnipeg Jets when they lost a 4-3 decision at home to Minnesota Fighting Saints.

The Saints return to home tonight against New York Raid-ers. Philadelphia Blazers are at Ottawa Nationals and New England Whalers visit Alberta Oilers.

Gerry Jarrett and Jim Watt were two-goal scorers for the Crusaders, the others going to Ted Hodgson, Doug Brindley and Dave Keon. Rosario Rosaire Paiement, with two, Dan Lodboa, Bob Schmidt and Rick Morris tallied for Chicago.

Cleveland now leads New England by five points in the East.

The fast-skating Cougars, who again got solid goaltending from Gerry McLeod, were still very much in contention until midway in the third period when his 28th and 29th goals in the third period, his second a 88-footer into an empty net, put the McLeod on the bench in favor of Cougars' goaltender.

Minnesota grabbed an early lead with Frank Savaders, Bryan Maxwell and Lou Fillybois scoring in the first period which proved the difference with each club sharing the scoring in the second period.

Bill Young, Mike McMahon and Jimmy Jonson scored the other Saints goals as 2,119 fans looked on. Houston goals by Grierson, Ted Taylor and Duke Harris proved for the Aeros.

The victory put a temporary halt to Houston's challenge for western honors. The setback left them five points behind Winnipeg with back-to-back games with the Jets in Houston scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday.

Redlegs Demand Raises

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds have signed one of their key pitchers, Gary Nolan, but some unsigned contract problems may still be ahead.

The 24-year-old Nolan Monday became the first Reds' player to sign a 1973 contract. He had a 15-5 record in 1972 despite recurring shoulder ailment.

Salary figures were not made public, but Nolan called estimates of $35,000 to $38,000 "pretty accurate."

The problems may arise when Cincinnati general manager Bob Howsam tries to get second baseman Joe Morgan and catcher Johnny Bench to sign 1973 agreements.

Morgan, an estimated $65,-000 last season and for the second time in three years he was named the National League's Most Valuable Player.

Guesses now are that Bench may reach the $120,000 to $130,-000, but it isn't likely the Reds will come up with that kind of money.

Morgan says he wants "more than $100,000" on his 1973 contract.

Obtained in a trade from Houston Astros after the 1971 season, Morgan batted .292 for Cincinnati, led the National League in runs scored and set club records for walks received and stolen bases.

Both Bench and Morgan are pointing to their gate appeal.

Bench also pointed to what other pro football and basketball players are paid.

We play more games and we play to more people," he said.

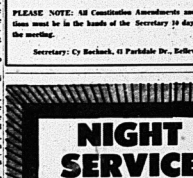
Hockey Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Mike Makovich of Montreal Canadiens will be out of action for two weeks because of a knee injury suffered in the National Hockey League club's 7-1 win over the Kings in Los Angeles Saturday night.

Makovich, who returned here Sunday night, suffered a dislocation of the left knee cap and a sprained ligament, a team spokesman said Monday.

The lanky centre has had 13 goals and 32 assists in 52 games this season, but his left leg placed in a cast following Monday's medical examination, the spokesman said the cast will remain for four weeks.



Makovich was injured midway through the third period in a collision at the Forum with defenceman Terry Harper of the Kings. He was carried off the ice on a stretcher and sent home prior to Montreal's game Tuesday night, California Golden Seals.

BUFFALO (AP) — Rick Martin of Buffalo Sabres was admitted to hospital Monday with what a team physician called an acute upper respiratory infection.

Martin, who has scored 39 goals this season, is expected to miss the Sabres' next game Wednesday.

"Is this one of the proficiencies or is it the main event?"

Three Enter Grid Hall Of Fame

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Raymond Berry and Jim Parker, superstars in a victorious Baltimore Colts era, were elected to the U.S. Pro Football's Hall of Fame today along with Joe Schmidt, former Detroit Lions linebacker.

Selections were announced by Dick Gallagher, director of the shrine who said the three inductees represent the smallest number named in any year since the hall was established in 1963.

Berry, onetime wide receiver, set a National Football League record with 631 catches in his receptions, a mark broken during the 1972 season by Don Maynard of New York Jets.

The 275-pound Parker, generally considered a offensive lineman, interior offensive linemen, was the heart of Baltimore's offensive line when John Unitas was firing the ball to Berry in the 1950s and early 1960s.

Schmidt "quarterbacked" the Detroit defense from middle linebacker, making all-pro eight times and eventually being named head coach of the Lions.

Berry, Parker and Schmidt will be installed here July 28.

Betsy Leads

la Teague of East Burke, Vt., won the Bingham Cup here Monday by placing sixth in the downhill effort of a third-place finish in the women's slalom last Thursday.

Miss Teague's showing also moved her into third place in the Canadian - American ski series with 66 points.

Betsy Clifford of Old Chelsea, Que., is the Can-Am leader. She has 86 points after winning the slalom and Tuesday's downhill race. Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., is in second place in Can-Am standings with 80 points, place showing in Monday's downhill.

Following Miss Teague in the race for the Bingham Cup were Gale Blackburn, Brunswick, Me.; Jane Rollins, Orange, Conn., and Terri Wickenden, Mercer Island, Wash.

Earlier Monday, Carolyn Oughton of Calgary won the women's downhill race in 1:18.-32, followed by Miss Nelson in 1:18.52 and Diane Patterson of San Valley, Idaho, in 1:11.71.

Three other Canadian girls finished in the top 26—Karen Cloutier, Montreal, eighth in 1:19.28, Diane Fisher, Montreal, 16th in 1:19.69 and Diane Pratt, Newcastle, Que., 25th in 1:14.12

Andy Mill of Aspen was men's downhill race in 2:05.68. The only Canadian to finish in the top 20 was Paul Carson of Toronto, eighth in 2:8.C.

Guidolin Gets Chance As Coach of Bruins

BOSTON (CP) — Armand (Bep) Guidolin could have been making more money in the World Hockey Association, but he thought he owed Boston Bruins something, he explained—and he's coach of the defending Stanley Cup champions.

"I could have made more money but—and I know this sounds corny—I believe I owe it to the Boston organization to stay with them," Guidolin said last year after signing a two-year contract to coach Boston Bruins, the Bruins' American Hockey League farm team.

Harry Sinden, Bruins managing director, announced Monday that Guidolin was being elevated to succeed Tom Johnson who has been moved upstairs in an administrative job with the National Hockey League club.

Guidolin, 47-year-old former Bruin player, said he had offers from WHA clubs last year. At the same time, he recognized the possibility of his own ups, although he downgraded rumors which had been circulating last winter before Johnson led the Bruins to their Stanley Cup victory.

"I read all newspaper talk as far as I'm concerned," Guidolin said last summer. "I didn't hear a word about it.

"A coach is hired to be fired. I've accepted the challenge. A man can't coach the Bruins for the rest of his life. If I move on, I know the day will come when they'll want to replace me.

"Boston had a tough assignment. He carried it out well. The pressure will be on him again next year to repeat."

Guidolin, a native of Thorold, Ont., who grew up in Timmins, has a long history of devotion to hockey and the Bruins.

"When I was a kid in Timmins, I idolized Boston. Most of the other kids liked Toronto or Montreal. I don't know why I picked Boston—perhaps it was because of the name—Bruins, bears."

Guidolin was only 16 when he first started playing with the Bruins and he still holds the record for being the youngest player ever in the NHL.

He played with the Bruins through parts of seven moving on to Detroit Red Wings and then to Chicago Black Hawks. He scored 197 goals and 171 assists in nine NHL seasons.

After leaving the NHL, he played around in the minor leagues as a player, scout, coach and referee.

He was coach of Oshawa Generals in 1966, the year all-star 14 defencemen Bobby Orr graduated, to the Bruins from the Generals.

The Generals were then a junior club sponsored by the Bruins and when Guidolin coached them to the Memorial Cup final against Edmonton Oil Kings, the coach refused to dress Orr because the defenceman had a groin injury. Guidolin was afraid Orr might suffer permanent damage by playing with the injury and the Generals lost the championship final to Edmonton.

After Oshawa, there were brief coaching stints with Buffalo Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league.

Orr Continues To Crack Records

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the fact he missed 14 games early in the schedule because of knee surgery and has been hampered by the injury since then, Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins today continues to make a mark on the National Hockey League's records for defencemen.

Earlier this season Orr surpassed Doug Harvey's career-points total of 541, he brought his career total to 573 in 447 regular-season games last week when he added seven points to Boston's three games.

As a result Orr now has an average of 1.30 points per game, the highest rate of any defenceman and a point more than Gilbert of New York Rangers.

Another right winger, Mickey Redmond of Detroit, scored three goals last week and continues to lead the goal-getting department with 36, two more than Esposito and Lemaire. Redmond has 81 points and is tied with Orr and Rick Macleish of Philadelphia.

The Montreal goaltending combination of Ken Dryden, who is currently out of action with a back injury, Wayne Thomas and Michel Plasse, continues to lead the Vezina Trophy race with a combined average of 2.23.

Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure of New York Rangers, along with Peter McDuffe, have the second best combined average of 2.45.

Jackson Signs

OAKLAND (AP) — Outfielder Reggie Jackson, a star of the Oakland Athletics pennant drive last year but sidelined with an injury during the World Series, signed his 1973 contract Monday, the club announced.

Jackson, batting No. 2 behind non-slugger last year with 25, also had 75 runs batted in and hit .265.

His leg was injured while he was sliding and scoring a vital run against Detroit in the final American League playoff victory that put Oakland in the World Series' which they won in seven games.

Intell Second In Gas House

The Intelligencer moved into sole possession of second place for the first time in the Gas House League's season Monday night with a 3-2 win over Hospital.

The doctors, however, didn't give up their season long hold on the number two spot without giving The Intell a run for the money.

After goals by the newspapermen's Chuck Powell, Paul Ruttan and Jim McGuire in the first two periods, the Hospital's Bill van Zeelen and Sid Faulkner came back with single tallies in the third. Despite creating a better scoreboard showing, the doctors fell into third place, one point behind The Intell.

With only two regular season games remaining, Jim's Pizza could lose their games with Stewart Warner and Mead Johnson and still earn the Gas House League pennant for their second consecutive year.

But the salesman, no doubt, want to maintain their perfect win - less - tie season record of 16-0-2, as they defeated ninth place Rosebush Pools 8-3 last night.

Dave Middleton was the work horse for the first place team with a four goal total, while Carl Boomhower netted two tallies and Allan Ray and Bill Dann scored singles. Marksmen for the lumbermen were Bruce Pascoe with two goals and Larry Pascoe with one.

In the other Gas House, League game Monday, Mead Johnson moved into fourth place with a 4-1 victory over Rollins Lumber. Damon Richardson scored the lumbermen's only goal while marksmen for their opposition were Fred Bedard, Bob Mutchlill, Dave Fox, and Alec Belch.

Loyalist Rinks In OCAA Finals

Loyalist College doubled their chances for an OCAA curling title by qualifying two rinks for the college championship.

Last year, the Belleville school's mixed foursome placed second at the Ontario final. This year, the mixed team as well as the men's foursome will be eligible to meet the other three zone qualifiers.

The Loyalist entries made the grade by qualifying in the Eastern Zone championships held in Peterborough Saturday. The mixed rink took a tight battle for first place, while the men's team captured the second and final qualifying position.

The mixed rink defeated Sir Sanford Fleming of Peterborough in the third extra end of their opener, but lost 10-5 to Algonquin in the second. The home town team upset Algonquin 10-2 to leave the three teams deadlocked with 1-1 records.

Loyalist received a bye in the first round of extra play in which Sir Sanford lost 8-4 to Algonquin. This meant that Loyalist had to play Sir Sanford in quest of a qualifying spot. They win the match 7-5 and were given first place over Algonquin on the basis of more points scored.

The men's team scored a 7-4 win over Sir Sanford Fleming of Peterborough in their first game, but dropped the second to Algonquin 7-5. They beat Lindsay 8-2 in their final contest to clinch second place and a spot in the OCAA finals to be held in Sudbury March 14, 15 and 16.

Bowlers Junior Qualify

Ten local bowlers qualified for the provincial championships in the annual Pepsi Cola five pin zone championships Saturday.

Trenton's Laurie Aziz led the girl's section with an 824 triple. Other qualifiers were Michelle Ruttan of Belleville, Margaret Tosky (Trenton), Judith Seguin (CFB Trenton) and Helene Noel de Tilly (Belleville).

Fred Macklin of Brighton took bay's honors with an 830 mark. He was followed by Bill Curtis of Kingston, Greg Gaffney of Belleville, Steve Shea of Kingston and Brighton's Mike Bowen.

The provincial championships will be held at Don Mills on Saturday, April 21.

Roof Caving In?

It's bad enough having to contend with a five game string of loses but to have the roof collapse on your head is asking too much of a team.

The Metro Junior "B" Belleville Bobcats are without an ice surface in Peterborough Sunday afternoon, as the North Crest Arena, where they were scheduled to play the Peterborough Lions has been condemned by building inspectors.

Jim Matthews, general manager of the Bobcats, received information from the home club that the "roof and walls are caving in" and that the game will have to be postponed perhaps to be picked up after the regular schedule has been completed.

Both the new Kinsmen Arena and the Memorial Centre in Peterborough are booked solid.

Syringe of Air Not Often Fatal

By G. C. THOSTESON, D

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been reading a paperback novel about a nurse who injected and gave a patient a 10 cc. syringe of air instead of medicine. The patient died in a few minutes. Now is this true or is it fiction. — R.M.

Put it down to fiction—with a small tinge of factual possibility. Makes a dramatic story, though, doesn't it?

There is such a thing as an "air embolism," which is a bubble of air in an artery. This can, depending on where, it lodges and how it it, cause a stoppage of the blood flow to the part of the body served by that artery.

If, by some quirk, the nurse's accidental bubble of air happened to go almost instantly to the heart or one critical spot in the central circulation area, then I suppose the story would be possible.

But of this I can assure you: you have more reliable ways to cause death—including some that appear in fiction. You need not read a paperback now and then, pal!

In actual fact, tiny bits of air cause no trouble. Larger bubbles may occur from accidents, injuries, or in the decompression illness of divers. The bends.

There are certain things very much like air bubbles that just don't fit with the way things really happen. For one, the nurse wouldn't have been injecting into an artery. She would have been injecting into a vein.

And in venous injections, it is drilled into nurses (and doctors) until it is second nature to make sure there are no visible bubbles before a needle or line is started. And as for a big, an empty syringe?

No, let's put that fiction accident down for what it is. Fiction.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I saw what you wrote about impotence which helped stop bed-wetting.

I am 14 and have been wetting the bed all my life. I've tried everything. My parents tried offering me money every week if I didn't wet the bed. They tried locking me down on my fluids. That didn't work. They tried waking me up every night but I would still wet the bed.

A friend told me to take a teaspoon of honey every night but that wouldn't help. Anything they won't work and I'll soon be 15 and things aren't getting better.

Is there some way that drug will help me because I've tried everything but medicine? Please tell me what this medicine contained and how I could receive or purchase it.—Miss B.

The drug is imipramine hydrochloride, one of several drugs occasionally used when other methods don't stop bedwetting.

You mentioned several things you've tried but there was one glaring omission: you said nothing whatever about a doctor examining you to see whether some physiological condition is behind the wetting. That sometimes is the case, and then the ordinary methods just aren't going to help.

There is often considerable gamesmanship during the play of a hand; if you can fool your good partner, you will do well by the opponents.

All the same, a good card player doesn't subject himself to a false lead and make the proper lead. This gives your partner a chance to signal with a high spade or a low club. Remember, he has a hand, and in that way eliminate the element of doubt.

Assume you're West, defending against five hearts. You could lead a spade, of course, because partner raised spades, but your best chance of producing a profit lies in leading a diamond.

You have a right to hope partner has an ace, in which case your ace and heat the contract when you get in with the ace of trumps, put partner on lead with his ace, and get a diamond ruff for a one-trick set.

Declarer when your diamond lead with the ace and plays a low heart to the queen. Right then and there it is apparent that you can't take the ace and play a spade to partner's presumed ace, you wind up behind the eight ball.

Declarer would trump the spade, draw trumps, and so make the contract.

You could plead that East was more likely to have the ♥A than you, but that is not the best card to lead against a heart contract which can be actually bad. Declarer will frequently find the guess to pave chances, it is far better to duck the first heart lead and make the guess end. This gives your partner a chance to signal with a high spade or a low club. Remember, he has a hand, and in that way eliminate the element of doubt.

Woman Crucified 52 Hours

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (Reuter) — Treshewonsky Marcina Tamac completed Monday 52 hours of voluntary crucifixion to atone for the sins of the mind-over-matter yoga technique perfected by her husband, Patrice.

Patrice, 33, who is also French-speak 30 hours nailed to the same cross last week but was forced to give up his feat tempt to stay here for 48 hours because of an infected foot.

His wife agreed to complete the time and remained crucified for an extra 24 hours as proof of the power of "Tamacism."

The couple said their "sacrifice" was a gesture to promote world peace and understanding among men, as well as proof the the spirit was stronger than the flesh.

Marina, an attractive brunette about 30 was nailed to the cross through the steel nails through her hands in the grounds of the Hotel Jaragua Hotel, watched by several hundred people.

During the crucifixion Marina was given water to sip, but ate no food.

Big Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Problems of reconstruction in Vietnam will dwarf any relief problems the world has ever encountered, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday night.

Rehabilitation is going to cost a lot of money, he said at a news conference, "but it will certainly be a lot cheaper than the Vietnam war."

Cities Ignored

TORONTO (CP) — Cities must fight federal and provincial government tendencies to hand them "an ever accumulating intensive scrubbage" from time to time, Mayor David Crombie said Monday.

"City dwellers are the only majority group I've seen to be over-governed, so underrepresented and so often ignored," he said in a speech to the Canadian club.

Predicts Tests

MONTREAL (CP) — Blood tests will be used within 10 years to detect cancer at an early stage before cells become malignant and start producing enormous growth, says Dr. Phil Gold, an immunology professor at McGill University.

Dr. Gold discovered how to use a simple blood test to diagnose cancer of the bowel.

Cost Too High

OTTAWA (CP) — A nationwide full-scale dental care insurance program would create an unbearable tax load, the president of the Canadian Dental Association said Monday.

"Philosophically, it seems to be coming," Dr. David Peters of St. John's, Nfld., said in an interview, "but I don't think there's any way in Canada anyone for it."

No Solution

MONTREAL (CP) — Replacing large U.S. corporations with Canadian ones would not help increase Canada's independence, a McGill University economics professor said Monday.

Karl Levett said: "Canadian and American business interests have become so interbelined it's like a Siamese twin cover. You can't see the Canadian from the American sectors of our economy."

Reject Freeze

SAULT Ste. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The future of 450 jobs at the Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. plant here may be in doubt following public criticism of company contract proposals which included a one-year pay freeze.

Abitibi said in its contract proposals that its demands "must be met in order to protect the operations of the mill." Company officials would not elaborate.

Liberals Face Defeat

Budget Fail To Firms Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — The life of the minority Liberal government appeared threatened Tuesday following Finance Minister John Turner's statement in the Commons that the government will go ahead with legislation giving tax cuts and other concessions to corporations.

Minutes later Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield indicated strongly to reporters his party would join the New Democrats in voting against such a bill.

Defeat of the tax cuts would be inevitable in such circumstances and failure of the government to get parliamentary approval of a budget bill could lead to its resignation.

The political showdown, which could come later this month, emerged as a possibility after Mr. Turner told the Commons he will bring down his second budget at 8 p.m. EST Monday, Feb. 19.

Replying to NDP Leader David Lewis, Mr. Turner said the government is committed to the tax cuts and acceleration of depreciations for machinery and equipment announced in his May 23 budget.

"That's the end of the marriage," shouted Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West), referring to support the NDP has given the government since the session started last month.

Mr. Turner said the tax cuts, due to go in effect Jan. 1, would help Canadian industry "to pierce and take advantage of a very competitive world market."

Outside the Commons, Mr. Stanfield said he warned Mr. Turner last May that such measures were not enough to have the desired effect. He was still convinced that business had made additional investments as a result of the concessions.

"And you will recall we voted against the acceptance of the budget," he added Mr. Stanfield.

Mr. Lewis told reporters his party could not accept passing on these benefits to corporations, an echo of "the corporate welfare bums" theme in the Oct. 30 provincial election.

In announcing the Feb. 19 budget, Mr. Turner said his accounts for the current year ending March 31 will show a deficit close to the $2 billion he predicted.

The finance minister rejected arguments by Mr. Stanfield that the government should have launched a more vigorous attack on unemployment because of "a surplus of over $500 million" for the first nine months of this fiscal year.

Mr. Turner replied that such talk was misleading since the surplus would be gone at the end of March.

Outside the House, Mr. Turner said his Feb. 19 budget is designed to have a significant impact on unemployment.

But I have absolutely no predictions to make at this time.

One condition of continued NDP support is "a commitment in a significant increase in the old-age pension, already promised by Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

Both Mr. Lewis and Mr. Stanfield said Tuesday they also look for big cuts in personal income taxes as well.

The question now is how the Liberal government will bring the corporation tax cuts before the Commons. One suggestion has been that the government could bring in increased pensions for the aged and personal income-tax cuts in the same bill with concessions to business.

It was suggested by Mr. Lewis that such a procedure would draw NDP support.

Mr. Lewis said he would not answer hypothetical questions but would he commit NDP members without consultation.

He conceded an omnibus bill is a possibility. I guess one shouldn't underestimate the ingenuity of man."

Repair Room Fire Smokes up Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — Fire broke out in an upholstery repair room on Parliament Hill Tuesday night, filling the Senate chamber and long marble corridors of the Centre Block with dense clouds of acrid smoke.

Ottawa firemen brought the outbreak under control rapidly and damage was confined to the room itself, used to repair furniture from the Senate chamber and the offices of Senate officials.

Smoke spread through much of the six-storey building but no damage occurred in the original section.

Little or no smoke seeped into the House of Commons chamber at the opposite end of the building. Doors to the Senate chamber were closed after the blaze was discovered to keep out as much smoke as possible.

The fumes left a strong odor in the Senate chamber but it was not expected to prevent a sitting scheduled for 2 p.m. EST today.

Cause of the blaze was not known but A. G. Vandelac, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod in the Senate, speculated it may have started from a cigarette left by a workman.

Mr. Vandelac, who has jurisdiction over Senate security and maintenance personnel, was critical of the staff for not discovering the fire earlier.

"Negligence was definitely involved as far as I can tell . . . and I'm a little sore," he said.

He said all employees in the late end of the building are supposed to be checked periodically at night but he was told that no one had entered the upholstery room from the time the last workman left at 5 p.m. until the fire was discovered about midnight.

A few nights earlier, he said, pipes frozen in another room because no one discovered an open window.

Ulster Protestants Heed Strike Call

BELFAST (CP) — A 24-hour general strike, called as a show of Protestant muscle and enforced by threats, paralysed Northern Ireland today.

Labor sources claimed that only 300,000 of the 600,000 work force reported for work.

The stoppage caused widespread power blackouts, disrupted transport, closed factories, newspapers and shops and hit milk and bread supplies.

The strike was planned to protest the detention of two Protestants after a Belfast grenade attack on a boatload of Roman Catholics. But many also wanted to include a demand for the restoration of the Parliament suspended last March when Britain imposed direct rule.

Militants claimed the stoppage was a warning to the British government not to handle the majority Protestant community roughly in the search for a settlement to Northern Ireland's nationalist and sectarian strife.

Thousands of workers—including hot crews in Belfast where services were withdrawn—said they had been intimidated into observing the strike.

Forty POW To Be Freed On Saturday

SAIGON (AP) — A senior U.S. official said today the United States is planning to receive 20 to 40 American prisoners of war from jungle camps along the Cambodian border north of Saigon Saturday.

The official, a member of the U.S. team planning the repatriation of American prisoners, said the first group of prisoners in North Vietnam probably won't be released until the early part of next week, perhaps Sunday or Monday, coinciding with the visit there of Henry Kissinger, U.S. presidential adviser.

The official said the first prisoners would be released at An Loc, a provincial capital 50 miles north of Saigon and 10 miles from the border. He said American helicopters will pick up the men there, fly them to Tan Son Nhut Air Base in Saigon, and they will be transferred to a C-9 medical evacuation plane for the flight to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines.

Meanwhile, prisoner recovery teams of the four-nation International Commission of Control and Supervision were making plans for their part in the PoW releases.

Stranded Driver Suicides

GREEN RIVER, Wyo. (AP) — A 33-year-old man killed himself after leaving a note saying his car stalled in frigid weather and no motorists would stop to help him, police say.

"I have been waiting 11 hours for someone to stop," said the note found next to the body of David Huffstetler of Sault Lake City, Utah. "I can't stand the cold any longer and they just keep passing by."

Highway Patrolman Darrell Frye said he found the body of Huffstetler early Sunday.

Frye said the car was out of gas and in the parking lane of a highway.

Sweetwater County Sheriff John Zakovich said Huffstetler, a chemical plant guard, shot himself in the head with a .22-calibre pistol.

Repair Room Fire Smokes up Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — Fire broke out in an upholstery repair room on Parliament Hill Tuesday night, filling the Senate chamber and long marble corridors of the Centre Block with dense clouds of acrid smoke.

Ottawa firemen brought the outbreak under control rapidly and damage was confined to the room itself, used to repair furniture from the Senate chamber and the offices of Senate officials.

Smoke spread through much of the six-storey building but no damage occurred in the original section.

Little or no smoke seeped into the House of Commons chamber at the opposite end of the building. Doors to the Senate chamber were closed after the blaze was discovered to keep out as much smoke as possible.

The fumes left a strong odor in the Senate chamber but it was not expected to prevent a sitting scheduled for 2 p.m. EST today.

Cause of the blaze was not known but A. G. Vandelac, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod in the Senate, speculated it may have started from a cigarette left by a workman.

Mr. Vandelac, who has jurisdiction over Senate security and maintenance personnel, was critical of the staff for not discovering the fire earlier.

"Negligence was definitely involved as far as I can tell . . . and I'm a little sore," he said.

Dollar Weak

LONDON (AP) — The dollar weakened again on foreign exchanges today and once more government banks had to come to its rescue. Gold climbed to a record price in Paris and a near record in London.

There were more predictions that the monetary crisis would bring a confrontation between the United States and its major economic allies.

The dollar was at or close to floor level in most financial centres. Government banks intervene when a currency reaches the floor level, which is set by international agreement.

In Paris the price of gold rose during the day to $70.49 an ounce—twice its old official rate—but demand was down. Dealers reported sales amounting to $15 million as opposed to $2.6 million Tuesday.

Alaska Pipeline Verdict Near

WASHINGTON (CP) — Argument surrounding the trans-Alaska pipeline project, a $6 billion enterprise smouldering in the courts for nearly three years, is nearing its final stage.

The decision of the United States Court of Appeals, which has been pondering the case for six months, is expected at any time. No matter what that decision is, the next and final step is expected to be to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The principal receiving point would be refineries just south of the Canada-U.S. border with Washington state—a destination which would take the oil-laden tankers through the Strait of Juan de Fuca to the doorstep of Victoria and Vancouver.

Among the companies of the project are the Canadian Wildlife Federation and British Columbia Federal Leader David Anderson.

Repair Room Fire Smokes up Senate

Ability of Coin Issue to Finance Montreal Olympics Doubted

OTTAWA (CP) — The rattle of argument about unminted coins and debate among bookkeepers about money unearned and unspent reverberates in Ottawa around the 1976 Olympic Games planned by Montreal.

There are as many cold-cash facts around as there are experts on coinage, accounting and sport.

The coinage argument figures prominently because coins are what Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and the Comite d'organisation des jeux olympiques (COJO) say will provide $250 million of the 310 Olympic budget.

The bookkeeping debate is important for some COJO says $210 million will be enough, the Quebec government says it might be $300 million and the federal government estimates it could be at least $410 million—a possibility raised by Prime Minister Trudeau in statements last week.

On Tuesday, the latest in a series of facts en coin profits known as seigneurage, the excess of face value above cost of the metal—was issued in Ottawa by Peter Dagenais, communist and dealer.

The annual press statement was filled with data, all of which boiled down to the conclusion that the special Olympics coin issue planned by Montreal and Ottawa would have to outsell sensationally, all previous such coin issues to come close to the revenue predicted by COJO.

Prime Minister Trudeau, having received written assurances from Montreal and Quebec that there would be no attempt to gain back COJO's budget . . . according to the appraisal conducted by federal officials, a deficit can be expected."

The officials who conducted the survey, his office said Tuesday, were from the bureau of management consultants of the department of supply and services. It is a body loaned around to various government departments and agencies to analyse the costs and efficiency of various programs.

The bureau worked on budget figures provided by Mayor Drapeau last November.

Its conclusions on the Montreal Olympic plans prompted Mr. Trudeau's doubts about the viability of those plans. Nevertheless, the government agreed to provide the bulk of the Montreal-estimated costs through existing house-subsidy programs and the coins and stamps.

Through regular housing subsidies of $35 million to $54 million, $29 million in extra security costs, a possible $25 million to the CBC and untold millions in foregone revenue from coins and stamps, the federal treasury would be paying the main shot for the Olympics.

Although some coin specialists in Montreal—including the author of the Olympics plan—say profits from special coin issues could be double the predicted $250 million, Mr. Dagenais doubts that even the lower figure would be approachable.

The profit on the best-selling Canadian centennial coins in 1967—sold over several years—was probably less than $25 million at the most.

Pool's Floor Leak Suspect

The Black Hawk pool is undergoing repairs today to correct a leak which prompted instructional programs and has cost the Quinte Kiwanis Club several hours of swimming.

An air pressure test on the main drain showed the suspect pipe was intact. Another possible source of the leak was a crack across the bottom of the pool.

Quinte Kiwanis pool committee chairman, Murray Workman, said this morning the paint on the pool's floor would be ground off and an epoxy resin used in an attempt to seal the cracks.

"We hope to start filling it with water tomorrow," said Mr. Workman.

Everyday Events Column Inspiration

PICTON — An about-face on the commonplace can provide a columnist with material for humorous articles, according to Harry Evans, a regular contributor to the Picton Gazette.

Mr. Evans, who was guest speaker at yesterday's meeting of the Picton Rotary Club, revealed the inspiration behind one of his most hilarious columns describing a hospital stay.

The ailing writer was confined to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital when he received "a basket of goodies" from the Salmon Point Ladies' group. The box contained the usual ginger ale, lifesavers, grapefruit and apples.

As Mr. Evans examined the contents of his box, a friend arrived with the mickey" and an impromptu party was organized. The ginger ale supplied by the ladies' group provided the perfect "chaser" while the lifesavers disguised the odor of Mr. Evans' breath when nurses later arrived.

His thank-you note to the church women's group detailed the use of "goodies" and contained the columnist's heartfelt thanks. Later the episode formed part of a "Harry Says" column in the Picton Gazette.

Mr. Evans told Rotarians that he was born in 1916 in the town of Picton — On - Trent. His pottery was a major industry. He worked as a potter for a time after high school but eventually enlisted with the army and in 1941 was posted to Picton where he met and married the girl from the former Victoria Rose.

His debut as a writer followed a series of letters to the editor of the local paper which created much local interest. Mr. Evans argued a variety of issues in the press, among them the superiority of the mongrel farm dog to the pedigreed purebred.

Gazette news editor Philip Dodds recognized the talent of Mr. Evans' writings and the column Harry Says was born.

Harry Evans made news in Prince Edward as the first politician ever to seek office with a platform pledge to flush toilets for the town hall. Although elected to his initial bid for a council seat, Mr. Evans was defeated in a later try and served for several years on Athol township council. He was defeated this year in a race for the reeve-ship.

The outspoken farmer also created considerable stir in Picton during the night life of his love-torn bull, Morti-mer. The amorous antics of Mort was discretely edited from later columns by the local press.

He prefaced further humor when he gave a friend a truckload of barnyard manure as a birthday gift.

Mr. Evans admitted that even as a farm boy he was getting a gift for applying myself on paper." The writer's humor, often in dialect touch on issues both local and national.

In capsule comments yesterday, Mr. Evans confided there is no solution to the French - English problem in Canada and declared it is worse than the rebellions in Ireland. Politically, the Grits are "the welfare rulers of Canada" and the Tories, when elected always "muck things" try with so many problems that they are not fit to govern the opposition.

Mr. Evans was thanked by Rotarian Dan Nielsen for his description of how Harry Says are written. Rotarian President Donald Clark presented the author with a copy of the book, The County.

UCS Campaign Chairman Says Taxes the Answer

Giving your fair share to the United Way might mean a tax hike if appeal chairman George Zegouras' comment last night are taken seriously by city officials.

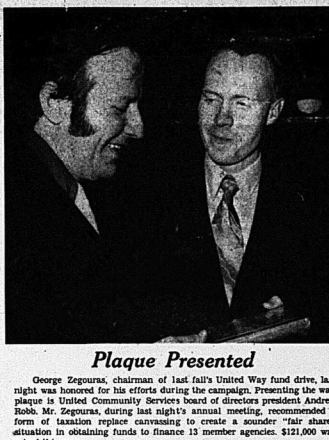
Speaking at the Belleville and District's United Community Services Annual meeting, Mr. Zegouras said he was happy the appeal was over, describing it as "quite an experience.

"Taxation is the only way to have everyone give their fair share," he said.

In a three - page report to the meeting, he outlined the 1972 appeal campaign, saying the annual drive had raised six per cent more than the previous year, yet still falling short of its $135,000 goal by slightly less than $14,000.

Mr. Zegouras attributed the drop from the projected goal to the closing of Canada Cement and drops in the donations from Canadian National Railways and the educational division.

"A lot of people question our role in the community as the United Way as well as the United Community Services. And many are critical of some of the participating agencies and their existence. Those people find some excuse or reason not to give," he said.



Commenting on the timing of the cancellation of the Belleville Family YMCA from the United Way, Mr. Zegouras in his report said, "I felt that the recent publicity regarding the YMCA and the time of the releasing of information certainly did not help the United Way campaign. Some people have made it known they will no longer contribute."

Mr. Zegouras outlined several observations for subsequent campaigns which were: the name the "United Way" should remain; encourage the payroll deduction plan; make a definite effort to approach Sidney and Thurlow Townships for financial contributions; stepe be taken to provide a vice - chairman who could become an experienced chairman the following year; establish a better relationship with local press and radio; publish weekly campaign progress reports and taxation as a means of collecting funds.

Following the meeting, the drive chairman said because of the drops in the mentioned areas, the pressure was put on the others who were giving. "The ones who don't give still get the benefits."

Mr. Zegouras said taxation would provide adequate funds on a more equal sharing basis.

It was announced at last night's meeting that Walter Pepler would be campaign chairman for next fall.

Contract Awarded

PICTON — A government contract of $495,478 has been awarded to A. Peterbrough construction company, M. J. Finn Construction Ltd., for extensive renovations to the Craig Barracks at Prince Edward Heights. The M. J. Finn company submitted the lowest of four tenders for the job.

The renovations for the ministry of health were announced this week by James Snow, minister of Government Services.

Craig Barracks comprises part of the Ontario government's village complex for the mentally retarded in Picton. Unit I of the barracks was renovated extensively and now accommodates approximately 60 seriously retarded persons. Gradually more than 150 persons, most of them from the Rideau Regional Hospital at Smiths Falls will fill the unit.

Unit 2 of Craig Barracks will be revamped to provide square feet of the existing three-storey building are converted to provide administration offices, and infirmary and health service areas. A new elevator, will be installed and a new entrance built.

A 2,000-foot connecting link will be constructed to the central kitchen and storage building now close to completion. Other extensions and alterations also are planned.

Retirees Pinned

Four retiring teachers Thursday night received pins from the executive councilor of the district 18 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation. Miss Kerr of Quinte Secondary School presented the pins to Miss Muriel Gibbons, Miss Dorothy Martinsen and R. W. (Red) Townsend, all of BCI and Miss Lamselee West, of Centre Hastings Secondary School, a former principal of the school.

UCS Door Not Closed on Y

In a report to the general membership of Belleville and District United Community Services, president Andrew Robb said there are grounds for optimism in future dealings between the YMCA and his agency.

Earlier this fall the UCS had expelled the YMCA from future fund drives, claiming the Y was not fulfilling community needs.

Following a number of meetings with the Y, Mr. Robb limited his statements saying the UCS board would review its decision "with the expressed commitment by the Y to increase its involvement in the community."

Increased involvement will mean more activity in areas of health - physical and mental, leisure, recreation, leadership and communication.

"Our minds aren't closed," said Mr. Robb following the meeting. "If the UCS feels there are grounds, the decision could be reversed."

Mr. Robb admitted the Y has implemented some of the policy advised by the Y but would make no personal comments as to his hunings concerning the controversy between the Y and the UCS.

"I don't want to say anything that might widen a gap. It will be a board decision," said Mr. Robb who is now entering his fifth and final year as a board member.

Y president Dr. Douglas Horne said he looked optimistically at the implementation process and summed up the situation saying, "we will be doing more what they think we should be doing."

Dr. Horne bypassed considerable interest in Outreach programs, sending the facilities of the Y into the community, reaching more people.

Makeup of UCS Board Questioned

The makeup of the United Community Services board of directors was challenged last night when city solicitor John Miller asked "are we as good as we are pretended to be?"

Mr. Miller, as well as several other members of the audience at the annual meeting of the UCS, questioned the credibility of board members who were not more aware of the needs of the individual agencies.

Mr. Miller, who later nominated Belleville Y president Dr. Douglas Horne to the board said "to me it would make good sense to bring in anyone who would add strength to the board."

Y treasurer Frank Heisz and vice - president of the Red Cross, Murray Workman were also nominated.

Because of the additional nominees, selection had to be called which showed none of the people receiving a seat on the board.

UCS board member, Bob Sanders, while finding no fault with the motion to nominate members of agencies to the board, recalled, when he had invited a person of similar circumstances to be a member of the board, he was told by executive director Andrew Cooperman, and other heads worked, that person would be in conflict of interest and couldn't be accepted.

UCS board president Andrew Robb said there was no motion and declared the meeting. Mr. Cooperman refused comment.

The members of the new board are Ralph Blatchford, Dorrington Dorrington, Martin Hamelink, Mrs. Vera Heimbecker, Lawrence Kelly, Terrance Kelly, Tony Lagan, Mrs. Margaret Maddocks, David Murphy, Mrs. Sidney Murray, Mrs. Virginia O'Rourke, Walter Pepler, Hugh Pfleger, Andrew Robb, Gordon Row, Robert Sanders, Mrs. Elinor Sisson, Kenneth Stitt, Wayne Wickens, James Wiseman and George Zegouras.

Plaque Presented

George Zegouras, chairman of last fall's United Way fund drive, last night was honored for his efforts during the campaign. Presenting the wall plaque is United Community Services board of directors president Andrew Robb. Mr. Zegouras, during last night's annual meeting, recommended a form of taxation replace canvassing to create a sounder "fair share" situation in obtaining funds to finance 13 member agencies. $121,000 was raised this year.

Regional Government Inevitable - - Reynolds

Mr. Reynolds, with 26 years of experience in municipal government, 13 of which were spent in Belleville, said he was not entirely happy with regional government but said "there seems to be no other way of effectively enforcing official land use plans and zoning bylaws."

Mr. Reynolds was addressing the annual dinner meeting of Belleville and District United Community Services as their guest speaker.

Municipalities within a planning area have difficulty in agreeing on uniform planning throughout an, he said.

Mr. Reynolds, in what sounded like a resignation to regional government, hoped two-tier government would be used.

"In accepting the fact that regional government is on the way, it is my view that a consolidation of municipalities with a two-tier system would be the better plan for the Quinte area."

In a single-tier government, municipal councils would be dissolved, losing the availability of local government to the people, said Mr. Reynolds.

Seemingly in support of a regional system, he said 20 local governments take care of Hastings County's population of 97,000.

He said, "the area is overgoverned . . . municipalities do not have the tax base to produce the revenue to finance the services and improvements being demanded today."

Talking specifically of Belleville, Mr. Reynolds pointed out, "more has been accomplished in the past 12 years than in the 35 years prior to 1969."

He said the new city manager, upon my retirement, will find we hafe a well organized municipal council and administration and a city in a very good financial position.

Jury Recommends Fence, Slowdown

It is almost impossible to keep fences along railroad tracks in proper condition, an inquest jury was told Thursday.

Robert Palmer, a Canadian National track supervisor, testified that fences along the rights of way are torn down as fast as they are repaired.

The jury, under coroner Dr. John Stock, found that Frederick Arthur Vesterfelt, 57, was struck and instantly killed by an eastbound passenger train as he crossed the main line at Grier St. last Oct. 5. The train was travelling at 50 miles an hour in a 65-mile an hour zone.

The Baldwin St. man had a reading of .170 per cent blood alcohol at the time of his death.

Mr. Palmer told the inquest his work crews repair a fence at Grier St. about once a week.

"They're hard to maintain," he said. "I'd rather put up a fence for a herd of cattle than around a track."

He said a five-foot fence put up at the crossing two weeks ago was half down Monday.

Most of the traffic using the crossing is made up of school children on their way to Quinte Secondary School and King George Public School, and adults heading home, the jury was told.

They cross the tracks despite signs that warn dead end, no trespassing and trespassers will be prosecuted.

Following a brief deliberation period, the jury recommended a six-foot chain link fence be erected in built-up areas. It also suggested that consideration be given to reducing train speeds through populated areas.

Mr. Blatchford's Advice

Inspector Ralph Blatchford of Belleville city police was talking about snowmobiles, the other day. He reminded his Rotary Club audience that no matter what might be thought of the sport, it was here to stay. It had boosted the economy and he spoke also of by-laws regulating snowmobile use and of the fact Belleville's by-law was being redrafted.

Having said that, Inspector Blatchford went on to admit that "unfortunately, the motorized snow vehicle is producing an amazing number of accidents." He cited some fundamental aspects of psychology which show that man can be his own worst enemy and which account in some instances at least for the mishaps that occur. The same principles apply to driver conduct behind the wheel of a car.

Basic man, says the police official, has been and always will be pugnacious and aggressive . . . and I'm very much convinced that each of us has an inherent thrill in speed."

But that is not all — and Inspector Blatchford shows insight when he adds: "I am not suggesting that speed in itself is wrong, or even that speed is a killer. The fact is that other human frailties always seem to be mixed with speed. And we blame speed when in reality we should blame our own lack of common sense."

Defending the startling point of age 16 for a chauffeur's licence or operator's permit for use of a snowmobile, the police official spoke of the kind of circumstances most of us ignore — until it happens to us or to our friends. He said he did not want to use scare tactics but "one has only to go to a collision scene where a bicycle is involved to see what can happen." Specifically: children impaled on handle-barr, or on one another case: a spoke through the leg of a child who is screaming in pain.

Looking again at Inspector Blatchford's little lesson in psychology it is difficult to conjure up the problems of man in the era before the horseless carriage appeared on the scene. As the inspector points out, it is just 70 years since society had its first motor vehicle collision. If the motor vehicle is a modern curse for the aggressive instincts of man, how did he channel them in those earlier times? Doubtless an answer lies in the fact man was more self-reliant, in the pioneer era, and had more communion with nature, with the outdoors. In many ways, they were more gentle, secure days, with no hint of the frenetic lifestyles of our own day. Be that as it may, we must live in the present and one way to enjoy our own time and stay alive is to exercise common sense and restraint in operating motorized vehicles, whether they are cars, trucks or snowmobiles.

Tyendinaga Interlude

Even on the most dismal appearing days — such as last Sunday — the countryside exhibits some degree of charm, beauty and freshness. This is particularly so if the scene is new, as some of it, at least, was new for us on the road from Shannonville to Chisholm's Mill and Roslin.

We had been on the lookout for the old R. L. Lazier home — "Mountain View" which features in the Hastings and Prince Edward historical atlas of 1878. We are told it still stands in its Tyendinaga township setting but are still uncertain of its exact location.

At Chisholm's Mill a group of boys played hockey and the nearby dam was in full spate. As Latin has, there was a similar brisk movement of the waters of the dam there. Rainfield, now off the main route, was quiet, but then, was some afternoon activity at the church, to judge from the cars parked outside.

Incidentally, in a land singularly free of snow it seemed that the countryside around Roslin had a little more than in our own "banana belt!"

Pensioners Backed

A few inadvertently omitted from H Clynne Jones' letter on Pensioners Concerned pointed out that 1,664 citizens endorsed the pensioners' organization cards at The Mail. This, together with 670 signatures already obtained, brought the total number to 2,334.

PC House Leader's Grudging Admiration

'Jobs For the Boys' as Liberals Recycle Power Base

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — His may deeply dislike it . . . even suspect that it could be damaging the traditional and proper functioning of Parliament — but Conservative House Leader Gerald "Gerd" Baldwin has to admire the cold efficiency of what he calls the "Liberal Establishment Self-Perpetuating Power Machine."

It is so smooth it is sassy, he says, and just so contemptuously cheeky and uncaring of criticism as to operate on public rather than party funds.

Since the October election, there has been no change in basic government philosophy and policy, he contends, because nothing has changed in the slick operation of the "Liberal Establishment Self - Perpetuating Power Machine."

Nothing is wasted by the LESPPM, points out Ged Baldwin, and not only is this recycling apparatus smoothly efficient, it is quietly economical in the government funds which tax the taxpayer for its operation.

"Nothing really has changed," he laments. The LESPPM will do anything — even to resorting to illegality and misappropriation — to stay in power.

These offences were committed, he contends, when the government, between the old and the new Parliaments, quite improperly used $454 million in Governor General's Warrants to keep the benefit-swamped Unemployment Insurance ship afloat.

"And that had to be done waiting - for - the - next-election!"

Nothing is wasted by the LESPPM, points out Ged Baldwin, and not only is this recycling apparatus smoothly efficient, it is quietly economical in the government funds which tax the taxpayer for its operation.

"Nothing really has changed," he laments. The LESPPM will do anything — even to resorting to illegality and misappropriation — to stay in power.

These offences were committed, he contends, when the government, between the old and the new Parliaments, quite improperly used $454 million in Governor General's Warrants to keep the benefit-swamped Unemployment Insurance ship afloat.

"And that had to be done with senior executives of the Finance Department and the Treasury Board — who are supposed to be civil servants and not political partisans — smuggly sliding back and condoning it."

All this brings back Ged Baldwin to his basic theme that the Liberal Establishment Self-Perpetuator Machine is run by a small, select, elitist clique he calls the "New Authoritarians."

He identifies them as "those occupying the centre of influence around the Prime Minister's office and the cabinet . . . including some top people in the public service . . . some senior crown corporation executives . . . and some on the near-outside of government allied in this process of building the New Authoritarianism."

He further buttresses his case that "nothing really has changed" on these points:

* The government in its continuing drive for elitist power "is quite deliberately prepared to disregard or openly flout the law."

* Multiplying its powers, it rides increasingly by "administrative fiat . . . order-in-council".

* It persists in re-writing history in a "definite and usually successful attempt to discredit established symbols, traditions, and values."

* To create and bind support, it builds an "empire of permanent dependency or citizens through its multiplicity of grant-giving welfare programs."

* In further freeing its elitist hand from public restraint, it "continues aestheticizing society with permissiveness and de-

Darcy McKeough Gets New Energy Post

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

Pundits are still giving their readings on last week's two major government appointments: John White to the treasury and D'Arcy McKeough as special assistant to the premier responsible for energy.

The key could be that White, now in his mid-fifties, has said he will retire with the next election, and apparently isn't out to stick by this.

And McKeough, still in his thirties, plans on a long political career.

Since McKeough resigned from the cabinet last year most of us felt that Premier Davis would want to get him back in as soon as possible.

The only question seemed to be how would he work it, just how he would slide handle it.

If he took him back in the cabinet, particularly quite soon, there could be a section of the public which wouldn't resent it.

Yes he wouldn't want to put him in a junior post. He had been the second man in the government, would always rate this second, and presumably one day would again be confirmed in it.

So he came up with a really imaginative solution.

Energy as we are now beginning to realize is going to be one of our prime problems of the future.

It needs somebody to look at it now and study it, somebody with the mental ability and . . . [illegible].

He can hold an important position in the government, though not in the cabinet, for the rest of this term.

Then he can step back in again as treasurer.

And John White, of course, should make an excellent successor.

He is perhaps the one man in the government aside from McKeough who can well grasp the economic and fiscal questions involved.

Being quite a forthright man he may put in a few touches of his own which will be of value in this key period of federal-provincial relationships.

The one regret in seeing him moved is that he was doing an outstanding job in that other key department of industry and tourism.

Planning and City Council

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I noticed a very interesting news item in last night's Toronto Star that I thought all our city aldermen and the Mayor could well make a note of, to the future welfare of our fine city. The heading was "Scarborough turns down 'poor decision' gas station". The article went on to say that the proposed gas station was "poorly designed, on a poor site and poorly located".

I wonder how many of the city council of Belleville would have had the "guts" to turn down a similar station, or etc. Not very many, I'm afraid. Our main concern in Belleville these days seems to be with the almighty dollar and to H with what happens to the city as far as beauty, convenience, etc. is concerned. It is to be hoped that our new mayor will take more interest in this type of action and attempt to steer council in the right direction, and that district councillors, is in the interests of the people who live here and in the future best interests of our fair city.

I'm wondering how often if ever does the building inspector really concern himself with the "type" of building and its suitability for a given area. Of course we all know now from past issuance of building permits and even the current permit issued for the new hitch rise of Bridge St. East that absolutely no thought has or even now is being given to anything other than the value of the permit issued and the taxes that will be forthcoming from same.

Alderman Keegan, in an article in your paper this evening, forcibly states that hundreds of jobs will be lost if the current controversial high rises are not built. I think we better reconsider. But I have very well when the next election rolls around. How could hundreds of jobs be lost when the same people are to be built where it won't bother anyone? You don't lose jobs by moving the site of a building, no matter what that building may be. It has been said before in this paper that we the people of Belleville don't want anything they should be and not mixed in with good residential homes. Well, they are doing it now. Who is going to maintain these news? Some of the old ones will deteriorate? New or old, any home needs painting. I was just wondering if Mr. Keegan ever stopped to consider why its many building inspectors are like to build in the older part of the city. Has he ever considered it but probably is afraid to admit that, for of course all city services are already in trends, sewers, water, hydro, etc. are already laid and paid for. Now this can be quite a saving for the builder or developer. You were elected by the people of the City of Belleville to represent them and you should be listen-

Communist Propaganda

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With Andrew Brewin speaking in Communist Headquarters, and his Hanoi kill-or-enslave war policy with the backing of the balance of power in Ottawa with Mao-man Chester Ronning contributing to the Radio Peking toast to the cause of medieval bondage in the U.S.S.R. and other taxpayers paying millions for their own subversion, with security-risk professors and the infiltration of some of the media (with ever-increasing efficiency the CBC is selling Communist consciousness and value) all the "Imperialist" war real enough), the Communist Party of Canada can now close shop. Mission accomplished. Hoping that the torch of Lenin is now being carried forward by unfailing hands.

D. GRANT

Reds Still A Treat

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

To the relief of many the Reds are still in power and peace has been signed with honor, so says President Nixon. Let us hope, that Mr. Nixon's resolution to hold out against total Communist takeover will prove to be justified. An early pull-out of the army in 1970, from Vietnam by the country in a continued civil war and eventual take over of the invaders.

That Communism has not softened against religion, but is as vicious as ever, appears to be borne out by the down to evidences smuggled out of that country.

The case of the freed Vienna is a 30-year-old Russian, drafted into the army in 1970. Yvan Moiseyev was a brave young fellow, who when his conversion witnessed faithfully to all he met. For this he was ridiculed, persecuted and sentenced to death on July 14, 1972 by soldiers of the Red Army.

A large Canadian Protestant publication shows three photographs of the boy, one of them in his uniform. The last picture taken by the Red Army and copied by "underground Evangelists" shows his tortured body with burn marks and deep cuts.

One of the officers who saw him die, testified: "Moiseyev died hard; he begged with death, but he died a Christian."

Such acts can not expect who opposes the revolutionary pick lengths they will go in the quiet of the people."

The "Underground" of the South could have produced more such atrocities in spite of pressures of "assistance" by Western leaders.

Licensing Protested

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With regard to the recent trailer licensing fee passed in a recent by-law, I would comment:

The Town of Trenton does not supply any facilities to these people with the exception of police and fire protection.

All other facilities, road, snow removal, garbage collection, street lighting, road maintenance, etc. are supplied by the court own.

It should also be noted that the trailer owner pays taxes where we military. I wonder if this is anything to do with the Trenton council's special treatment.

I feel it is unfair.

Money for Unemployed Approved by Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons voted to give the Unemployment Insurance Commission emergency money Tuesday night, just 24 hours before benefit claims would have drained the UIC account and threatened to halt payments to the jobless.

Legislation freeing the government to make up the necessary contributions to the account was approved by a vote of 96 to 91 with three Conservative MPs breaking ranks to support the minority Liberal government.

New Democratic and Social Credit members also voted with the government while Roch LaSalle (Ind.—Joliette) joined PC Conservatives in opposing the legislation.

There are 109 Liberals, 107 Conservatives, 31 New Democrats, 15 Social Creditors and two independents in the 264-seat House. Seventeen members were absent and Speaker Lucien Lamoureux did not vote.

During the debate the government warned that the UIC would run out of money by midnight tonight if parliamentary approval was withheld.

The legislation wipes out the $800-million ceiling set by an act of Parliament, they argued.

The government said the warrants were passed in accordance with strict conditions laid down by the Financial Administration Act. It argued that the Unemployment Insurance Act requiring benefits be paid, took precedence over legislation setting the ceiling on contributions.

New Democrat and Social Credit MPs agreed with the government that the central issue was the payment of benefits and nothing must be done to jeopardize those depending on UIC cheques for a living.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate), one of three Conservatives who voted for the bill, took a similar stand. The ceiling made no sense when payments were required by the act, he said.

Mr. Lundrigan, Walter Carter (PC—St. John's West) and Robert Muir (PC—Cape Breton-The Sydney) drew fresh criticism for approval from government. New Democrat and Social Credit benches when they rose to vote for the bill.

Mr. Carter later said he voted in favor because the people in his riding "couldn't give a damn" about the legal technicalities involved in the payments. Mr. Muir said he could not vote against any measure that would threaten the continuation of benefits.

Food Prices Must Rise To Aid Farmer--Whelan

OTTAWA (CP) — Grocery prices must climb above their current costly level if farmers are to catch up economically with the rest of Canada, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Tuesday.

And he has no doubt in the minds of the 100 farm leaders gathered at the Canadian Federation of Agriculture annual meeting that he thinks food costs should go up.

"It's high time that farmers start to get a better deal in our society and economy. We have absolutely nothing to apologize for. We have nothing to be ashamed of," the blunt-spoken southwestern Ontario farmer said.

"The last thing farmers in Canada need is a freeze on food prices which would reduce profits even further. . . . They have some catching up to do just to get on an even footing with the rest of our society and economy."

The group, which represents all of Canada's 300,000 farmers one way or another through the C F A ' s provincial organizations, responded with approval and affection.

"That's the kind of talk I've wanted to hear from a minister of agriculture for a long time," said president Gordon Hill of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. Farmers should get on the offensive and demand fair prices for their goods, he said earlier.

He reinforced statements by a widowed mother of nine children, Estelle Desmoore of Desmoore Mills, N.S., the federation's eastern women's representative, who agreed farmers had nothing to be ashamed of in respect to high food costs.

Mr. Whelan's comments, and others earlier by CFA President Charles Munro, dealt particularly with the recently-established Commons inquiry into food prices.

Mr. Whelan said he would tell the committee how farmers had improved their efficiency and productivity, while their prices fell behind costs of production.

He rejected out-of-hand what he said will be a committee suggestion to freeze farm product prices.

Such a freeze would encourage farmers to stop producing, Mr. Whelan said. And "a huge source of export income" would be cut off if farmers were forced to cut production.

Additionally, other countries would "dig in with countervailing duties" if subsidies were brought in to offset the price freeze.

"Those are just three reasons why I think the committee would be wise to hesitate before recommending a price freeze for farm products."

Ironically, the C F A passed a resolution only hours earlier calling for wage and price controls to help harness inflation. But such controls should leave room for farmers to have income "in reasonable relationship" to the rest of the economy.

Mr. Munro, an Embro, Ont. hog farmer, said the Commons committee would find no villains during its inquiry because the issues involved were not those of food costs, but of an inflated economy in general.

"The issues are those of the frustrations and inequities of inflation, the problems of the poor, the disadvantages of the socialites for a better life regardless of distribution of income, the problems of expectations for a better life running ahead of reality."

Successful Living

First Marriage Failure—Better Chances in Second

By DORIS CLARK

A prominent psychiatrist expressed his opinion that a person who had failed in a first marriage had a better chance of success in a second.

Why? A good deal depends on his own personality and maturity. But it may be that in his—or her—first action he had such a need to give of himself that his partner accepted too much. He, in effect, ate too much. He, in effect, more selfish — which didn't work.

Separation and divorce followed. Meanwhile the individual found his self-esteem shaken by his experience. He found that he needed greater reassurance about himself. He experienced loneliness. But he also experienced a feeling of not expecting so much from life and being willing to accept less.

Finding a new mate is a heroic challenge but facing reality is a sign of maturity. The person who is looking for a second life-companion is likely to have discovered more about just who he himself is, and what his needs are.

* * *

Dear Doris: I was talking with the employee of a driver instruction school that handles a good deal of high school student business. They have group classes, then finish with individual driver instruction.

He says not a day passes that he doesn't have one or more students who are "grass stoned"; unable to absorb instruction, unable to function. He takes them home. He says they are aware enough to ask to be let off the vehicle before they get home—still able to respond to some parental pressure!

To me this is a sad state of affairs. B. T.

Dear B.L.: And so it is. Surely being drugged to insensibility is a poor substitute for the thrill of being young, active, alert to all the good things set up ahead for our youngsters.

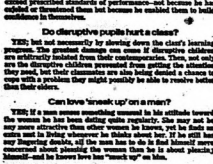
Or does it show some disappointment in our too-great emphasis on material things?

* * *

Dear Doris: Please send me your list of available leaflets. Large stamped envelope enclosed.

Our name is the same as yours. My husband says ours is a Scottish "Clark" — no "e" at the end. The Scots-to-Britons went to waste the ink. — Mrs. F. C.

Dear Mrs. Scotty: Do you suppose that is why my English grandfather dropped the "e" from his name when they settled over here at the turn of the century? I can't say I recall connections with any Scottish Clarks whatsoever; but I recall stories of a very thrifty, loveable grandmother who managed them all.



I do know of cases in which names on official documents were spelled incorrectly; and the bearers found it simpler to adjust their spelling to match the document than to get an alteration made by the powers-that-were, either here or in the Old Country.

Every day Doris hears from readers who report success after taking her advice on a human dilemma. Let her help you with yours. Write to her in care of this newspaper.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Is there an art to being a boss?

YES, but not in the breeders described by a ruthless person who is determined to climb over the broken spirits of those he has leaned on his way to the top. The individual who makes an art of being a boss is the one who knows that there is merit in earned prescribed standards of performance—not because he has read or theorized them but because he enabled them to build confidence in themselves.

Do disruptive pupils hurt a class?

YES; but not necessarily by slowing down the class's learning progress. The greatest damage is done to the disruptive children are arbitrarily isolated from their contemporaries. Then, not only are they deprived of the opportunity to learn how to socialize they need, but their classmates are also being denied a chance to cope with a problem they might possibly be able to resolve better than their elders.

Can love 'smack up' on a man?

YES; if a mature woman is exposed to his attitude toward the women he has been dating quite regularly. She may not be any more attractive than other women he knows, yet he finds an interest in being a hero to her. It's his ego at work. That's why Bogarting denies, all the men has to do is find himself more concerned about pleasing a woman than he is about pleasing himself—and he knows how he can "smack up" on him.

New Mothers Assisted

For new mothers, the public health nurse if immediately available in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

The relationship begins long before hospital days.

In fact, getting young mothers acquainted with the routine of the maternity wards is one of the health unit's services.

This begins at prenatal clinics, a series of about eight classes which run from September to June, at health unit centres in Belleville, Trenton, Bancroft and Picton. In Belleville, classes for couples have been successfully experimented with.

The classes are usually well attended, says nursing supervisor Norah Cunningham, are an informative sessions aimed at accustoming the new mother on what to expect with the new family arrival, what to look for in the hospitals.

"We work quite closely with the hospitals on how they can be prepared for this," says the nursing supervisor.

Role of YWCA Seen As 'Facilitator' for People

TORONTO (CP) — The new executive director of the YWCA says she sees today's Y as a facilitator, helping other people to get things done.

"It's all very vague and idealistic, but I think it's important that our question is not where is the Y going, but where is Canadian society going, and how do we fit into it," she said in an interview.

"I visualize it—as an agency that facilitates community development, not as decided by the Y but by finding out what the people in the community think the needs and issues are."

Miss Henders is a native of Montreal who began her Y career in Saskatoon. Since 1968 she has worked with the YWCA of Nigeria and with the World Y in Geneva as a program consultant.

She said she believes the Y continues to operate in its 19 member countries because it is autonomous in each country and because it has avoided being stamped racist.

She acknowledged it has been considered elitist in some areas and that its Christian or ecumenism and 1 denominational image cause the people of some nations to look a bit askance.

"There is one thing we have avoided. I can't think of any where that we have been labelled as racial also. Rhodesia and South Africa are multi-racial, which is difficult.

"An effort is being made in the Y in the U.S. It is an hopeful sive.

"Our record's not perfect, but it's tried."

She says national Ys are autonomous and ask for outside help, if they want it, through the World Y.

"The agencies I have seen overseas that are unacceptable are the ones that have a heavy control from outside.

"But I was only in Nigeria at the request of Nigeria. The programs I did while I was there were based on the decisions of that Y. Because there was a war, and a lot of young rehabilitation, which wasn't anybody's area of school program, but it was necessary."

Miss Henders has spent her life in Y work. Her job at the Y headquarters in Toronto, but she said she feels she is in out of touch with the work of the Y in Canada, and she plans to spend the next few months visiting branches.

Ann Landers
Worried Reader Inquires About 'Super-Snooping'

Dear Ann Landers: These days when George Orwell's novel seems frighteningly real, when Watergate affairs make no differences, super-snooping on one's neighbors is considered nothing unusual, please tell me how, or if a person can tell if his telephone is being tapped.

Can a person protect himself against illegal bugging?

What can he do if he suspects that his is being tapped?

I'm sure others would like to know the answers to these questions. My thanks in advance.—Ged Bless America But What Have We Come to?

Dear G.B. America: Parallel Illinois Bell and this is what they told me: A person usually cannot tell if his phone is being tapped. If you suspect your conversation are being monitored, call Telephone Repair Service and request that your line be checked. If Repair Service finds a tap, they cannot remove it if the tap was legally authorized. The customer can, however, see to it and attempt to get the device tap removed if it was installed by court order. Illinois Bell will remove an illegal tap however, at the customer's request.

P.S. I agree with you about the increase in invasions of privacy. It is outrageous and frightening.

Dear Ann Landers: Are you sick of the no-bra question? Please have one article on it, K. Ann. My problem is different and serious.

Do you realize how difficult it is for a large-breasted woman to find a bra that fits? I wear a 40 DD (depending on the manufacturer) and it's impossible for me to find a bra that I usually go without one. The truth is I would love to have an operation to reduce the size of my breasts but I am afraid. So please don't be so hard on those of us who have no visible means of support. It doesn't necessarily mean we are trying to be sexy, some of us just want to be comfortable.—Dixie

* * *

Dear Southern Comfort: If you wear a 40D or E and are going without a bra, I suggest that you contact your physician and ask him to recommend a plastic surgeon who specializes in breast reduction. The operation is safe and thousands of women who have had it say they have never felt better—or looked better.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: Am I crazy mad or do I have a legitimate complaint?

I bought a bus-tour ticket (complete with lunch) for a historic tour of Virginia Beach. The day before the trip a hurricane warning job turned up and I couldn't turn it down. A friend who also had bought a ticket told me about a woman who had wanted to go but her cheque was returned because she waited too long and the tour was an early sellout.

I made arrangements for the disappointed woman to use my reservation. Yesterday I received a very very lovely thank-you note. No cheque.

I've never met this person and never expect to. I did not mean for her to be my guest. Had I wanted to be so generous, I have plenty of friends to whom I am socially indebted.

Do I have the right to expect the woman to pay me for that ticket?—Reluctant Lady Bountiful

Dear Lady: Obviously there was a foul-up in communications and a misunderstanding. I do not feel it would be out of line if you dropped the woman a note explaining that you were merely accommodating her and you'd like to be reimbursed for the ticket.

'Evening of Song' Enjoyed At Thomasburg Church

TWEED — An enjoyable Evening of Song, sponsored by the Thomasburg UCW was held recently at the Thomasburg United Church, and despite the blustery weather, a good number of people turned out to participate and be entertained in the evening's program.

Maitland Jackson, of Enterprise, was MC.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Farrell began the program with a congregational sing of Tell Me the Story of Jesus, followed by Miss June Watson who sang Several numbers.

The "Four Seasons" Sisters, Miss Mary Dracup of Wellman's Corners, The Shalom Group from Belleville and Mrs. William Goode of Tweed entertained with several musical selections.

A trio from Thomasburg, with Carol Martin, Judy Howell and Bob Meeks, sang several selections also.

Reverend L. Irby said benediction.

Quinte Figure Skaters Will Attend Carnival

TWEED — Members of the Quinte Figure Skating Club, one of the oldest clubs in Canada, have accepted an invitation from the Tweed Chamber of Commerce. They will take part in the Friday night, February 9, program of the annual Tweed Winter Carnival. This figure skating will be featured at Friday night's show.

It is also hoped that Jed English and Martha-Lee Fotall will be among the skaters coming to Tweed.

The program will include a number of individual dances now being rehearsed by the members.

In past years, figure skating has been featured on Saturday night during the winter carnival. This year, however, the figure skating will be featured at Friday night's show.

Chinese Fabrics Make Fashion News

ROME (Reuter) — Fashionable women may soon be wearing fabrics made in mainland China.

Italian silk manufacturer Tessuti is furnishing pure silk crepes, georgettes, damasks and shantungs from China to Italian couturier houses that include Valentino, Mila Schon, Capucci and Andre Laug.

The fabrics are being used for men's ties and shirts, as well as for women's gowns now on view in the Italian press and some super high fashion shows here.

Tessuti announced that St. Laurent, Dior, Chanel, Ungaro and four other French couturiers will also buy Chinese silks in their forthcoming spring collections.

C r result is an oriental cast to many of the fashions presented here in January. There was nothing blatantly Chinese in the styles, like mandarin coats or Suzie Wong gowns, but designers such as Capucci and Lanvin showed modified kimono coats, suit jackets and dresses.

Some of the prints were frankly oriental and many evening skirts were shown with bi crepe georgette with the look of silk damask.

A silk damask overblouse by Laug had a soft self bow at the neckline, a narrow rhinestone belt and a floor-length matching flouted skirt. Laug called them "tunics with underskirts," but by any other name they were still Be-bindu shirt-waist dresses.

Because of the revival of the silk spring dresses, under a jacket or loose coat, this is good and on its own next summer, prints were more important than in the recent past.

Laug's prints ran from widespaced sunballs in Chinese natural sizes and colors to confusion-like zigzag stretches and the futuristic look that the experts say is waiting in the wings.

The models all were pearly eye-lined accessories with white plastic rectangular frames and tapered high-heeled shoes with a pointed toe.

Swiss-born designer Heinz Riva showed silk sheath dresses and silk dirndls with jacket fronts. Like many other designers, he liked pastel shades of scarf silk, where the contrasting border color picked out the silhouette of the dress.

Shoes became showier with one of Riva's platform sandals made in fire engine red patent leather.

The Milan designer Biki showed empire-waisted sheath dresses in brocade flower prints under double-faced wool coats and jackets for spring. From the gathering just below the bustline, the dress looked like the old sack of the 20s.

Surprise Party For Her Birthday

Mrs. J. Rapino of 22 Baldwin St., Belleville, received a delightful surprise Saturday evening, January 27. Her husband, Dino (Mrs. Gord Jewell) gave a surprise formal birthday party in honour of Mrs. Rapino's 30th birthday.

Another surprise for Mrs. Rapino was the arrival of her daughter, Betty (Mrs. Jack Rainford) who flew from Regina to see her mother.

Other family members present were: daughter, Phyllis (Mrs. Earl Presland) of Ottawa and Elsie (Mrs. Bert Browning) of Belleville and son, Jim Rapino.

Gord Jewell recorded the party on film.

Many of Mrs. Rapino's grandchildren, friends and relatives were also in attendance at the dinner.

Cake Construction

CARDIFF, Wales (CP) — Charles and Josephine Doherty can tell a sad story about their wedding—the cake stood 16 feet high and weighed more than 500 pounds. It resented the master baker with problems, though. They had to pin the 20 tiers together with wooden dowelling pegs and anchor the towering women in sense levels of gravity.

Extreme Libbers Sexual Prudes?

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Author Shirley Kierran of Toronto said Sunday that extreme Women's Lib is a kind of sexual prudery.

She told an audience at University of Windsor's Weekend for Women that extreme Women's Libbers must be given a place in the movement, if only to provide a scale by which other women can judge themselves, but it must be remembered that "men are not the enemy."

"If they are such sweaty oppressed souls what are we going to do—start having relationships with swans?"

Mrs. Kieran, who characterized herself as a middle-of-the-road Libber, is the author of the book Deductible Woman.

A woman's priority should be to think about "what it is that gives meaning to her life and decide what is appropriate for her." She should not feel guilty about her decision to work outside the home or to remain in the home.

"But it has to ensure the man in the household is more than a breadwinner and stud."

Mrs. Kieran said, "encourage us to hate our bodies" by such products as feminine sprays and the portrayal of women as "dafty," should be constantly discouraged.

She pointed to the lack of women in senior levels of government and said the solution is "don't vote for women unless they are really good women." If qualified women get elected it will reflect badly on the principle of women in government.

Margaret Birch, minister without portfolio and director of the New youth secretariat for the Ontario government, said in an interview before the conference Saturday that she expects most municipal governments will be composed almost entirely of women within 10 years.

Mrs. Birch, the first woman cabinet minister in Ontario, said women feel drawn toward questions of health services, education and municipal policies like garbage disposal and housing.

Marnie Clark, director of the women's centre at Humber College in Toronto, told a panel Saturday that the root of discrimination against women in business is the failure of educationalists to show high-school girls the opportunities available to them.

Women start at the bottom while men start higher and are promoted" for advancement," she said.

Girls 'Blow Their Whistles' In Nicholson College Gym

That person blowing the whistle over a foul in the volleyball tournament may not be your image of a referee. In fact, girls are taking a jump into refereeing and Nicholson Catholic College is where it's happening.

A six-week course in volleyball refereeing has been under way at Nicholson and time for evaluation is approaching.

Norma Broadbear, a physical education teacher at Quinte Secondary School, is instructor for the clinic which includes one hour of theory and one hour of practice each week.

The girls learn all there is to know about rules and regulations of the game, then go on to a pre-rating session February 19 at Nicholson to give them some idea of the rating they'll receive. Centre Hastings School in Madoc is the site of the final testing, February 24 where three "nationals" are each girl aims.

Ratings range from intramural, representing the lowest, to national. Part of the testing is devoted to theory and part to practical skill in volleyball court.

But that isn't all. Depending on a girl's rating, there's the added incentive of refereeing. In addition to the income, refereeing is also a good workout and a confidence builder. Unfortunately, officials rates this year will be too late for the Bay of Quinte play-offs but they will be eligible to officiate at the Midget Tournament March 31.

Reasons for taking a refereeing course differ; Many don't have the ability or desire to play, so they make it up by officiating. Others participated in the basketball workshop in the fall and that served as a stimulus to go on to volleyball.

The rating board itself is the Bay of Quinte Board of Women's Officials, which is a branch of CORB, Committee of Official Rating Board. CORB is a provincial organization which deals with basketball and volleyball exams.

At one time it was difficult to find a referee. Now, the clinics have attracted students and teachers bringing forth referees with experience.

The Bay of Quinte has proved that it is superior in volleyball at OSSAA meets and according to Carol Casey, teacher at Nicholson Catholic College the level of officiating has something to do with it. She also said that women should get involved and officiate. They should be encouraged to take pride in themselves and their abilities.

Re-training remains the biggest need. It's necessary to keep up to date on new rules and to continue to practice.

Mirthmaker Matthau Hilarious Offstage

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The average comedian is about as much fun to be with offstage as a 95-year-old Anglican bishop with an acute case of gout.

Walter weathered dire poverty in his childhood and six years ago survived a life-threating heart attack. With a background such as that, Matthau doesn't need anyone to tell him how to enjoy his present success.

"Life to me is funny, real humorous," he said at a luncheon here. He was celebrating the completion of his most recent film, Pete 'n' Tillie, in which he and Carol Burnett star.

You don't know why, but life seems to make me laugh most of the time now. I try to have a philosophy for every specific moment, but it changes so rapidly I guess I don't have a general philosophy."

Now 52, although "he could easily pass for an athletic 40, Walter reached the peak after a long apprenticeship in both living and acting.

After his father deserted the family when Matthau was only three, he, his mother and a brother moved through a series of cold-water East Side tenements because they were unable to pay the rent. At 11, Walter was acting in a Yiddish theatre at 50 cents a performance. During the intermissions he sold soft drinks in the lobby.

After earning six battle stars as an aerial radioman and bomber gunner overseas during the Second World War, he worked his way through acting school working as a floor scrubber and cement hauler.

Slowly he became known as a competent and conscientious craftsman in Broadway plays and as a Hollywood film villain. Then his 1965 appearance in the stage play The Odd Couple made him a comedy sensation. His next film, The Fortune Cookie, confirmed his success. Since then it has been roses all the way for Matthau.

He still tends to think of himself as a character actor rather than a star, and likes to play it serious as well as funny films or shows.

"My only preference is for good r o l e s," he explained. "They can be about anything, anytime, anyplace.

"I became an actor because I like to act. I'm good at it, and I make a lot of money out of it. What would I be if I weren't an actor? Dead probably."

Here are Walter's likes:

"Horses that come in first . . . spelling tests with people I meet while travelling . . . girls' bottoms, because watching them gives me a tremendous feeling of s e c u r i t y . . . ."

And here are his dislikes:

"Raw clams . . . whiskies and wines . . . girls who drink beer . . . all music written since Beethoven composed his last symphony . . . the feel of crepe . . . and people with bad breath who keep trying to whisper to me."

Anything else on your mind, Walter?

"No," said M a t t h a u. "T h e r e ' s less there than meets the eye."

Early Egyptians Made Many Records

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (C) — The early Egyptians were a bureaucratic people who would have loved carbon paper, says a University of Lethbridge professor.

Dr. Dieter Mueller, assistant professor in the university's history department, is an Egyptologist. He studies and translates logs, using a talent not many people possess—the ability to write and decipher Egyptian hieroglyphs.

"There is so much work yet to be done in Egypt," he said. "There are thousands of monuments yet to be published.

"There are literally scores of texts that have never been properly dealt with."

He said he is becoming increasingly intrigued by the Egyptians' administrative texts.

"The Egyptians operated an all-pervasive bureaucracy. They would have loved carbon paper, as they recorded every transaction in several copies."

Dr. Mueller moved from East Germany to West Germany, held positions in several German universities, worked as a guide for tourists in Egypt, and moved to the United States prior to coming to Lethbridge.

He is chairman of the special projects committee of the Toronto-based Society for the Study of Egyptian Antiquities.

Railroads' Old Relics Bringing Good Prices

MONTREAL (CP) — From posh directors' cars touring the country to boutiques in Montreal, Canada's major railways have moved into the antique business and are finding it popular.

Both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific experimented with directors' cars two summers ago to display and sell the first pieces of a vast stock of relics and memorabilia from the golden age of passenger trains, hotels, steamships and their other transportation and communications facilities.

Encouraged by a good public reaction to their first attempt, the railways opened antique shops in their stations in downtown Montreal last summer.

Montrealers responded by buying everything from brass steam locomotive number plates, locomotive bells, marker lamps, silverware, observers' horse keys to reproduction posters and prints.

Omer Lavallee, the pudgy, effervescent supervisor of Canadian Pacific's special projects and corporate archives, says his company decided "two years ago we would release our antiques to the public."

"We had started collecting bygones because we didn't know what else to do with them. We were always saying sorry to requests for them. Then we decided to sell them. Why not?"

J. Norman Lowe, a public relations officer with CN for 13 years and now historical projects officer and a long-time railfan buff, started the idea of a company shop last January.

Management gave him the go-ahead in March and, with little fanfare, his small shop opened off the main concourse of Central Station in mid-June, several weeks before CPR's shop was opened.

Mr. Lowe, who, unlike his old friend Mr. Lavallee, has no full-time assistants, is elated with the success of the shop.

While he will not divulge how much money has poured into his CN coffers from antique sales, his smile leaves the impression that it has exceeded what he or company executives ever expected.

Among the more popular objects at the CN shop have been locomotive plates which sold briskly despite a $5 plus-sales-tax price tag.

Live Sex Shows Come Under Fire

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Stockholm's side-street sex clubs are coming under fire from the city fathers and one of the complaints is that the owners are not paying their taxes.

There has been a storm of criticism lately in the blatant way live sex shows are advertised here in the daily press, right alongside the evening's television programs.

But the Swedish parliament indignantly threw out a proposal by one of its members that it would be better to establish state-controlled brothels.

A typical advertisement offered live intercourse shows every hour on the hour from 1 p.m. to 4 a.m. Added attractions were air-conditioning and half-price admittance in the afternoon. Another club provided free coffee—and reduced rates for old age pensioners.

"Services" advertisements in some newspapers provide the necessary information about girls who wish to "pose" in quiet homey surroundings.

One writer in Expressen estimated there now were 200 "posing studios" hidden away in the narrow streets of Stockholm.

The fees are rented at from $22.50 to $75 a day. The girls are often charged for repairs and many have complained in vain about the high rents, said Expressen.

But the earnings of the apartment owners, an estimated $4.5 million a year, are never audited, the newspaper says.

Tore Winqvist, who left a paper here recently in protest at the sex advertisements and now has published a book Brothels in Sweden, said prostitution has gained ground here in the last decade. It has been shielded by increased sexual freedom—which he claims is officially sanctioned by the department of justice.

Winqvist accuses the big papers of acting as "procurers" and says they are earning millions of kroner a year from the sex-club ads—"not to mention the tax-free earnings the brothels take in."

Sven Bräter, a columnist in Dagens Nyheter, also hits out at prostitution as a form of discrimination against women. Many of the good-looking girls operating in Stockholm, he says, are protected by immigrant boy-friends from southern European countries who still regard women as "bedmates and cooks."

Policeman Fined In Assault Case

WALLACEBURG, Ont. (CP) — A 32-year veteran of the police force here, convicted and fined $200 in Chatham Tuesday on two charges of common assault, has received enough penalty," the chairman of the town's police commission said.

Mayor Cecile Bechard said Ont. Wilfred Lewis, 54, convicted in connection with the beating of two Indian brothers at the police station here, has "more than learned his lesson."

He was fined $150 on one charge and $200 on the second or a total of 45 days in jail.

A spokesman for the Ontario Police Commission in Toronto said it is up to the local police commission if it wishes to take further action against a police man convicted in court. He said there is no automatic penalty under the Police Act.

The police commission in this community, 20 miles northwest of Chatham, fined Ont. Lewis a week's pay last October after receiving a report from the police department on the Sept. 2 incident.

At Ont. Lewis' trial Monday, four fellow policemen testified that he allowed a white youth to beat the Indian brothers in the identification room at the police station.

U.S., Canada Combine To Gather Cosmic Dust

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States are working together in a fantastic dust-gathering project that scientists hope may provide some information about how the sun and planets were formed.

The cosmic dust from the outer atmosphere is really micro-meteorites so small hundreds would fit on the head of a pin, explained Romeo Wiechowicz, an astrophysics engineer at the National Research Council here.

He designed the $5,000 dust bin, containing three radio-controlled boats with one-inch collection pans on which scientists hope to collect up to 10,000 micro-meteorites of a special size.

Part of the problem is that single micro-meteorites large enough for their composition to be determined can be collected only over a long period at an altitude of about 80,000 feet.

Large enough would be between 50 and 200 microns, he said in an interview Tuesday. A micron is one-thousandth of a millimetre—and it takes 25.4 millimetres to make one inch.

From the chemical composition of these tiny particles, scientists believe they can learn about comets, asteroids and gas clouds and, possibly, about how the sun and planets were formed.

Scientists at Dudley Observatory in Albany, N.Y., have been studying larger—but smaller meteorites, but getting space dust particles of just the right size had been a problem, Mr. Wiechowicz said.

Then they came up with the idea of a sky tunnel, which was to be towed through the atmosphere by a balloon.

The tunnel is five storeys high and 25 feet in diameter at the top, tapering down to the one-inch collection plate in Mr. Wiechowicz's dust bin.

It was launched—on a tow cable 500 feet behind a 65-foot balloon Jan. 29 and now is on a 20,000-mile, 25-day journey eastward over the southern tips of South America and South Africa and back to Australia, where the dustbin will return to earth by parachute.

The dust collected will be shipped to Albany and Ottawa where, the first time, space dust of this size will be examined in detail.

Big Quake Rocks China

HONG KONG (Reuter) — The Hong Kong Royal Observatory confirmed that China has been rocked by a massive earthquake which it said was centred in Szechuan province near the Tibetan border.

An observatory spokesman said the quake measured 8.2 on the Richter scale but declined to say whether it was likely to have caused serious damage or casualties.

No reports of the quake have yet come out of China.

The U.S. National Earthquake Centre in Boulder, Colo., said earlier the quake measured 8 on the Richter scale, which put it in the category of a "great earthquake."

The observatory here placed the epicentre of the quake, Tuesday, at about 1,200 miles west of Hong Kong.

The U.S. earthquake centre timed the quake at 5:37 a.m. EST and centred it in a remote mountainous region about 1,000 miles southwest of Peking.

Japan's central meteorological agency also measured the quake at 8 on the Richter scale but placed the epicentre in eastern Tibet.

A quake of such magnitude would herald a major disaster if it struck in an area of heavy population. In a remote region it may cause little damage.

The highest number of deaths reported in an earthquake this century was in China's Kansu province in 1920 when 180,000 persons died. The quake registered 8.6 on the Richter scale.

But there have been quakes registering 8.9 on the same scale without loss of life.

In March, 1970, more than 1,000 persons died when a shock registering 9 on the scale—among the biggest ever recorded—rocked Eastern Turkey.

Bank Manager and Wife Sipped Wine With Thugs

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — After preliminary introductions—a battle with a flashlight, being bound, gagged and having to stare into the wide barrel of a sawed-off shotgun—bank manager Robert Evans and his wife sipped wine and talked politics Sunday with four would-be bank bandits.

The balaclava-clad hoodlums crashed in through the Evan's kitchen door and stayed there until Monday morning when they attempted to rob his bank.

After the opening hostilities, Mr. Evans said, the men were "very gentle" and "very nervous."

The Evans's ordeal started late Sunday night when a stranger knocked on their door. Mr. Evans answered and the man feigned drunkenness, said he was lost and asked to use the phone.

Mr. Evans let him in.

Shortly afterwards the intruder yelled "OK, fellows," and the other three crashed through the doorway. Mr. Evans remembers hitting the first one on the head with a flashlight and then was slightly shaken up in a brief melee.

Both Mr. Evans and his wife were handcuffed and blindfolded and their three children bound.

Eventually, the couple was unbound and with their four uninvited guests sipped some of Mr. Evans's wine, split one bottle at beer and some rum.

They talked politics, mentioned the problems of pollution and made other sociable chat while waiting for morning.

"They were very hot on Vietnam," said Mr. Evans.

Three of the bandits drove Mr. Evans to the bank, while the fourth followed in a second car.

However, one teller late for work noticed something was wrong in the bank and phoned police. The robbers fled when they saw a police car approaching, but not before taking $16 from Mr. Evans and the assistant manager.

School Cost Ceiling Protest 'Too Weak'

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto school trustees say a brief calling the province's educational spending ceilings "dictatorial and arbitrary" is too weak, and they want it rewritten.

It was sent back Tuesday "to be firmed up," trustee Flora Nelson said. "It was considered far too polite."

The ceilings will force Metropolitan Toronto boards to cut $24 million this year from their budgets, exceeding the combined reductions of 1971 and 1972.

Mr. Jones's original draft said:

"The larger urban boards of education in Ontario are being shackled to arbitrary ceiling cost levels imposed by another level of government, and their ability to take vigorous innovative steps to cope with local problems arrested.

"The ceilings give effective control of education to the ministry (of education), and emasculate the large urban boards which have traditionally provided the leadership in the province."

The brief recommends an increase when rather than ceilings to limit spending and asks for a 10-per-cent leeway above ceilings to be paid from local taxes.

Vaccine Against Flu Found

PARIS (Reuter) — A French medical research team said Tuesday it has discovered a vaccine against influenza which will be effective against all strains of the disease.

Professor Jean Lerichi, the revolutionary vaccine already has started and it will be available in France shortly, researchers at the Pasteur Institute said.

If claims made for the vaccine prove true, it could mean a cure for one of the world's most common ailments, which strikes down hundreds of millions of people every year.

Dr. Claude Hannoun, who heads the Pasteur research team, told reporters that the new vaccine differs from all others in that it anticipates future strains of influenza.

"It is effective not only against current strains but against those that will break out over the next few years," he said.

Four Charged

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the American-based Jewish Defence League, and three other persons have been charged with attempting to smuggle arms out of Israel. JDL members previously had held a news conference they wanted to send arms abroad for counter-terrorist activities against Arab diplomats and institutions in the United States and Europe.

Hit Landlords

LONDON (Reuter) — The Labor party pledged Tuesday to oust all private landlords in London if it wins the municipal elections next April. The party's election manifesto said it will take over all privately rented accommodation in London through existing municipal powers of compulsory purchase.

Warning

TORONTO (CP) — William Pickett, president of American Motors Canada Ltd., warned Tuesday that a renegotiation of the Canada-United States auto pact could have a detrimental effect on Canadian employment.

He told the Canadian Institute of Management that at first Canadians didn't like the auto agreement and "now the Americans don't like it."

Term Added

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A Collins Bay penitentiary prisoner received an additional 4½-year term Tuesday on charges involving a number of crimes committed following his escape Oct. 8.

William N. Robinson, 22, of St. Catharines was sentenced to two years for stealing a car while armed, an additional two years for break-in and theft from a Kingston area dwelling where he and another escapee ransomed $2,500 damage, and six months for escaping custody. A concurrent two-year term was imposed on an additional charge of break-in and theft.

To Fire 95

TORONTO (CP) — George Brown College, facing a $1.25 million deficit, will dismiss 95 staff members, president Clifford Lloyd said Tuesday.

Retires

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Inspector Robert George Finney has retired as head of the liquor law enforcement branch of the Ontario Provincial Police.

He joined the force in 1937 and served with detachments at Walkerton, Whitby and Barrie before being transferred to the old Liquor Control Act investigation branch.

Big Funeral

TORONTO (CP) — More than 1,000 policemen attended a funeral service Tuesday for Constable Leslie Maitland, shot last Thursday as he shouted to a bank robbery suspect to drop his gun.

Gun Law

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that would bring all firearms under restriction was introduced in the Commons Tuesday by Stuart Leggatt (NDP — New Westminster) and given routine first reading.

Mr. Leggatt said the bill would prohibit the use of all handguns and other weapons now listed as restricted and would bring into the restricted category all weapons such as shotguns and rifles now listed as unrestricted.

Water High

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Property owners along the Niagara River may be threatened this spring by high water levels, a spokesman for the Canada Centre for Inland Waters said Tuesday.

Church Union Scheme Unveiled by 3 Groups

TORONTO (CP) — A plan for uniting three Protestant denominations was unveiled today before the executive bodies of the Anglican Church of Canada, United Church of Canada and Christian (Disciples of Christ) Church.

If approved, the plan would bring more than four million Christians into a new church called The Church of Christ in Canada.

The 108-page document was formally presented to leaders of the three churches and now will be submitted to the individual churches for approval.

The plan is the result of five years work, although talks and plans for church union have been put forward over the last 30 years.

Canon Ralph R. Latimer of the general committee of church union, said the "plan itself cannot unite our three churches." He stressed that it could be a means of uniting the members of the three churches "as Christians in the Church of Christ in Canada."

Co-commissioner, Dr. Robert Craig, said the plan does not call for uniformity within the churches.

Both men said the various congregations would be free to choose their own style of worship from within an over-all pattern that sets out essential elements and order of services of baptism, confirmation and eucharist.

Professor John Grant, editor of the plan of union, said that general committee has recognized "that on certain issues, customs of the three churches differ and that some people have strong convictions about these differences."

He said the plan could open the doors for some congregations to try new forms of service. Prof. Grant said the present Anglican prayer book and service book of the United Church likely would continue to be used for quite some time.

"For future, the Church of Christ in Canada may wish to issue its own prayer and service book to adopt liturgical forms to express its identity," he said.

The plan sets out 13 articles of faith in a plan of union as well as "minimum standards of belief."

Ministry of the new church, if approved, would include deacons, presbyters and bishops as well as the full-time employment of lay workers. All forms of the ministry would be open to both men and women.

Executive bodies of the three churches will begin study of the plan after the presentation in separate meetings.

The next move would be to have the plan sent to the memberships of the churches for study and then to the general synod of the Anglican Church and the general council of the United Church.

It is expected that the plan will go before the memberships of both churches in the form of a plebiscite, in 1975.

4,500 Die in Uganda Terror

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — When a bank manager was forced into a car trunk at gunpoint and driven away recently, the government issued a statement saying he had gone to Rwanda for the holidays.

He never came back.

The assumption among many Ugandans is that he joined the list of blacks who have been killed during the two-year military reign of President Idi Amin. No figures are available here, but sources in nearby Kenya estimate the total at 4,500.

Amin, a former boxer with a chest like a rum keg, flashed into notoriety by abruptly expelling thousands of Asian merchants from this eastern African country where they had lived for generations.

But Amin's harsh war on robbers and anti-government guerrillas—and on anyone who might pose a threat to his iron rule—has brought terror to many of Uganda's native blacks.

In some ways the law of the gun has taken over. Robbers have no hesitation about killing their victims; the alternative is to run the risk of being identified and shot.

Three Americans have been killed by soldiers in the two years of Amin's government, and the white community's general wealth makes it a frequent target for robbers. Disorder has cut the number of whites in the country to 5,000 from 11,000 in the last five months.

Canada to End Aid to Uganda

KAMPALA (Reuter) — Radio Uganda said Tuesday the Canadian government has decided to withdraw all Canadian aid personnel from Uganda.

It quoted Ugandan President Amin as saying the decision was "brought about by British propaganda."

The president was speaking at a meeting with Canadian High Commissioner William Officer, who handed him a letter from Prime Minister Trudeau, the radio said.

Officer also delivered to Amin a formal invitation from Trudeau to attend the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Ottawa in August, the radio added.

Commenting on the invitation, the radio reported, Amin said he has "no intention whatsoever of withdrawing Uganda from the Commonwealth."

About 40 Canadian aid personnel were working here last year, including teachers, university lecturers and agricultural experts, but most have left.

The withdrawal decision means that they will not be replaced.

However, Canada is to continue assisting Uganda in other ways, principally by the provision of scholarships for Ugandans to study in Canada.

Howard Harsh

OTTAWA (CP) — Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and The Islands) was accused of "preposterous stupidity" by a New Democratic MP from British Columbia Tuesday in the Commons.

Frank Howard (Skeena) used the phrase to describe a motion Miss Macdonald made in an attempt to bring the matter of Indian land claims before the Commons committee on Indian affairs and northern development.

Her motion, which asked that the department's annual report be referred to the committee for study, failed to win necessary unanimous consent.

Mr. Howard, after unveiling the motion, moved that the committee be authorized to investigate all aspects of aboriginal rights and land claims by Indians in Canada.

He too failed to win unanimous consent.

Rate Cut Back

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of the four banks which raised their prime rates to 6¼ per cent from six last Friday rolled back the increases Tuesday in reaction to government challenges.

Self-defence

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Marion Lois Shaw, 40, of nearby Alvinston, charged with manslaughter in the shotgun slaying Sept. 30 of her estranged husband, received a suspended sentence Tuesday in Ontario Supreme Court here.

Mr. Justice Peter Wright accepted her plea of self-defence and gave her three years probation.

Her husband had been known to beat her and was trying to break into her house when she shot him, court was told.

Cheaper Plan

TORONTO (CP) — A new plan to recycle and dispose of Metropolitan Toronto's garbage was announced Tuesday. The process would be 10 cents a ton cheaper than CP Rail's plan for garbage trains to a sanitary landfill site somewhere in southern Ontario.

Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd. and Idumnin Ltd., owner of a 780-acre gravel pit near Acton, 30 miles northwest of Toronto, said the Metro works committee the companies would handle up to 400,000 tons a year to start—about one-fifth of Metro's trash—for $6.30 a ton.

R. W. Billingsley, president of Anglo-Canadian and its associate Anglo Recycling Ltd., said if approval is received from the ministry of the environment by March 31, the plan could be put into effect before the end of this year. It could handle all of Metro's garbage—1.8 million tons annually—within three years.

No Change

OTTAWA (CP) — Regional Expansion Minister Don Jamieson told the Commons Tuesday he knows of no change in plans of Michelin Tire Manufacturing Co. of Canada Ltd. to export 80 per cent of its Canadian tire production to the United States.

Gets 4 Months

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Wilhelma Donaldson, 36, was sentenced Tuesday to four months for embezzling $18,800 from her employer.

She pleaded guilty to rigging the books over a two-year period at Sadler Auto Electric Ltd. here.

THURSDAY ISLAND NURSE — Elizabeth Burchill

Here is the fourth of Sister Elizabeth Burchill's accounts of her nursing career. In her new book she recounts her experiences on the Torres Straits Islands off northern Australia. She writes of the beauty and color of the tropical Islands and of her life among the people. Woven into these accounts are tales of the gold-mining days, the pearl luggers and the first missionaries to the savage tribes.

SLEEP, OUR UNKNOWN LIFE — Richard Deming

What is sleep and why do we need it? After 35 years of sleep-laboratory research, scientists still do not know for sure. In this fascinating book, Mr. Deming tells what researchers have learned about the nature of sleep and the stages it takes, the effects that drugs and lack of sleep — or too much sleep — have, and much more. He talks about sleep-learning, dreams, sleep deprivation, insomnia, sleep-walking and even how plants have rest cycles.

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S TOYSHOP — Stuart Macrae

The Toyshop was one of the most famous and successful of all the British "back rooms" of World War II. From the delayed action mine to the sticky bomb and the giant assault tanks, the department turned out an astonishing variety of ingenious and secret weapons. Colonel Macrae was a first class engineer and organizer who became second in command of the department. He describes, amusingly, the extraordinary inventions which were conceived and perfected, the difficulties encountered and the uncertain demonstrations before the High Brass. The pays tribute to Lord Cherwell and pictures Churchill as he saw him.

ON DEATH AND DYING— Elizabeth Kubler-Ross

Written in non-technical language, this book shows how the dying can be helped to meet their death in peace and dignity. Dr. Kubler-Ross explains what the dying live to teach, their reactions to death and the stages they pass through denial, anger, bargaining, depression, acceptance. The interviewers with patients recorded here are enlightening, and sometimes touching, and give insight into problems not ordinarily discussed.

MY PRISON — Isabel Alvarez de Toledo y Maura

This is the story of eight months spent in one of Franco's jails by a young Spanish girl who was arrested as she was leading a march to get more concessions for the peasants of Palos de Moguer. The prison was abominable — cold, rats, lack of water, spoiled food. She could have obtained her release by "repenting" but refused to do so. When her term was up, she escaped to France and is thus able to tell her story.

BEFORE THE AGE OF MIRACLES — William V. Johnston

Known as Canada's "Mr. General Practitioner", Dr. Johnston is the epitome of the much revered country doctor. This book tells the story of his life as a family physician in Lucknow, Ontario. He was concerned not only for his patients' physical ills, but took a deep interest in their worries and frustrations. He was convinced that continuing education is necessary and was instrumental in forming the College of Family Physicians in Canada. His book clearly reveals how much patients were helped by the presence of this dedicated physician, counsellor and friend.

Massive Bid Will Be Made To Learn Secrets of Ocean

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — A massive bid—the biggest ever mounted—to find out more about the sea is to be centred on the Bermuda Biological Station.

Six oceanographic ships, an aircraft, about 40 scientists and 300 technicians will combine in a quarter-million-dollar plus experiment called MODE—Mid Ocean Dynamic Experiment.

"No one has ever tried anything on this scale before," said Dr. Conrad Gebelein, the station's deputy director. "It is arousing great interest in scientific circles."

When the five-month project ends in July the scientists hope to know considerably more about such things as currents and the effects of air on the sea and vice versa—information which might prove valuable to weather prediction and shipping as well as add a lot to man's general knowledge of the oceans and what makes them work.

The experiment is a co-operative effort among five American institutions and one in Britain. The British National Institute of Oceanography with its ship Discovery is to take part.

The American institutions are the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, the Bedford Marine Laboratory at Duke University, the Institute of Marine Science at the University of Miami, the department of oceanography at the University of Rhode Island and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"The project grew out of a meeting of minds—people who wanted to know what the ocean is doing," Dr. Gebelein said.

"The basic idea is to look at a fairly small area of the open ocean in a very intensive way for a long period. No one has ever documented the sort of information that should be obtained during the experiment."

The ships and aircraft will use Bermuda as a base for study of an area between 200 and 300 miles southwest of the island. The area's position near the Gulf Stream and Sargasso Sea and on the edge of major current system makes it ideal for the study of ocean dynamics.

Bermuda's position makes it an ideal land base for the scientists.

"We expect they will find some fairly fascinating things," Dr. Gebelein said. "The Gulf Stream splits into small currents carrying their own flora and fauna, so you get displaced animals and plants where you would not expect to find them."

More knowledge about these currents might also help shipping to plot routes which use the currents rather than go against them.

The aircraft will monitor air currents and drop sophisticated electronic sea current monitors which will send back signals from different ocean depths.

Information from the ships and the aircraft will be radioed into the biological station every day for immediate processing and analysis by a resident staff of up to a dozen scientists.

Highrise Problem Debated

Lafe isi a highrise is mental gape and the only solution to urban blight is decentralization and birth control.

"It's as simple as that," Rick Williams, Loyalist teacher and defeated aldermanic candidate, told a group of people at a PACE (People Against a Contaminated Environment) meeting last night.

The question was: Is Belleville in the hands of the developers? and Mr. Williams answered in the affirmative.

Other panel members at Sir Mackenzie Bowell School disagreed.

Mrs. Vera Heimbach, another defeated aldermanic candidate, said that if the developers have taken over Belleville it is because of apathy on the part of citizens, loose bylaws and laxity of the city and its agencies in protecting residents. People will stop banding into citizens' groups and put development back in the hands of the city when they are sure their interests are being protected, she said.

Arguing the other side of the issue were Mike DeMark, president of Quinte Home Builders and Don Kelker, another builder. He substituted for developer Maurice Rollins who was unable to be present because of illness.

Mr. DeMark said opponents of highrises are angry at developers, when their anger should be directed against municipalities. Municipalities insistence on high quality land, land services is driving up land costs, he said. The cost of servicing a lot with 50 foot frontage would be $4,000 to $6,000, depending upon the type of underlying soil and rock.

To curb costs he suggested that people learn to accept ditches and culverts instead of paved surfaces and gutters. A 40-foot road allowance is adequate in residential areas, he said, instead of the 66-foot allowance now required.

Mr. Kelker said there is no shortage of land for houses. Highrises are the result of the shortage of services and money to provide them.

Both builders noted that no highrise in the city had been built on land that required rezoning. Rezoning has been obtained for row houses, and six- and eight-apartment buildings, but all high rise sites have been sites already zoned to receive them.

William Hockley said that in every year since 1960 in which citizens opposed control changes proposed by developers, the developers won.

Listeners and panel wrestled with the ills of land housing and laid the blame on inflation, high interest rates and increased cost of building materials and labor.

But Mr. Williams suggested another cause: "unrealistic profits gouging."

He wrung some support from Mr. DeMark who said lumber costs are being forced up by large Japanese orders.

"The Japanese are willing to pay any price we demand for lumber than we are," he said.

Mr. Williams had a parting shot for the 25 people who turned out for the meeting.

Despite evidence to the contrary, Mr. Williams believes that the city might be able to take out an injunction to stop highrise development.

In for a Million

Secretary of the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund, Ernie Belanger (left) and associate member Art Keegan discuss the architect's model for the $4.3 million proposed sports complex. Yardmen are committed to provide one million dollars toward the project. Mr. Belanger, assisted by Mr. Keegan, outlined the project to the Belleville Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting yesterday.

Yardmen Pledge $1 Million To Olympic Sports Complex

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

A million dollar commitment has been made by the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund toward development of an olympic - class sports complex.

Fund secretary, Ernie Belanger, said that $.3 million had already been put into the project, including a trust fund balance of $50,000. "We're hoping this will soon grow to what we told Ottawa we'd give," he said.

Mr. Belanger told yesterday's Belleville Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting that after Olympics are a national thing."

He emphasized yardmen would not draw a line at the million- dollar contribution. "We'll keep making contributions as long as there's a lot left."

"But it's not a case of how much the yardmen are going to give," he said, "but what the community can do as a whole." After the Olympics were over the facilities would be turned over to greater local usage.

Estimated cost of the project is $4.3 million. "It was $3.7 million last year," said Mr. Belanger. "It's amazing how fast prices are rising." A two-year construction period is envisaged during which time means of managing the facilities would be decided.

to approach the federal government in Ottawa.

"We will be making a presentation of what we have to offer nationally," he said, "and asking for a grant." Yardmen want to be part of the 1976 Olympic Games by providing use of the proposed pool for trials and training.

Mr. Belanger said the time was ripe. "Government is just talking about a lack of facilities now," he said. "We've been talking about it for a year and a half and we have something to show."

Education Ministry Team Will Hear Parents' Views on Options

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Parents who would like to talk back to the education ministry of education will get their chance at Centennial Secondary School Feb. 20. That evening, between 8 and 10 p.m., representatives of the ministry will be on hand to hear parents' opinions on the credit courses available in high schools and on whether or not any should be compulsory.

The Hastings county board of education is undertaking this week for parent volunteers, seven from each high school area, to attend the meeting to give their opinions. Volunteers are asked to contact their secondary school principal before Feb. 12. He will arrange transportation.

The topic to be discussed is the credit system in high schools. Originally requested by teachers, the credit system has been decried as "cafeteria style" education since it was implemented throughout the province a year or two ago.

In response to the cries of alarm, the ministry of education is now reviewing its curricular H.S.I., the document that sets out the requirements for a high school graduation diploma. This is awarded on the successful completion of grade 12. The honor graduation diploma is the certificate given at the end of grade 13.

H.S.I. says a secondary school graduation diploma will be granted "to a student who has completed satisfactorily a minimum of 27 credits in a secondary school on the following basis:

— at least one credit from each of the four areas of study in each of the student's first two years in a secondary school (8 credits);

— at least one further credit it after the first two years from each of the four areas of study (4 credits); and — a further 15 credits, in areas of study and/or communications which include everything from data processing through drafting, shorthand to all the languages including Esperanto;

— social and environmental studies, which include history, geography, economics, politics, religions and merchandising;

— pure and applied sciences, which include technological subjects, industrial arts, mathematics, sciences and horticulture;

— arts, which include physical health education, the theatre arts, music, floriculture and art.

The opponents of the credit system defined in H.S.I. claim students can obtain a graduation diploma without studying any of the basics such as English and math. The graduation diploma has been debased to the point possibly be obtained by someone with 27 "Mickey Mouse" courses such as hortikulture and floriculture and four years of physical.

Students, their parents and their prospective employers are being shortchanged, say the critics. Ontario schools are graduating batches of young people who can neither read, write, nor speak their language, or add up the cost of their groceries.

Because students can freely choose their courses, teaching has now become a popularity contest, say critics. Students naturally pick the courses taught by teachers who are the least demanding. Consequently, with no regard for the substance of the offering, those unpopular courses are disappearing from the schools. Left in the lurch are out-the-door and history is following closely in the footsteps.

With so many choices available at the educational cafeteria, serious students have difficulty picking enough courses labelled to maintain them in later life. More guidance counsellors are needed to help students select the courses that will exhibit them to post-secondary institutions. But cutbacks on education spending make more counsellors unlikely.

Some educators are now calling for a return to external examination — the old departmentals. Only by requiring all students in the province to pass the same set of exams at the end of their secondary schooling can standards of excellence be maintained. The same critics are not asking for the revival of the entrance exam., a standardized series of tests once required for promotion from grade 8 to grade 9.

Supporters of the credit system say schools are finally meeting the needs of all their pupils, not just those headed for university.

Students are still picking "core" subjects, the old combination of English, a foreign language, math, science, history and geography for matriculation substitutes).

It is possible, the advocates concede, for a student to escape high school with no credits in English and each of the basics. But it happens rarely.

Timetables being as rigid as they are, it is unlikely subterfuge can impregnate or dull teachers. If it were possible, the bi-annual review of H.S.I. C might weed out some of the shoddier but the system is now entrenched in the schools of Ontario during the teacher shortage.

As for the disappearance of arcane and irrelevant information has been dictated by universities, the bane of high schools the usefulness is overshadowed by the wasting of their time studying them. Nor for the graduate teacher shortage. ministry of education officials who have drifted in and out of the schools in the past year have an answer.

They suggest that every classroom teacher become a guidance expert. Home room teachers, in particular, know their students best and should counsel them.

The minister of education, Thomas Wells, had a few words to say about the credit system when he spoke to secondary school teachers here last week. The diploma hasn't been debased, he said. Employers will simply have to learn to examine the options taken by the student applicant instead of relying on the wave of a flashy scroll.

A teacher in the audience said the minister and his department had been at fault for not making this clear.

Mr. Wells noted that many high school principals in the province make certain core subjects compulsory. The practice is not legal, he admitted, if favorite prescribed is English, math and phys. ed. for all students in grades 9 and 10.

"If a parent complained to me I'd say that he has a right to want his child to take those subjects, then I suppose the principal would be due to back off," said Mr. Wells, "But it has never happened to my knowledge."

The possibility of such a declaration was lurked in the background of those schools that insist that such subjects are compulsory. The ministers attendance in Belleville is the closest thing so far to an indication of government policy.

Against this background, the ministry of education will be touring the province, speaking to parents groups and parents and asking their opinions on core subjects versus the credit system. Hastings county tour comes Feb. 20. The ministry has asked that a number of parents representing this county's almost 9,000 secondary school students be limited to 40 or 50.

Traffic Light Plans Surprise to Councillors

Realization that the future could see as many as seven traffic lights along Dundas St. between Front St. and Dufferin Ave. came as a surprise to several council members attending this week's traffic and light committee meeting.

The matter was introduced through a letter from Breer, Hallsway and Associates Ltd., consulting engineers doing studies for the committee on the Dundas Street artery to Toronto.

The consultants now feel that signals at Foster Ave. are warranted but due to the comparatively low volume of traffic on this street, are recommending that the lights be semi-actuated with the installation of, loop detectors and pedestrian push button rather than having a set timing phase.

This would mean that the traffic flow on Dundas Street would not be interrupted unless there was intersecting traffic on Foster. A system of this type is installed at Coleman and Catherine Streets.

Consultants are also recommending that the Foster Ave. installation be interconnected with existing signals at Dufferin Ave.

Currently there are traffic lights on Dundas St. East, at

Reception Honors Guest

STIRLING — Madoc District No. 9 witnessed a reception in Stirling IOOF Hall in honor of Glen A. Wannamaker, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of IOOF for Ontario.

Charles Farrey, DDGM and Charles Carter, DS, were in charge of reception arrangements while Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 211 of Stirling catered for the approximately 175 guests who attended. The Noble Grand of the Madoc district and the installing team were introduced by Frank Foster of Tweed.

Front, Pinnacle and Church Streets and also at Dufferin.

Plans also call for the installation of lights at Foster and eventually at Bleecker Ave.

And the city traffic committee has recommended that when Dundas Street is reconstructed, underground cable be installed for a possible future pedestrian-activated traffic light opposite the Dundas Street artery to Bayview.

Provision of the necessary cable was recommended following a complaint of the traffic danger for children crossing the street at this point.

Plans for the possible seven signal lights in a distance of about a mile brought a comment from one council member, who observed that with that number of lights Dundas St might not be the through artery it was intended.

What do they do in Toronto, there are not that many on Yonge Street," was the comment.

Regimental Museum Organized To Be Opened in Late Spring

John Turnbull of Belleville — an early street layout of this area — which Major Hubel believes is one of the oldest in Ontario.

Deadline aside, the project moves on with a full head of steam.

Exhibits that end in museums often do so by sheer good luck. Not everyone places value on items that fall gain in attics or basements — their personal mementos do scured by time — and many of those items end up in the bean.

Many people don't attach importance to some of these things, says Col. Dunn of the Canadian Armor Corps, assigned during World War II to Belleville and loaned by the National Museum in Ottawa.

Other members of the committee, representing various regimental groups and soon to be Robert Armitage, Wally Levitt, Robert Emerson, Fred Speaker and Frank Bullock.

Hospital Officers Re-elected

PICTON — The board of governors for Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital remained unchanged by an election this week. Re-elected as president for his second term at the board's annual meeting was Dan Keeler.

Vice-president is Donald Stanson and secretary-treasurer is William Coyle, the hospital's administrator.

The remaining governors elected by the corporation include Winston Hicks, Walker Bond, Arthur Moore and Donald Walker.

County council's appointee to the board is Picton deputy-reeve Ross Cruikwright.

Roger Hurst is an appointee for the hospital's medical staff and Mrs. Randolph Clapp will serve on the board for the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

At a business meeting held last Monday night, reports presented PEC Memorial completed 1972 with an operating deficit of $8,065.

Old Barn Levelled By Fire

TREN TON (Staff) — A barn fire at the dairy farm of the junction of Queen and Wragge Streets Tuesday night illuminated the south end of Trenton in the supper hour.

The old wooden building, timber dry, went up in flames and would have been concentrated on providing protection for nearby homes from showers of hot burning embers.

Residents of the Quinte Manor senior citizen apartments on Wragge St. a short distance away, had a close-up view of the spectacular blaze with the firefighters and their apparatus in action.

The barn was located behind the house where the Jim Moon family live on property owned by the late Sen. W. A. Fraser. The vacant building was burned to the ground.

Deadly--and Disposable

Not all a museum's exhibits are necessarily out dated artifacts. Angus Dunn, chairman of committee planning Belleville military museum, and Carl Hubel, militia major and curator of Hostages and Prince Edward Regiment's museum, examine latest type of Canadian infantry weaponry — an anti - tank rocket launcher; not only easily portable, but disposable after use.

Col. Duffy is chairman of a committee with various regimental associations, including the project.

Already, just six deadline — May 3, when its opening at The Belleville Armory, the annual reunion in Belleville of the regiment's Officers' Association.

But it also is not exactly starting from scratch. The regiment already has a museum in Belleville, more than a decade ago when Col. Duffy was commanding officer.

This, almost all of Carl Hubel, regiment major and museum curator's age, will be loaned to the planned, much-expanded display.

Artifacts painstakingly harvested by Maj. Hubel over the years already total a sizable collection — reaching from Canada's early regimental days to weaponry now currently in the military stock.

They include some notable rarities — a sabre present ed Mackenzie Bowell the Belleville newspaper publisher who became prime minister when he was a Belleville militia major in 1862.

17-year-old Mother Sent to Reformatory

A 17-year-old mother was sentenced to one year in reformatory and two years' probation Tuesday for uttering cheques and credit cards worth more than $1,000.

Mrs. Eileen Marie Graham of Belleville pleaded guilty in provincial court to 24 counts of uttering, two of theft under $200, two of fraud, one attempted fraud and one of possession of stolen property.

Judge J. L. Clendenning made the reformatory sentence indeterminate. He indicated he would recommend Mrs. Graham be sent to the Vanier Institute in Brampton.

Mrs. Graham went on a three-week binge last December after stolen cheques obtained $1,116.87 worth of goods and cash from 13 stores in Belleville and Trenton. Between Dec. 8 and 18 she hit A and P Supermarket in Belleville eight times, receiving $304.84 in groceries and cash.

The court was told Mrs. Graham's mother would take care of the girl's seven-month old baby while she is in jail. Her husband, who was in jail while she was committing the offences, is now working in Pembroke.

In passing sentence, Judge Clendenning also issued a warning to businesses.

"All too frequently," he said, "merchants would fail to accept cheques without sufficient identification."

He noted, however, that Mrs. Graham was in possession of other individuals' ID while she was issuing the cheques.

Blues Issue Challenge

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. Louis Blues' youth movement is finally making a challenge in the National Hockey League's West Division.

Coach Jean-Guy Talbot, since assuming the reins of command from Al Arbour early in the season, has traded off some favorites, to achieve progress.

Newcomer Pierre Plante, who got little chance to perform with Philadelphia Flyers, and veteran Gary Sabourin, paced the Blues Tuesday night as they stormed over Vancouver Canucks 5-1 on the strength of five first-period goals.

In the only other game, New York Islanders got a standing ovation from 19,076 at Nassau Coliseum when they skated off the ice 4-3 victors over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Toronto, while remaining four points ahead of seventh-place Vancouver in the East, remained 24 points out of fourth spot and a playoff berth.

They return home tonight against California Seals when Pittsburgh Penguins visit Montreal Canadiens, the Islanders go against New York Rangers, Minnesota North Stars entertain Boston Bruins, Detroit Red Wings are at Atlanta Flames, Buffalo Sabres visit, Chicago Black Hawks and Philadelphia Flyers play against the Kings in Los Angeles.

Plante, a 21-year-old winger who played only 24 games with the Flyers and scored only one goal last year, scored twice in his seventh and eighth — in the big first period as did Sabourin, a six-year veteran with the Blues.

Garry Unger's 26th of the season completed the St. Louis rout on Vancouver's goaltending tandem of Ed Dyck and Dunc Wilson.

Wilson came on in relief of Dyck after Plante's second goal and the score 4-0 in a game highlighted by a second-period slugfest between Vancouver's Dale Tallon and defenceman Bob Plager.

The Blues, who have been in the West Division despite most of the year, have lost only once in their last 11 games — winning seven, and have climbed to fifth place, just one point behind Atlanta, two behind Minnesota and five behind second-place Philadelphia.

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins and controversial Derek Sanderson, the colorful centre who recently received $1 million not to play hockey, have reached agreement on a contract, The Associated Press has learned.

The Bruins and Sanderson were to formalize the contract today. The agreement is reported to extend through the 1973-74 hockey season.

The contract was agreed to at Tuesday negotiating session which both Sanderson and Weston Adams Sr., Bruins' executive who signed the 26-year-old centre seven years ago, attended.

The agreement ends, at least temporarily, an odyssey Sanderson began last fall when he jumped the National Hockey League Bruins to accept a fat, 10-year, $2.4 million contract.

Developers on that contract with Sanderson were Philadelphia Blazers of the infant World Hockey Association (WHA).

The sex and crowd appeal the Blazers had thought Sanderson would bring with him didn't materialize. Attendance was down. Management changed, and Sanderson suddenly became persona non grata.

To get out from under that burden, the Blazers gave Sanderson $1 million to tear up his contract and go away.

So Sanderson became property of the Bruins again, should he decide to play in the NHL.

How long he will remain a Bruin is a question mark.

Sanderson, one of the best penalty-killing centres in hockey today, but at this particular moment what the Bruins need most is a goalie.

And it is widely believed that Sanderson may be part of the trade bait it will take for the Bruins to get a goalie of the first calibre.

Sanderson's lawyer, Bob Woolf, who declined comment on the report that Sanderson had signed with the Bruins, doesn't believe the Bruins are interested in trading his client.

Talbot made several key moves after taking over from Arbour, who subsequently left the organization to join Atlanta.

He acquired youth in Plante and defenceman Paul Curtis of Los Angeles, sprinkled with the experienced Brent Hughes, while discarding such local favorites as Noel Picard, Frank St. Marseille and youthful Andre Dupon.

The Islanders got an unusual farewell from their fans after winning only their seventh game of the year—most of them within the last month, including a 9-7 upset that started Boston Bruins on their slide out of first place in the East and led to the firing this week of coach Tom Johnson.

The Islanders, too, have been playing under new guidance during the last week with Earl Ingarfield as coach in place of deposed Phil Goyette.

Simpson Sinks Blazers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Nationals may be sorry they took so long getting Tom Simpson into a regular shift.

The former winger with Oshawa General of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Seniors entered camp last fall at 215 pounds.

Coach Billy Harris benched Simpson until he pared down to 190. A trimmed-down Simpson got his first shot at right wing with Wayne Carleton and Bob Charlebois Tuesday night.

The result was a goal and two assists for the 21-year-old speedster and a superb forechecking job that helped the Nats come from a 3-0 deficit to defeat Philadelphia Blazers 5-3 in a World Hockey Association Eastern Division game.

The victory halted a 10-game winless streak by the Nats, who moved into a fifth-place tie with the fast-climbing Blazers.

Elsewhere New England Whalers beat Alberta Oilers 4-2 at Edmonton and Minnesota slipped visiting New York Raiders 5-4.

The Whalers and Oilers resume their match-up at Edmonton tonight while Winnipeg Jets are in Houston for the first of two games with the Aeros and Philadelphia moves on to Quebec City against Les Nordiques.

Simpson was all over the ice against the Blazers, to the delight of 2,313 Ottawa fans who were generous in their applause for the youngster's efforts, and took seven of the 17 Nats shots at Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent.

Linemates Carleton and Charlebois also tallied as did Jack Gibson and Steve Kings after the Blazers, who ended a season-long hold on sixth place in the east last week, had taken a 3-0 lead on goals by Michel Plante, Bryan Campbell and Michel Boudreau.

Hockey Warriors Whip Guelph

Waterloo Warriors and Queen's Golden Gaels weren't impressed with the so-called home ice advantage in Ontario Universities Athletic Association hockey Tuesday night.

The Warriors visited Guelph and skated away with an 11-4 win over the Gryphons, while the Gaels outlasted Ottawa Gee-Gees 5-4 in a game at Ottawa.

For the Warriors, it was their ninth win in 13 starts, and moved them within a point of first-place Western Mustangs in the Western Division. Guelph remained third with 14 points.

The Gaels' win boosted them into a third-place eastern Division tie with York Yeomen, while the Gee-Gees stayed in sixth place with five points.

In Guelph, the Warriors outshot the Gryphons 21-4 in the second and 16-6 in the game.

The Gaels took period leads of 2-0 and 4-2 as they won their eighth game in 13 starts. Jim Adair scored two goals for Queen's and Dave Hadden, Colin Louden and Jim Sunstrum added the others.

Action resumes tonight with Guelph at Waterloo.

Scanlan Holds Wilson to Tie

Cassidy goalie Joe Scanlon received praise from the opposition for a solid game in his Gas House Hockey League net against Wilson Concrete last night.

Grant Thompson, Wilson's coach, said of the sixth-place team goalie, "he wasn't only lucky, he was good.

"We had control of the play," said Thompson, "and were over their blue line for over half the game. We weren't getting the shots, but when we did, Scanlan stopped them."

The Cassidy players were "just up for the game" which resulted in a 1-1 tie according to Thompson. "We went in with the attitude that it'was a victory, though perhaps not an easy one. That's what gave them a tie."

Cassidy's right winger Chester Thompson tied up the score 10 minutes after Wilson's right winger Bruce Sickels had Scanlan for the concretemen's only tally midway in the game.

In the other Gas House league game last night, Constellation and Stewart Warner challaged up big scoreboard markups, but the carpenters' final total proved to be the winning one. Constellation men who are tied with Cassidy in sixth place, defeated last place Stewart Warner 7 - 5.

Stewart Warner's Bob Hunter and Constellation's Dennis Leclini matched up goalscoring efforts with a hat trick apiece. Ron Mitchell and Norm Pope counted two goals for the carpenteam while Nick Cook and Tom Tomaso tallied singles. Ed Svoboda with two goals Brian McQuad, and Gary Richardson were goalgetters for Stewart Warner who held the distinction of having the most goals scored against them during the season.

Brighton Btms. Win Opener

Brighton bantams got off to a flying start in their OMHA "C" playdown series Tuesday night.

The Brighton team defeated Fort Henry Heights 6-1 in the first of a best-of-three minor hockey series. The midgets did not fare so well, losing 5-1 to their second straight in the best of five series.

Brighton peewees are slated to open playdown action Saturday when they face Fort Henry in a 4.30 p.m. game at Brighton's Constantine Arena. The game will be followed by a bantam contest at 6 p.m. and the midgets at 7.30.

Kinsmen Drop Second Straight

Goals by Kelvin Pope, Bobby Thompson and Tony Meagher were not enough to give the Kinsmen Club bantam majors a victory over Kingston Rotary in the second game of their OMHA playdowns.

The Belleville club lost to the Rotarians 9-3 Thursday and now trail their opposition 0-2 in the playdowns.

Their third game of the series will be played in Kingston Monday.

The Dixie Lee Fried Chicken peewee minor midgets at 5-8 decision to Peterborough in an exhibition game last night. The Belleville club was outshot by 34-14 with Smith and Latmer scoring two goals for Peterborough while Ferguson tallied one.

Imperials Lose To Kingston

Peter Crawford was the only goalgetter in the Blake Street Imperial midgets 4-1 loss to Kingston Rotary in the second game of their OMHA "AAA" series playdowns Tuesday night.

Last night's game in Kingston tied the series 1-1, after the Imperials had won their game in contest 5-4 in overtime.

The Belleville midgets have lost the services of left winger Eric Powell, who earlier in the season was forced to sit out with a broken hand. Powell put on the referee according to team manager Jerry Murphy and received a match penalty, which will put him out of the remainder of the Kingston - Belleville series.

The Imperials hope to sign Rick Growden of the midget house league to replace the fouled out winger.

Floor Hockey

St. Peter's Catholic School held a boys' and a girls' junior floor hockey team to compete against 19 other teams at the cocom hockey tournament held at St. Joseph's and at Georges Vanier Catholic Schools yesterday.

Both junior teams came back with trophies as winners of both halves of the tourney.

The boys' team won four games and lost one on the way to a 6-1 final game victory over the 1972 division one champions Sacred Heart, Batawa. St. Peter's team took home the E. J. Neville Junior Boys' Floor Hockey Trophy.

The St. Peter's girls' team won five straight with an 8-3 decision over Lady Fatima in the final game. They took the E. J. Pacsoe Trophy for the school's second victory of the tourney.

Juveniles Suffer 5-1 Setback

The Western Tire juveniles fell to a 5-1 defeat at the hands of the Kingston Rotary "AAA" club in OMHA playdown actiesgiast night to give them a two-game deficit in the series.

Western Tire lost to Kingston in the first game 5-3 with Paul Ackerman, Jim Richardson and Peter Smythe getting Belleville's goals. Richard Barrett scored last night's single tally.

"We've beat them (Rotary) in most of our games with them," said team manager Marsh Hopkins, "but a w, with injuries, we are pretty short of bodies, and it is making a difference."

The Tiremen are playing with two lines and three defencemen though the backliners' berths will be filled out in their third game with the return of Mike Graham, who was sitting out a one-game suspension.

Western Tire's third game in the series will commence on Sunday at 3:15 in Memorial Arena.

Lucky Seven

The seventh attempt by Kay McFarland's Picton rink to win the Intelligencer Women's Bonspiel proved to be the lucky one. The Picton skip went through five games undefeated, capturing the title game Tuesday night. Members of the rink are Ruth Hart (second), Kay McFarland (skip), Teresa Fletcher (vice) and Barb Fyffe (lead).

'No Miss' Policy Gives Picton Rink Intell Trophy

Kay McFarland's Picton rink finally hit upon a winning formula in the Intelligencer Women's Curling Bonspiel. They didn't miss.

The overstatement was a slight one according to Eleanor Oaks, whose Cataraqui rink was trounced by the Picton foursome in the championship game, Tuesday. "They all curled well. I think they missed three shots the whole game," acknowledged Eleanor.

The Kingston - district rink was forced to concede in the eighth of what was scheduled to be a 10-end game. "There were several times when we could have counted four or five points if Kay had missed the final rock, but she just wasn't missing," praised the losing skip.

It was the seventh Intell bonspiel appearance and the first win for the McFarland rink, which includes vice, Teresa Fletcher; second, Ruth Hart and lead Barb Fyffe. It was also the initial tournament victory of this season for the team which has curled together for several years.

The champions played five games in the space of two days en route to their trophy haunts, defeating two Cataraqui foursomes as well as rinks from Lindsay, Montreal and the Kingston Curling Club.

"Our toughest game was the third, against Carol Appleton's Kingston rink. We were tied coming home and beat them in extra ends," admitted Fletcher.

The home town Quinte Curling Club fared well in the competition winning two of the four events contested.

Kathy Brown skipped a Belleville team to victory in the second event. Other members of the foursome included vice, Marlene Henderson; second, Bev Deacon and lead Bev Moore.

Third event laurels went to the Quinte team of Anne Acton, skip; Betty Weymark, vice; Jean Smith, second and Nina Gault, lead.

A Kingston Curling Club entry headed by Kay O'Neill captured fourth event honors. Vice-skip was Maureen Sagarnian with Carol Person acting as second and Sandra O'Reilly, lead.

Royals Top Montreal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Everytime the Sorel Black Hawks have the misfortune to visit Quebec City, the 1973 version of Quebec's Remparts does embarrassing things to them.

The Remparts did it by a 15-4 score in their Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League game Tuesday night. Last month, last time the Black Hawks were in Quebec City, the score favored Remparts 16-5.

In other league games Tuesday, Trois-Rivieres dumped Sherbrooke Beavers 6-3, Cornwall Royals downed Montreal as Kevin Tracy, Dan Lupinetta, Stuart Davison, Bob Chase, Gary McGregor and Yvon Boulton scored once each.

Andre St. Laurent, with two, Mario Tremblay and Denis Daigle replied for the Red, White and Blue.

In Trois-Rivieres, Alain Daigle, Ricky Rendland and Michel Laurendeau fired two each while Claude Beaudry, Daniel Dubuc and Jean Beau-

Marcel Labrosse and Andre Turcotte replied for Sherbrooke. Quebec's win left the Remparts atop the nine-team league standings with 77 points, four more than Cornwall, but the league-leaders have four games in hand and with the season running out, appear to have clinched top spot.

When league action resumes Friday, Quebec plays host to Drummondville Rangers, Shawinigan Bruins entertain Cornwall, Sherbrooke visits Sorel and Montreal is at home to Laval Nationals.

Coombe Prepares Curling Defence

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Eldon Coombe's defence of the Ontario men's curling title will be the focal point of the four-day provincial championship starting today but a couple of side issues may also command some attention.

While Coombe's Otawa rink has been tabbed the favorite and the target of the nine other contending rinks, the enforcement of rules and the progress of Jim Waite and Barry Coleman could also get some attention.

The rule issue involves the length of slide by curlers delivering their rocks. The Canadian Curling Association (CCA) has served notice that umpires will be posted on the hog lines at the national championship in Edmonton March 5-16.

The umpires will be employed to insure that the curlers let go of their rocks before sliding across the hog line—a law started five years ago.

The umpires will be employed to insure that the curlers let go of their rocks before sliding across the hog line—a law started five years ago.

"If I think it's best they get used to the idea now instead of losing a shot because they break the rule at Edmonton."

The progress of Waite and Coleman could draw some interest because they are the skips who earned a berth into the final by winning their respective divisions of the OCA challenge round last December in Oshawa. No challenge-round qualifier has ever won the provincial final since the system started five years ago.

"We won't have umpires at Orillia, but the rule will be enforced," says Leon Sykes, secretary of the Ontario Curling Association (OCA).

Sykes said the OCA feels that if the rule, often flouted at previous national finals, is going to be enforced by the OCA this year, it would be for the benefit of Ontario rinks to become accustomed to observing the rule now.

Knicks Miss Frazier In Loss to Lakers

The game belonged to Jim McMillian, but all he and the rest of the Los Angeles Lakers could talk about was the man who wasn't there.

"Playing New York is always a tough match, especially when it's 1-7," said Coach Bill Sharman. McMillian said after scoring 27 points, six of them in a clutch fourth-quarter drive that carried the Lakers to their fifth successive victory, a 95-90 squeaker over the Knicks.

Frazier, who injured his right heel last Sunday night in Cleveland, sat on the bench and watched his team-mates lose only their second National Basketball Association game in 29 at Madison Square Garden this season.

In other action, Cleveland Cavaliers beat Boston Celtics 110-105, Houston Rockets turned back Philadelphia 76ers 123-117, Milwaukee Bucks defeated Phoenix Suns 126-111, Chicago Bulls clipped Kansas City-Omaha Kings 114-107, Detroit Pistons edged Buffalo Braves 107-105, Atlanta Hawks topped Baltimore Bullets 123-108 and Seattle SuperSonics slipped Portland Trail Blazers 118-117.

Philadelphia suffered through its 17th straight loss which tied the NBA mark for futility. Rudy Tomjanovich did most of the damage for the Rockets, scoring a career-high 35 points.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 35 points and collected 19 rebounds for Milwaukee.

Bob Love, who had scored 49 points against Milwaukee on Sunday, matched that against Kansas City-Omaha. 24 of them came in the second half when the Bulls fought off a rally by the Kings.

The second half was the turning point for the Pistons, too, as they wiped out Buffalo's 10-point halftime lead. Dave Bing, Bob Lanier and Curtis Rowe, who teamed for 69 points, got 45 of them in the decisive periods.

Communist Skaters Stand Out

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — With one prize down and two more to fall to the Soviet bloc, Communist entrants were mounting a powerful onslaught on the men's ice dance and pairs titles today in the 1973 European figure skating championships.

In the first of three compulsory dances being contested, the world champion Soviet ice dance team of Ludmilla Pakhomova and Alexander Gorshkov are trying to wrench the European crown back from West Germany's sister and brother duo, Angelika and Erich Buck.

Czechoslovakia's Ondrey Nepela, winner of the men's compulsory skating title Tuesday, hoped to increase his lead in the newly introduced compulsory free skating short program.

And the two top Soviet couples, in first and second places after Tuesday's pairs' opening round, tried for top honors in the final free-skating section.

In the men's singles, Nepela had 114.86 points, Sergei Volkov of the Soviet Union was second with 112.18 points and East Germany's Jan Hoffmann third with 108.46 points.

In the pairs, Irina Rodnina and Alexei Zaitsev were favored to take the title on their form in Tuesday's short free skating program.

CFL Still Eyes U.S. Expansion

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Football League general managers are still kicking around the idea of expanding into the United States.

Although nobody's saying so, expansion is expected to be a major topic when the CFL's executive committee meets Thursday.

Toronto Argonauts have gone on record as the prime proponents of such a move and British Columbia Lions are running some interference against detractors of the scheme.

The Argos, who proposed the move at meetings last November, and the Lions have been the league's top-drawing clubs and have benefitted least from the CFL's gate-equalization plan.

Argo owner John Bassett, who initiated the move last year and then withdrew a motion dealing with expansion, has at least left the door open for future consideration of the idea.

Bassett says gate-equalization has taxed the Toronto treasury and the Eastern Football Conference club has paid more into the plan than the other clubs combined over the last five years.

He said in a recent interview that franchises in New York, Detroit, Seattle and Tampa, Fla., would produce the revenue eaten by the gate-equalization fund.

Jackie Parker, general manager of the Lions, said Tuesday his club favors consideration of expansion.

"Our idea is that we might take a good look at it if it would mean more revenue," he said after a meeting of general managers.

But he hasn't got much support from the other Western Football Conference clubs.

"Nothing has changed," said Norm Kimball, general manager of Edmonton Eskimos. "We don't think it would work.

"We voted against it for that reason, not because we wanted to vote against Bassett."

National Football League expansion into Canada is also being bandied about. Montreal has been mooted as a possibility because a modern stadium would be there after the 1976 summer Olympics.

But Earl Lunsford, general manager of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, doesn't exactly quake at the thought.

"The reasons for that no happening outweigh those that it might happen," he said. "People that I've talked to in the NFL say there is no chance of expanding to Canada."

In the annual draft of Canadian college talent as 75 players were picked in nine rounds.

Parker had five selections in the first two rounds as a result of trades including the first pick of Brian Sopotyk, a six-foot, two-inch, 245-pound guard from Saskatoon, Sask., who performed for Boise State last year.

This was the first time Canadians who played their college ball at American schools were eligible for the Canadian draft. They are still classed as non-imports.

Four players were selected in the first round and 15 were taken in all.

MAKE LABELS WORK FOR YOU

Food shopping is serious business, not to be taken lightly.

If you want to survive today's inflationary times, you must be aware of what you're buying, and how much you're paying for it.

Unit pricing is the best way to do this. Unit pricing tells you how much you're paying per pound, per ounce, per quart, per square foot, per whatever.

Unit pricing is the law in Ontario supermarkets. Look for it.

Dedicates Songs

TOKYO (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk has composed three songs on China, where he has lived since being deposed as Cambodia's chief of state in 1970, Peking's official Hsinhua news agency said. They're called Remembrance of China, Long Live People's China, Long Live Chairman Mao, and O! China, My Beloved Second Motherland.

Color TV By 1975

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malaysia will have color television by 1975, an information ministry official said.

Self Defence

LYON, France (AP) — A court ordered a prison guard to pay a $12 fine and to remit $50 damages to a convict he hit with a truncheon. The guard claimed the prisoner, who had a dangerous reputation, was wielding a stool at the time and had already menaced him.

Expensive Imports

TOKYO (AP) — Japan imported 30 stallions worth about $6.7 million during 1972, the government said. Among them was a nine-year-old French horse costing more than $1 million, and another horse with a price tag of $900,000.

Legend Makes Way

GOESCHENEN, Switzerland (AP) — A 1,400-ton block of granite seen by tourists each year will be moved at a cost of $80,000 to make way for a superhighway, authorities said. The rock will rest just 60 yards from its original spot, where legend says the devil dropped it in anger after being outwitted by a smart Swiss.

Chess Discovery

MOSCOW (AP) — Uzbek archeologists have found chess pieces dating from the 2nd century AD, making the game 300 years older than had been generally believed, the official news agency Tass said.

Feature Times

AT THE PARK — In Color — Come and hear the rare treasure from the land that gave birth to "Easter Sal". Also showing, "Sensual Encounters". The title describes what kind of movie this is so there is little else to say. This movie is for the mature adults only and is restricted to persons 18 years of age and over.

TV Kills Broadway Attendance

NEW YORK (AP) — Producer Joseph Papp said Tuesday a nationwide television production of his modernized version of Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing had cut the Broadway show's attendance so badly it will close Sunday.

The onetime free Central Park production of the Shakespearean comedy has had 116 performances at the Winter Garden on Broadway. It was hoped the televised production on CBS Friday would help the live production.

But Papp, head of the New York Shakespeare Festival, said receipts dropped last week from $25,000 to $9,500, only about $500 came in Monday and advance sales are "infinitesimal."

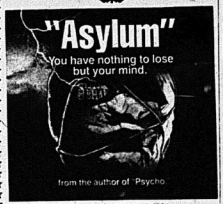
He said the Broadway production is $185,000 in the red and he can't afford to wait and see if sales will improve.

The production, in a turn-of-the-century American setting with Keystone Kop - type slapstick scenes, is one of up to 13 Papp productions CBS has contracted for in a four-year period.

LONDON (AP) — Producers for the British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) were ordered Wednesday to go easy on the nude scenes and bad language.

The orders came in a new code of conduct entitled Taste and Standards in BBC Programs. Most complaints from television viewers and radio listeners, it said, result from cuts in plays and light entertainment.

It added:



"It is principally three words which give offence—bloody, bleeding and God.

"There are occasions when such words are gratuitously included to give force to lines or situations.

"The BBC regards the use of these in such circumstances as indefensible."

The code says nudity can be included in some rare circumstances but sex scenes should not be unnecessarily explicit.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Your birthday today: No current situation escapes your critical evaluation in terms of higher rewards. Today's natives tend to select a special talent and become expert at it. Many of them are strongly psychic.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You have some special obligation to redeem. Bring into your confidence loved ones and good friends, go ahead with full confidence.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Get over a tendency to indecision, get busy at something with a purpose, make up a more concerted plan. Information is easier to gain today.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): That interview with persons in authority can go well today. Contacts should include both old reliable friends and strangers.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Time taken out for day-dreaming gets you into a complication better avoided—so stay on the ball. Take no sides in any dispute.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Building a public image of yourself comes fluently, just speak up clearly for what you really believe. Break for meditation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Double check your facts and figures early, get out ahead of the general crowd. It's a great day for renovation of home.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your creative talents run toward ready expression. Put into use new tools, changes of procedure. Celebrate in later hours.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): When you have aired up your home arrangements and made any indicated changes, seek company and socialize.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make this a festive day of personal freedom of spirit. Casual meetings can become turning points in your life.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Home and family life improves; should include special activities, expeditions, compromises on issues of disagreement.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your search for extra resources hits pay dirt in the form of an end of living income per year. Guard working tools or funds.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Small deals go well, large ones deserve better Influences no longer study. Seek obscure information or forgotten objects.

High Acid Urine Causes Burning

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What would cause a burning sensation when urinating? I am 32, have been childless. This is more pronounced just before and after my period. This also causes my husband some distress. Is this a process of aging or can I do something to relieve it?—Mrs. F.F.

Aging may or may not be involved, but whatever the cause, you probably can relieve it. The first step, however, has to be discovered what the cause is. There are many possibilities.

One thinks first—it's the commonest—of infection in the urinary tract, whether kidneys, bladder, urethra or ureters. Strongest evidence of this would be finding pus cells in the urine, so a laboratory test for this would be very much in order. In fact, first order of business.

Ulceration at the outlet tube (urethra) of a fold in the membrane (a condition called a caruncle) can be responsible. Highly acid urine may cause burning, and your doctor can advise medication and diet if he finds that to be the trouble.

The fact that your first trouble flares up around the time of the menstrual period gives rise to the suspicion that you may be irritated by the flow, or even that you may be sensitive to the menstrual pad you use. Try a different brand. (At your age you cannot expect menstruation to continue much longer).

Burning also may be part of the aging process, involving changes in the genital membranes stemming from a decrease in female hormone production. A hormone cream often is prescribed for this.

But to get back to your original question: there isn't any remedy I can suggest for you without knowing the cause of the trouble—and that is something your doctor will have to determine.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a prescription filled for Griseofulvin for fungus of the toe, I received capsules. I thought it was for the ointment or salve. Do I have the right medicine? —F.W.

Yes, it's the right medicine. This is an unusual—and very useful—medication discovered not so many years ago. It is, in fact, antibiotic from the same types of fungus. It's an antibiotic because it acts by inhibiting the reproduction of the fungus particles, just as the more familiar antibiotics inhibit multiplication of bacteria.

It is, I believe, the only antifungus medication that acts in that way, and can be taken by mouth. Other antifungus medications would be toxic if taken by mouth, and have to be applied to the surface of the skin.

Opening lead—queen of diamonds.

Let's say you're in three notrump and West leads the queen of diamonds. You decide to win and lead a club; there is a chance that East will win with the ace and return a diamond, establishing his partner's suit. If it then turns out that West has the ace of spades, as well as five diamonds, you will eventually be down one, losing three diamonds and two black aces.

To avoid this, you duck the queen of diamonds, hoping in this way to interfere with enemy communications. West then plays the jack of diamonds and you discard the same reason, you duck again.

It is, of course, unusual to duck twice with such a good stopper, but it is surely the right play in this hand. If West still has still another diamond, you win it and attack clubs as before. If East wins with the ace, but, as a direct result of your first two plays, he does not have a diamond to return.

The best he can do is lead a spade, which you lose to the ace, but then you set up nine tricks for the defense — and that is a most unsatisfactory outcome.

Now let's suppose you had bid two clubs instead of one diamond lead and attacked clubs. In that case, the outstanding clubs would be divided 3-3, the black aces would be knocked out, and you would have at least would take the ace, return a diamond, and you would wind up with only eight tricks.

Therefore, in my opinion, the best way of playing the hand is to duck the first two diamonds. This assures you the contract, unless West has the ace of spades, as well as five diamonds, you will eventually be down one, losing three diamonds and two black aces.

To avoid this, you duck the queen of diamonds, hoping

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Extending Tuesday's upward session, prices on the Toronto stock market recorded sharp gains in moderate mid-morning trading today.

The Industrial Index, considered a major indicator of market trends, was up 1.65 to 224.34, golds .12 to 222.05, base metals .42 to 90.89 and western oils .07 to 264.92.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 787,000 shares compared with 882,000 traded by the same time Tuesday.

Among sectors of the market recording the best advances were bank, beverage, oil refining and general manufacturing stocks while chemical and trust and loan issues were the only sectors registering losses.

Advances held a strong lead over declines, 163 to 100, while 220 issues remained unchanged.

The Ontario Securities Commission issued a 15-day trading ban on shares of Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. No reason was given.

The food section of the Consumer Price Index stood at 147.1 at the end of December 1972, up 10.7 from January 1972. Increased prices for pork, beef, vegetables and fruit has consumers howling over food prices so loud that a House of Commons committee litigating organized to try to pin down responsibilities. Poor weather in 1972 was also a contributing factor in the rise. The Index is based on 1961 prices equalling 100. (CP Newsmap)

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: What is the best way of reaching the Kentucky Blue Grass country and is it possible for the general public to visit any of the horse farms there?

ANSWER: At this time of year we suggest taking Interstate Highway 75 out of Detroit, Mich., to Lexington, Ky.

Horseracing has long been associated with Lexington, the first racetrack having been built in 1798. The Lexington Jockey Club was organized in 1809 and held its meeting at Ashland, home of Henry Clay. Clay was one of the first breeders to introduce the Arabian strain, using Stanboul, noted Arabian horse, for the purpose. A horse show is held in July, races at Keeneland in April and October and trotting races in June and September.

Around Lexington are some of the most celebrated horse farms in the world, noted for the breeding of thoroughbred racing and saddle horses. The Bluegrass, strictly speaking, comprises only about 1,200 square miles, of which Lexington is the centre. Five miles northeast is Bryan station, with its memorial to the heroic women of the early settlers; 20 miles south is Camp Nelson dating from the Civil War.

Some of the noted thoroughbred farms in the vicinity are open to tourists. Visitors are cautioned to close all gates they open, and not to smoke while on the grounds. Information and maps are available at the Blue Grass Automobile Club to CAA and AAA members. Farms occasionally close to avoid stable fires during extended periods of dry weather. The closures are usually temporary and unavoidable.

Darby Dan Farm, 6 miles northwest of Old Frankfort Pike, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Galbreath. This is the home of Graustark, Sailor and Sea Bird. It was formerly the Idle Hour Farm owned by Col. E. R. Bradley, who won the Kentucky Derby with Behave Yourself, Bubbling Over, Broker's Tip and Burgoo King. Visiting hours 9 to 4.

Dixiana Farm, northeast of the Russell Cave Pike, is owned by Mary V. Fisher. The first American get of Bernborough, the Australian champion which was brought to this country in 1947, was foaled here. The leading sires are Spy Song, Golden Rule and Fulcrum. The farm may be visited daily from 9 to 4.

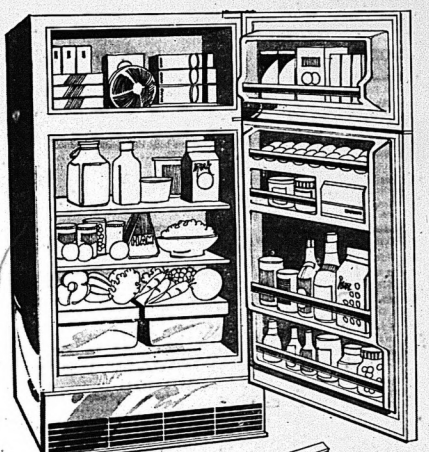
Greentree Stud is a beautiful estate owned by Mrs. C. S. Payson and her brother, The Honorable John Hay Whitney. Twenty Grand, winner of the 1931 Derby, and Shut Out, winner in 1942, were raised here. One of the century's 'best horses,' Tom Fool, now stands at this farm. Other Other stallions are Capot, Stage Door Johnny and Arts and Letters. Visiting hours are 9 to noon and 1 to 3:30 Mon. through Sat.; closed Sun.

Normandy Farm, north on the Paris Pike, is owned by E. Barry Ryan. Of interest are the beautiful Normandy Barn and the $50,000 statue of Fair Play, sire of Man of War. Visiting permission obtained from the office.

Spendthrift Farm, on the Iron Works Pike, is owned by Leslie Combs II, who is internationally famous for syndication of thoroughbred stallions. This is the home of Nashua, who won over a million dollars; as well as the imported Tom Fool, Gallant Man, the American Jaipur, Raise a Native, Swaps and Majestic Prince, 1969 Derby winner. Open daily 10 to 3, except from Mar. 1 through June 30, when visiting hours are 10 to 1 Mon. through Sat. and 10 to 3 Sun.

Walnut Hall Farm is on Newton Pike, 2 miles north. Primarily a standardbred nursery, it is owned by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Nichols Jr. Here is the statue of Guy Axworthy a famous stud. Bloodstock developed here are in world-wide use. Open 9 to 4.

QUESTION: We have heard that there is a ballooning championship being held in the southwestern U.S. somewhere. Have you any information about this and how it can be reached by car?



ANSWER: Balloonists from 17 countries flying nearly 100 hot-air balloons, will meet in Albuquerque, New Mexico, Feb. 10-17, to participate in the first world hot air Balloon championships. As man's first form of flight, ballooning has recently grown in popularity as a sport, requiring control and skill. Activities during the international balloon fiesta will include parades, a banquet and ball, concerts, exhibits and demonstrations of ballooning. Indian involvement and issuance of a commemorative stamp.

U.S. Route 66 passes through Albuquerque.

Belfast Is Battered By Bomb, Fire, Sword

Colin Brown

BELFAST (CP) — An orgy of bombing, gun battles, arson and even sword fights left Belfast with five more dead today and the threat of worse to come.

Some of the roughest rioting even by Belfast standards died down suddenly at midnight. At the height of the battles every available fire engine was at work and British troops were under fire from both sides of the city's sectarian war.

The deaths brought the total in 3½ years of Northern Ireland violence to 717. Victims included a fireman shot by a sniper and a youngster murdered

Mob Sacks Belfast Church

BELFAST (AP) — An elderly Protestant man and a white-haired Roman Catholic priest stood in the charred and ravaged ruins of a Catholic church today.

"I am ashamed," the Protestant said.

"Madness, madness," the priest muttered as he gazed at the splintered wreckage that was the altar. "This was the vilest ton of all."

Rioters, armed with axes, sledgehammers, bottles and rocks torn from the sidewalks, attacked the priest's church, St. Anthony's, and a school for retarded children run by Catholic nuns in the heart of a small Catholic enclave encircled by grimy Protestant ghettoes in East Belfast.

More than 1,000 howling men sacked it in an orgy of destruction that bordered on the insane.

The priest, 63-year-old Brother Courtney, barricaded himself with another priest and his housekeeper in the house next to the church.

They broke into the church and smashed the altar and a huge ornate stained glass window. Holy statues depicting the stations of the cross were torn off walls and smashed to pieces. The marble baptism font was hacked by axes.

Every pew in the church was ripped up, piled high, splashed with gasoline and set on fire.

Even the flowers on the lawn outside were trampled into pulp.

These people screamed the vilest things. There was no stopping them. How did we ever get to this madness?" Father Courtney said.

Gaavon said: "The recognition makes clear we are not siding with one side or the other."

Tenth of Prisoners To Be Freed Monday

SAIGON (CP) — Forty-five United States and about 1,000 South Vietnamese prisoners will be exchanged for about 2,000 Communist prisoners next Monday, Saigon military sources said today.

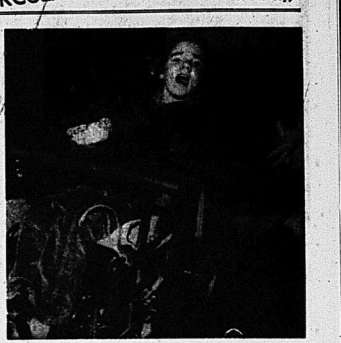
The prisoners represent roughly one-tenth of the total held by both sides in South Vietnam.

Details of the mass exchange were being made final here by the Joint Military Commission (JMC), the sources said.

They said the exchange sites would be at Quan Loi near the Lao town, 80 miles north of Saigon, and Quang Tri City just below the demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam.

The Canadian, chairman of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS), Michel Gauvin, has said he has indications some Americans will be freed Saturday at Pleiku village, 55 miles from Saigon.

Gauvin held a ten confer the ICCS has not yet been given 48 hours notice for its teams to fly out to observe the exchanges.



South Vietnamese Red Cross sources said today the Canadian and Polish Red Cross societies have been asked by the Joint Military Commission—the U.S.-North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong—to observe all prisoner releases.

A 70-man Canadian Red Cross team left Toronto Wednesday night for South Vietnam. It was not known when it would arrive

Record Judgment

Kelly Niles, 13 years old, of San Rafael, Calif., sits in his wheelchair paralyzed from the waist down, after he was awarded more than $4 million in what his lawyer calls the largest personal injury verdict ever granted one person. A five-man, seven-woman jury awarded the damages in injuries suffered in a schoolyard fight. Young Niles sustained a fractured skull and internal bleeding. He was left paralyzed, mute, and requires fulltime attendant care. (AP Photo)

No Halfway Measure

It's no halfway measure for the Quinte Arts Council which today begins selling tickets in its 50-50 draw. The first ticket was bought by Mayor Robin Jeffrey, right. Proceeds will provide a fund to sponsor top name attractions in the Quinte area. Holding the ticket, left, is council president Manfred Koechlin and ticket chairman Peter Ticktin. The first draw will be made March 31.

Hanoi Regime Is Recognized

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has formally recognized the government of North Vietnam, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Wednesday.

The minister also told the Commons that the government continues to consider the Saigon government—which Canada also recognized since 1952—as the sole legal government of South Vietnam.

He told reporters Wednesday the move is of more legal than practical importance. No ambassadors would be exchanged with either Vietnam government, and contacts with Hanoi would continue to be made through Canadian representatives on the 29-year-old International Control Commission.

But he said the recognition of the North "should facilitate the work of our delegation to the new International Commission of Control and Supervision" set up to oversee the Jan. 27 cease-fire in South Vietnam.

He hoped it also would speed information from Hanoi about Canadians being held by North Vietnam.

He said outside the House that Canada now is the only one of the four members of the ICCS that recognizes both Vietnams. Indonesia, Poland and Hungary do not formally recognize the South.

Truce Task Aided

SAIGON (CP) — Canadian recognition of North Vietnam demonstrates Canada's objectivity and impartiality in its activities in the field of peace on the international truce supervisory body in Vietnam, Ambassador Michel Gauvin said today.

Gauvin, leader of the Canadian contingent and current chairman of the International Commission of Control and Supervision, the South Vietnamese government has accepted the Canadian action as realistic, diplomatic and very logical.

Cyprus Election Won by Makarios

NICOSIA (AP) — Archbishop Makarios apparently was assured a third five-year term as president of Cyprus today. He was the only candidate when the nomination deadline passed.

The president's election was to be proclaimed this afternoon unless some objection was made. But none was expected from his rival, Geol. George Grivas, refused to fight it out with him in an election campaign.

Greek-Cypriots massed through the night outside Makarios's palace to demonstrate their support for the archbishop and their rejection of Grivas's terrorist campaign to overthrow him. The president said he will consider the turmoil ... expression of popular support for his policy of negotiations with the Turkish Cypriot community.

Organizing committees of the various pro-Makarios parties, ranging from the Communists to the extreme right, estimated that possibly 200,000 persons, or 35 per cent of the Greek population, would attend.

Police were in a state of general alert throughout the island, as guerrilla warfare are attempt by EOKA, Grivas's underground guerrilla army, to disrupt the rally.

Fear Forty Are Dead As Plane Hits Building

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — Rescue crews search today for more victims believed buried in charred debris after a United States Navy fighter jet crashed into an apartment house and exploded, touching off an inferno that spread to two adjoining apartment buildings. The local fire chief said many of 40 persons may have perished.

Four persons were known dead and at least 17 were injured, with an unknown number of missing, including the plane's pilot.

Fire Chief Ernest Servente estimated that 42 to 45 tenants were inside when the jet slammed into the four-storey 72-unit apartment building.

The building exploded in flames and witnesses said they saw only a few people escape.

"I can't see how anyone could survive that," Servente said. "It just created them."

Two big cranes were brought up to lift away large pieces of debris, but other huge hoists like cranes and men with shovels and pitchforks had made little headway.

Authorities said more than 200 persons were believed living in the building's apartments at the time of the crash and fires in the San Francisco Bay area community.

"There's no question they're going to be pulling bodies out of there," said city councilman Malcolm Langhorne. "There's no knowing how many are dead."

Intense heat prevented workers from entering the rubble for several hours after the crash.

Seventeen persons, most from nearby buildings, were treated for lacerations, burns and other minor injuries.

Cut in Crews Opposed

'Real Joy' To Buy Land

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia government has acquired 1,200 acres of farmland on Saltspring Island in the gulf of Georgia at a price of $720,000 for a new provincial park.

Gordon Ruckle, 62, the owner, said he has had many offers from real-estate companies for the land, which has been evaluated at more than $1-million, but turned them down because land shouldn't be treated as a commodity.

Recreation Minister Bob Williams said it has been "a real joy to deal with a family like this." He said the Ruckles refused to accept interest charges on the government's seven payments of $30,000 a year over 15 years.

This would have amounted to $705,000, he said. The government is making an immediate down payment of $300,000 on the purchase.

After another futile attempt to give it to the mayor Wednesday, the board sent the matter to borough council for consideration.

The increase would bring the mayor's salary to $42,500.

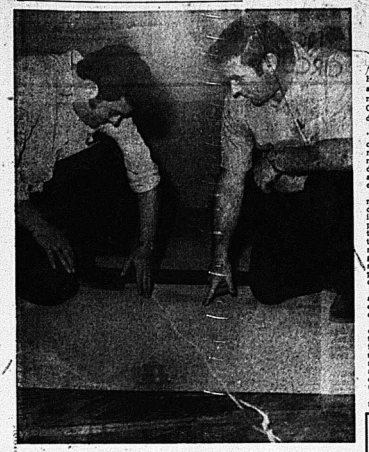
Picton Cement Plant to Grow

PICTON — Picton Mayor, Harvey J. McFarland today announced an estimated $25-million expansion of the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. during the next two years.



A long-term program to "optimize" and add to the facilities of Lake Ontario Cement's plant first was announced by company president, W. M. Bateman, at an annual meeting of shareholders in Toronto this week.

Mayor McFarland, who is a member of the LOCL board of directors, said about $7 million in capital expenditures are projected by the company for the coming year. This year, the LOCL will instal two new mills, increasing its total grinding ability and adding about 20 per cent to the company's cement manufacturing capability by year end.

Two hundred acres of land adjoining the plant were purchased earlier to add to the company's reserves.

In addition, capital expenditures will be made to further maintenance and updating of equipment of the Premier concrete products division. Premier will also build a new ready-mix plant on recently acquired property in Ottawa this year.

Mayor McFarland said more employees will probably be hired at the local plant as it expands. He referred to a substantial tax boost to Sophiasburgh township and observed that when he proposed construction of the plant here, many residents declared "Mc-Farlands off his rocker". He said the expansion plans will enable the local plant to almost double its production in time.

Dividend Declared

PICTON — The board of directors of the Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. this week declared its first dividend following a shareholders' meeting in Toronto. The dividend of 10 cents is payable 5 cents on April 16 to shareholders of record March 23 and 5 cents on Oct. 15 to shareholders of record Sept. 21.

In 1972, the working capital of Lake Ontario Cement was increased about $1-million over the level the year before. At fiscal year end, 1972, total working capital stood at $6,600,000.

W. M. Bateman, company president, reported all the indicators pointed to a continued high level of construction.

Dealing with Burns

Ralph Holden, right, Fire Chief of Bloomfield - Hallowell, discusses treatment of fire victims with Dr. Bruce Morgan of Belleville. Dr. Morgan, a surgeon who often deals with patients suffering burns, told the Hastings-Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association burn skin areas can be covered with clean sheeting but should never be treated with foreign substances that could endanger recovery.

Burns Leave Lasting Scars, Firemen Told

The average third degree burn sufferer spends five months in hospital and requires 10 operations before he is released, a Belleville surgeon revealed Wednesday.

Furthermore, said Dr. Bruce Morgan, the scars often go far beyond the skin, affecting the entire personality of the burn victim.

Dr. Morgan was offering advice on treatment of burn victims to 80 firefighters in the Hastings - Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association.

His words, however, carried far less impact than a color slides he presented showing various stages in the recovery of burn victims.

One youngster, whose upper body was burned last October, spill had large areas of red tissue exposed in his chest region in January, despite several skin grafts.

He and a friend had been warming themselves in a field when gas they were pouring inadvertently spilled.

Another man, whose entire head was black and swollen two days after a fire mishap, was afraid to pursue his career as a salesman because of scars left by the burning. He had been operated on by top plastic surgeon in Canada.

In terms of pain and human deformity," Dr. Morgan said, "few things are more permanently disabling."

Third degree burns — the type that break through the under layer of skin — occur in a variety of circumstances. Depending on the temperature and length of exposure, flames, gas and hot metal can all cause skin protein to coagulate and render flesh to right.

To aid the firemen in their treatment of burn sufferers, Dr. Morgan recommended four rules be followed.

—Remove people from the burn source, if necessary by taking off their clothes unless they have burned into the skin.

—Make sure there is clean, fast-moving air in the room.

—Do not jeopardize the victim by applying anything that could cause further harm.

—Do not give the victim anything to drink, thereby delaying anaesthesia for six hours.

Dr. Morgan said his topic was not dissatisfied in many fire situations since 80 to 90 per cent of fatalities result from suffocation. He was particularly concerned that firemen "think in terms of airways" since burnt lungs and air passages mean death in almost all cases.

The Belleville General Hospital surgeon also had suggestions for treatment of first and second degree burns.

In the first instance, the most common example is sunburn. Dr. Morgan said that if the sore area is allowed to breathe, the outer skin layer will quickly peel and a new, healthy one replaces it.

More serious are second degree burns, which often result from boiling water spills. A blister usually forms and the affected area takes on a bright red hue, but if it is kept clean and open to air, it

Pool Split Checked

Dennis Coughtry (left) and Bob Revoy of Century Pools check progress at the Black Hawk Motel pool where the Quinte Kiwanis swim program has been held up by a leak in the pool. The cracks in the pool's floor are being ground out and patched with epoxy resin. Pressure tests showed main drains were intact. If the epoxy patching fails to stop the leak, Mr. Coughtry said his next recommendation would be for the Kiwanis to chip out and reseal old mends at the deep end of the pool where the walls meet the floor.

Nurses, Loyalist Meet at Dinner

The faculty of Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing came to dinner at Loyalist College last night.

The occasion was to allow Loyalist president, Herbert Young, dean of faculty, Paul King, and others in the administration at Loyalist to extend an advance welcome to the Edith Cavell group, who will officially be joining Loyalist next September.

After Mr. Young introduced the Loyalist staff, Mrs. Madge Flindall, director of The Edith Cavell school, reciprocated by introducing her faculty.

Mr. Young made some general welcoming remarks to the effect that the transition from the Edith Cavell School to Loyalist would be effected as smoothly as possible in line with the official announcement.

The Ontario government has placed all hospital schools of nursing under the jurisdiction of community colleges, with the move to become effective in September.

Job Applications Up in January

A sudden surge in the number of women registered for work has jolted jobless totals upwards in the Belleville area.

At the end of January there were 6,185 people registered as job-seekers at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre — an increase of nearly 400 over the 1,808 at the close of December.

In January, 1972, there were 1,443 applicants for work at the Belleville Manpower office — which cover an area including the city, Ameliasburgh township and all Hastings County.

The latest statistics show little increase in the number of men seeking work — 1,205 compared to 1,155 at the end of December. But there were 980 women registered, compared to 647 during the same months.

Manpower officials believe the sudden statistical scare can be mainly traced to one source: A leading city industry which sent Manpower an order in January for a "fair number" of women employees for a specific project.

Word of such hirings can spread quickly, said a Manpower official, and this caused "a great number of women to register for work — but for that job, with that company, only."

Other contributing factors cited were the post-Christmas seasonal layoffs and shutdown of a downtown retailer, Zellers.

What has Manpower officials more puzzled is a big jump in applicants for work in construction.

H. W. Karn, Belleville Manpower manager, admitted puzzlement over statistics that showed 426 men registered for work in the construction trades, compared to 220 at the end of December — up slightly more than 300.

"Building is supposed to be booming (in the city area)," said Mr. Karn, "I don't know where these people are coming from."

The increase came during mild winter weather, a favorable construction factor, he noted.

Some 60 carpenters registered for work during January, an "unusually high" number for this time of year, he said.

Secretaries, typists, clerks and workers in related office and retail fields are readily available through Manpower to fill any job openings.

The Manpower manager also felt recently - launched incentive programs — including Local Initiatives Program and On-The-Job-Training — may have created jobs that have not yet shown up in statistics.

What percentage of the total labor force the Manpower registrations represent — not easily discernible on a local basis for comparison with national averages.

Statistics Canada this week showed 7.7 percent of the country's labor force was without work in mid - January, up 0.5 per cent in December. But seasonally adjusted, the percentages dip to 6.2 in January from 6.7 a month before.

Educational Assistants Circulating Specialists

The role of educational assistants was defined for Hastings county school trustees Monday during their orientation program.

Newly appointed trustee Don Thrush said he had heard the public criticize the position of educational assistants. He remarked that only the Hastings county board has them.

Board chairman Mac Smith said the educational assistants replace the 14 consultants, specialists in various fields, previously employed by the board. They went into schools to advise and assist regular teachers in programs such as music and special education.

The eight educational assistants who now replace the consultants are regular classroom teachers or principals, withdrawn from the schools for a year or two at a time. They are chosen, on the basis of their special abilities, to help the superintendent of an associate school group with any weaknesses in his secondary school and its feeder elementary schools.

After the weakness has been overcome, the educational assistant usually returns to his regular duties.

"The idea is to meet the need at the time it arises," said a superintendent, "When one situation is corrected, another person can be withdrawn from the regular system to act as an educational assistant for a year and attack another problem."

When permanent consultants were always available, principals had no motivation to get specialists on their teaching staff. The consultants did the work for them, the superintendents said.

Consultants, and later the educational assistants, receive an extra allowance over and above their regular salary. This will cease in September, 1973 and teachers appointed as educational assistants will get their regular salaries. The eight educational assistants will cost the board less than the 14 consultants did, Mr. Thrush was told.

The experience the teachern - turned - educational - assistants gain on the job is the factor that motivates them to take the temporary positions, Mr. Thrush learned.

Team's Winter Cruise Is No Luxury Voyage

TWEED — Bruce Parks and John Strong are in the midst of a winter cruise — but there is nothing luxuriously exotic about the locale.

It's the winterbound solitude of Quinte district forestlands.

Both young men are collecting scientific data on trees and timber growth to be used for future conservation and forest management programs.

Hectic, the deceptive description, in a contemporary context, of cruising — a term probably as old as Canada's timber industry itself, which, in its heyday, was — if less scientifically — embarked on such surveys.

There was an era when cruiser teams ranged far through the forests — often gone for months — seeking the virgin timber stands which meant big-money returns to the industry.

But demands of modern forestry management require a more precise approach.

This is the basis for the project engaging Bruce Parks and John Strong, recent graduates of Sir Sandford Fleming College's forestry program in Lindsay.

Both are currently employed by the Ministry of Natural Resources office here under the Ontario Seasonal Employment Program to cruise 60,000 acres of conservation land in the Tweed forest district. Covering about 100 acres a day, the two-man team has now amassed data on timber on some 15,000 acres of land owned by the Moira River Conservation Authority, Napanee and Addington County Forest and Frontenac Regional Conservation Authority.

Since its objective is modern resource management, cruising these days involves gathering of complete and accurate information.

Timber strips 33 feet wide, representing a five per cent sample of the land under study are selected and a compass bearing taken to guarantee exact direction as the two surveyors begin gathering information on all trees in the sampling area.

Commenting on the timing for each tree they must note species, height, diameter and the percentage unusable because of rot, disease or deformation.

In major stands they also must determine the age of representative trees. This is done by boring out a pencil-sized section of a tree's trunk, making it possible to count its annual rings without cutting it down. Presence of any pest or disease, as well as soil types and general topography of the land is also noted.

There are problems: Old maps, occasionally vague on property lines, snow and biting temperatures.

There are compensations! Like finding a stand of huckberry, the furthest north the species of berry tree has been discovered. And both men like their task. Despite its apparent harshness, the Canadian forest has its own kind of magnificent settings in winter — for cruisers.

Church Faithful

The task of maintaining Christian worship and keeping congregations together in these changing times is no easier than ever. There are wealthy congregations to be sure, but there are others which have a difficult time making ends meet, let alone seeing to necessary repairs.

Two articles by reporter Harry Mulhall in recent days have served to demonstrate the devotion and zeal of church congregations in the face of odds. For example, there is the Friendship Group of St. John's Anglican Church in Point Anne — a group of women under Mrs. Wowella Akey who raises funds by catering for various events. With the approaching transfer of the cement plant operation to a site near Bath and loss of some parishioners the loyalty of this group will be all the more appreciated.

Then there is historic Christ Church with its largely Mohawk Indian congregation on the outskirts of Deseronto. A Chapel Royal — one of the few outside Britain — it is endowed with gifts from succeeding British monarchs from the time of Queen Anne. Funds for repair work, however, are scarce, so the congregation has been fortunate in discovering it is entitled to funds from the New England Company, an establishment founded by Oliver Cromwell, of all people, to propagate the Christian gospel in what then were the American colonies. It is a tribute to the long-standing integrity not only of the Christian gospel but of centuries-old church affiliates such as this company that an appeal for funds by Christ Church was favorably received and this will assist the church over the next two decades or so.

There have been other interesting developments in Quinte-area congregations of late. Eastminster United Church has just celebrated its 16th anniversary and the Rev. J. A. (Jack) Fletcher has been ordained as a priest in the Anglican church after giving up a career in the business world.

Mr. Fletcher, who was branch manager of a finance company here for 20 years, and during that time was a member of Christ Church, Belleville, and a licenced lay reader, is now incumbent of the parish of Marysburgh (Milford and Wesport).

Difficult Reunion

The first group of United States' prisoners in the hands of the North Vietnamese is due back on home soil shortly and there has been a great deal of speculation about what the initial reaction and that of their families will be.

At least one psychologist has been quoted as saying the men likely will be in much better physical and mental condition than might be expected and he counselled the families at home in effect to "play it cool."

One of the most difficult reunions will be that of Mrs. Cormier and her family with their master sergeant husband and father who has been a prisoner for seven years. During this time Mrs. Cormier has been the chief support for herself and her children, earning a degree and obtaining a job as a school librarian. At the same time she has been active politically. She says she still loves her husband but that he will be coming home almost as a stranger, while in the meantime she has become very much her own person, strong-minded and capable — a far cry it would appear from the more home-centred and submissive woman she was at the time of their marriage. She is understandably fearful of how things will turn out.

We may anticipate something of a long-term field day among sociologists and psychologists as they watch this homecoming drama generally, unfolding. The men and their families doubtless will be permitted a privacy in the initial stages, but ultimately all will be very much in the public eye.

Those who know, this may be good for all concerned, to talk about their reactions and their feelings generally — to let it all out and hopefully, start afresh in the making of a new life together.

Pockets of Misery Could Be World's Final Undoing

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

There is a "fatigue element" in all aspects of human affairs. We become fed up with the many elections and too many politicians. We wish someone would utter the last word on the problems of Indians and Eskimos.

An Ontario Judge recently said our existing common-law apparatus will be in serious jeopardy if attacks against it persist from civil rights groups. Citizens might no longer believe it's there.

In international affairs, "fatigue" is even more profound and more tragic. And in a way, boredom and indifference about world affairs come more easily because we cannot comprehend those disasters and tragedies we do not see or experience.

If we have never been to India or Pakistan, what can it mean that one year after the last devastating Pakistani-Indian conflict there are 10,000 Pakistani soldiers who are still Indian prisoners of war?

"Bangladesh, to which many countries in the West have sent hundreds of millions of dollars in food and medical aid, is expected to be suffering for 10,000 Bihari Moslems who supported the previous Pakistani regime—and run the risk of instant massacre if they leave disease - ridden compounds.

Take the Pakistanis, whose troops outdid everyone else in that war for sheer brutality. The entire West Pakistani military establishment was committed to planned and purposeful rape of thousands of women in that former part of Pakistan.

The result has been the birth of thousands of life-hating children, unwanted by the disgraced mothers and their socially unsavory Muslim families and by the Bangladesh government which has too many mouths to feed already. The prospect of a government and an army intentionally planning rape on such a grand scale hasn't really happened before in modern history. Yet even this bestiality is hard for us to comprehend.

Take Biafra. Whatever compassion we once reserved for the thousands of starving children in that embattled enclave has long since been transferred to South East Asia, Bangladesh perhaps, certainly Vietnam.

The macabre quality of color television where Vietnam is concerned, has shown us its burning, bleeding, dying and the agony of the survivors in our comfortable living rooms and summer cottages. Some of us "bleed" a little more inside than others. A very, very few "do something" about such overwhelmingly tragic events and organize a team of doctors and dentists to go to the orphaned Asian children into Canada.

The oldest continuing pool of misery in the postwar world of wars and revolutions are the Arab refugee camps of the Middle East, for whom grim existence neither Israel nor the Arab states will take any blame, nor do much to end.

There are children born in these camps (first put up during the first Arab-Israeli War of 1948-49), who have known nothing else. Never four feet walls for them. Never creature comforts. Never stability. Only hate and revenge to get even.

These children, now adults, are the raids-and-life of the unforgiving Palestinian guerrilla movements; are the assassinate athletes, blow up multi-million dollar jet aircraft, send out deadly letter bombs.

The world's millions who live this way will no longer lie passively in their squalor and poverty. The message for the rich and big nations is clear. Devote resources and people to solve these massive problems or pay a devastating price.

"Say, are you sure these are the official identification markings of the peace-keeping force?"

Return of Capital Punishment Advocated

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On reading an article in your paper of January 27, by the Solicitor General of Canada who deplores capital punishment and calls for a further ban of five years in this regard and states the execution of a convicted killer by the state is a most heinous crime, I wonder what name he has for the crime whereby a female of any age is attacked, raped and killed. From the way his argument is presented you get the impression his compassion is with the killer, if so may it be to his everlasting shame. My compassion is with the victim and in particular the 7-year-old girl who was recently killed in British Columbia. The pain, terror and despair this child endured before her end must be indescribable.

It is argued capital punishment is no deterrent to murder which is a debatable point. The father of this 7-year-old child who is a prison guard has a strong feelings that the killer of his little girl intended to murder him on account of some imaginary grievance, but being afraid he could be convicted and executed for killing a prison guard, showed what a coward he is and got his revenge and satisfaction by killing the guard's small daughter.

Let us take a look at what was substituted for capital punishment when the ban was put into effect five years ago. A convicted killer is sentenced to life imprisonment and is eligible for parole after seven years. They are also granted week-ends time to time prior to the seven years of varying length of time and these men have been found to have committed another murder while on such leave from prison and would be sentenced to another life imprisonment if found guilty. You wonder what calibre of men put such a program into effect, and argue it should be continued for another five year period.

I take the stand and I believe an overwhelming majority of the citizens of this country also want capital punishment re-imposed. I heartily disagree with the statement of Solicitor General Allmand that a capital punishment weakens the moral fibre of the nation and would say the policy of permissiveness that is followed by his department for all crimes undermines the moral fabric of society more than any other factor. Therefore let us make the punishment fit the crime and if a person is convicted of taking a life let him be prepared to forfeit his life.

This question is too big to be decided by 265 members of parliament acting for the entire nation. Let us press for a referendum vote on the matter at the next general election when we will show what the opinion on this question really is and to abide by the decision of the majority.

A CITIZEN FOR JUSTICE

Support for Mailmen

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In answer to the letters sent to The Intelligencer by William Hockley, Charles T. Hart, Libra and also the editorial in the recent Letter Carriers Unlimited walkout over the proposal to send letter carriers out to their routes by taxis and then have them get back to the post office on their own time and pay by means possible:

Saying the public is fed up is the over-statement of the year. Who runs the post office and who elects the government? I say we need a system similar to that in Sweden where work stoppages are unheard of.

I stand behind the letter carriers in their protest as this could have led to layoffs or fewer men being hired by the post office.

To say we should have letter carriers "as a necessity" becomes don't we have enough unemployed today? Do you think we enjoy work stoppages of this nature? It means no money coming in at all or very little if it is a legal strike.

But what other way do we have to show our displeasure with the government or management's decisions concerning us?

To say anyone can do the letter carriers job is true but it is not everyone who wants to walk up and down the streets delivering mail in all types of weather.

To say they are late, make a list of mistakes and walk all over our laws is not always true.

I lived in Belleville for five years on George St., and 99 per cent of the time we could set our watch by our mailman.

Not all of the general public is fed up. We understand there is a problem at the Post Office, when there is no mail delivery.

One of the easiest things we can do is sit back and criticize our fellow men but could we do better in their place? I doubt it.

HARRIS HULL

Elizabeth Crescent And Advisory Planning Board

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Belleville's municipal boat seems to be headed for rough water. As the waves of citizen resentment against developer requests for rezoning and highrise construction continue there are indications they may reach storm proportions.

In a masterly piece of conservative reporting, The Intelligencer in its report of the meeting of residents of Elizabeth Crescent and the Advisory Planning Board, managed to convey that "a number of residents" was present.

The meeting lasted almost three hours. Both sides of the question was aired. Mr. Maurice H. Rollins and Mr. Lawrence Ives presented their case. They implied they were supplying a need by building condominium town houses in the residential area off Elizabeth Cres.

The citizens, on the other hand, said that the developer was actually proposing to put four families in the space normally occupied by one. They also pointed out that of the houses presently built in this area by Mr. Rollins a score or per cent were still unoccupied.

A request for a show of hands for "all those in favor of condominiums for Elizabeth Crescent" resulted in two hands being raised . . . both Mr. Rollins'.

In the course of the evening discussion probed many areas but overwhelmingly the residents indicated what they didn't want, or expect, their city council to allow the developer to build this type of accommodation in their area.

Mayor Robert Jeffrey allowed that the "democratic procedure" had been followed. But in other words the citizens had had their say. Alderman Roger Porter won applause when he stated that, effectively, he was asked to make their views known. He wondered when they were going to be listened to. The real point is, when are they going to be heeded?

The official plan has now become a joke with most of the community. While we sit and wait, developers are gobbling up the remaining available land at such a rate there will be none left anyway to plan with.

While the plan continues to drift with the current of red tape the indecent haste by developers to ram unwanted buildings in areas against the people's wishes continues.

City council, as a writer in Saturday's issue of the paper pointed out, is plagued with "ifs". If we say "no" the developer will sue us. If we say "no" Belleville will stop growing. If we say "no" we are retarding progress. There is another "if" "Ifs" they should consider. If they continue to ignore the wishes of the people, the people themselves may very well sue them too.

In the meantime, Mr. Editor, as the cost of the paper has gone up yet again, may we expect to find better coverage of local events. A report of such an important meeting that is glossed over with reference to "a number of residents" is not compatible with the price increase.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

EDITOR'S NOTE: Our reference to "a number of residents" was strictly accurate. The dictionary defines "a number of" as "an unspecified number of; several or many".

Mailmen Get Back To Work

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Mail service in our area is once again back to normal — between strikes. Our magnificent mail carriers, have once again condescended to let the mail go through.

The aftermath, as The Intelligencer editorial pointed out was one of anxiety and anguish for those people on fixed income, pensioners, those on allowance and so on. These tribulaties are of course lost on such dedicated civil servants more important in a "show of strength" — regardless of the effects on the rest of the population.

It was noticeable that the posties elected to fire their muskets at ranges where they could carefully cleared their own cheques. Good show chaps — nothing like the old "Live and let Jack" attitude to win friends and influence people.

My previous letter regarding the mail strike appears to have offended the sensitive fellow whose duty it is to deliver the mail on my street.

I was accorded the honor of a delivery by a supervisor no less. My mail arrived at 9:30 at the Post Office marked "Not Shovelled". The reference was to my ownership of the pavement a couple of inches off my front step. This apparently did not stop the mail carrier in the U.S. Embassy upon his leaving through unspoken front leaves on the street, some of which would have been better tackled with snowshoes.

As of this date, 6 h u m, don't bother to deliver my mail. I am one of those who are lucky enough to be able to get it without suffering the slivers at the Post Office — many of course are not.

Henceforth my lawn is out of bounds to you. There is another chap who walks over my lawn, spring, summer, fall and winter. He carries a bag. He is not as big as you, not as old or as experienced, but my goodness, how mature, reliable and responsible he is! He's my paper boy — a real man.

Feed Grain Control By Board May Ease

OTTAWA (CP) — Central and western farm leaders each gave grudging ground at the Canadian Federation of Agriculture (CFA) annual meeting Wednesday, building a temporary bridge over differences in feed grain marketing.

At the same time, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, reaffirmed the government's commitment to solve the divisive issue before the end of July.

He said the government was considering easing wheat board control over interprovincial movement of feed grain—barley, oats and lower quality wheat—giving central Canadian livestock farmers a chance to buy feed for prices more in line with those paid in the West.

Easterners would continue to pay somewhat higher prices because of handling, storage and transportation costs. But the government was considering additional subsidies to help defray these expenses.

The government now spends about $20 million a year in transportation subsidies designed to keep western feed grain prices down in central and eastern Canada and British Columbia.

CFA delegates, struggling since Monday over the issue, came up with a similar idea suggested by the federation's Quebec wing, L'Union des Producteurs Agricoles.

They agreed that livestock farmers in central Canada should pay the same as Prairie farmers pay on the average for feed grain in the West, plus extra storage, handling and partial transportation costs.

The formula satisfied central Canadian interests in that it would do away with the wheat board's policy of selling western feed grain prices outside the Prairies on a competitive basis with U.S. corn, a situation that often boosted feed grain costs in central Canada above those paid in the West.

But it left them dubious about the exact meaning of average cost. Quebec leader Albert Alain suggested the cost of feed in the East should be based on that charged in the West for western feed mills and feed lots.

However, they accepted statements by Ted Turner, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, that the basic cost should be the "weighted average price" for grains used within the Prairies.

The CFA agreed, however, that it would continue working with Mr. Lang toward a "national feed grain marketing policy" acceptable to all regions.

Slave Chains

BRISTOL, England (CP) — Workmen demolishing a derelict warehouse in this Gloucestershire city uncovered 18th century shackles used for chaining down slaves in the building's cellar. A local museum plans to exhibit the find after restoration work has been completed on the chains.

PM Tells B.C. Indians Land Rights Are Strong

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau delighted a group of British Columbia Indians Wednesday when he told them they had more legal rights to land than he at-first believed.

They said he conceded, that government might have been wrong when it scoffed at aboriginal rights in its 1969 policy paper on Indians.

Members of the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs said he told them he had modified his views on Indian claims after reading the Supreme Court of Canada decision rejecting land claims of the Nisga Indians of B.C.

The deciding vote in the 4-to-3 decision was based on a technical point. Three judges voted for the claims and three against them.

The dissenting judges said Indian claims flowed from a 1763 royal proclamation in which Great Britain laid down firm rules on how Indian land could be transferred.

The proclamation, signed by King George III, often has been called the Indian Bill of Rights.

Doug Saunders, a lawyer for the National Indian Brotherhood who was with the chiefs delegation, quoted Mr. Trudeau as saying:

"In non-treaty areas of the Eskimo and Indian we (the government) are saying perhaps . . . shouldn't be holding your . . . and because the King in 1763 said we shouldn't take your land without the Indians first signing on the dotted line."

Earlier Mr. Trudeau and Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien told a Nisga delegation their land claims would come before the federal cabinet today.

Frank Calder, a member of the Nisga tribe and a cabinet minister in the B.C. New Democratic government, said the Nisgas do not want the Supreme Court to review their claims.

He said the high court could not come to a decision and now it was up to the government to negotiate a settlement.

Mr. Trudeau's reported statements to the Indians are considered a startling about-face to earlier statements that he thought there was no such thing as aboriginal rights.

"It certainly seems as though Mr. Trudeau is softening his views," said Wally Firth (NDP—Northwest Territories).

Anger Is Human Emotion To Handle It—Divine!

By DORIS CLARE

As I mentioned before, Parents Anonymous is a new kind of self-help group for mothers and fathers who find themselves losing their temper. Here are a couple of less than the Brampton Parents Anonymous have put down on paper:

1. A common reaction is "I must be a bad mother or else I've got a bad baby. It won't stop crying and I can't stand it." Nobody ever told this mother that it can be uncervival when a baby cries; that it can be nauseating when a toddler throws up all over the floor, that it can be infuriating when a school child won't listen. As a result, she's frightened and ashamed of her own emotions toward her own child, and that makes her even angrier at him. The first step in handling anger and impatience toward children is accepting the fact that these are honest, human, and universal feelings.

2. The way we handle our anger is important. Take the reactions of two mothers to the same situation: a child who has spilled milk and cookies all over the floor. One mother screams at her child, "What a little pig you are." The other mother, equally annoyed, says: "What an awful mess! Come right here and help me clean it up." Both mothers have expressed their anger openly but one has learned to do it without damaging her child's sense of self-worth.

Dear Doris: A friend of mine told me about the ingenious way in which her daughter went about finding herself a summer job. She was 16 and in grade 11.

She wrote a straightforward frank letter to several medium - sized lodges in summer resort country. She said she was looking for work for the entire summer and that these were the facts about her:

1. She was not experienced.
2. She could play a musical instrument.
3. She was a good baby sitter and enjoyed working with children.

She knew how to obey rules.

This type of approach appealed to a number of potential employers. She got five letters of offers at a time. How about that? — Job Seeking.

Dear Job Seeking: How there was a girl with imagination as well as honesty and enough git-up-and-go to make a business of finding a job. She also started early.

Students — are you reading me?

Dear Doris: My daughter's wedding will be at 7 o'clock. It will be too late for a dinner afterward.

My question is this: After the wedding when we arrive at the hall, is it right to serve drinks then have a cold buffet at about 11 o'clock? When will the wedding cake be cut? — Nice Me In.

Dear Klue: Evening weddings are popular. Some serve a sit-down supper right after guests pass through the receiving line some provide a time - for - talk and a drink first.

A nice compromise, especially for the guests who have to rush and miss dinner to get there, is to serve beverages and hot canapes early. Then have your cold — or hot — buffet later in the evening. Eleven p.m. sounds a little late to me.

The cake is cut and passed around — sometimes by the bridal couple themselves — at the end of the meal and just before the toastmaster takes over.

(Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you? Doris can tell you how it's done in Canada. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Lions Club Aids Cloyne Students

TWEED — "Education Europe', North Addington Education Centre's students' project scheduled for March 10, 1973 has had a helpful boost from the Lions Club.

Tickets are 50c each or three for $1. The drawing will take place on Wednesday, February 28 at 8 p.m.

The Lions recently made a cash donation also, to these students in Cloyne who have been working towards their money goal for the past 12 months. But, when it was realized the proposed sum to raise was short, another contribution was made.

Ann Landers a Gangster? She Sounds and Looks It

Dear Ann Landers: I laughed when I read that letter from a man whose initials were P. He said your votes on the radio sounds like a grinder full of nails. His description was quite accurate but he didn't go far enough. I'll bet he has never seen you on TV. Are you aware that you talk out of the side of your mouth like a gangster? For the life of me I can't understand why a person who makes so many public appearances has never had speech lessons.

I'll bet my bottom dollar this is one letter! will never see in the paper.—Straighten Up and Talk Right

Dear Up: Speech lessons wouldn't help. My mouth crooked. Please send that bottom dollar—and any other loose buck you can lay your hands on to the American Cancer Society in New York. I cost the American Cancer Society $30,000 last year. That's what they had to spend on postage and I suggested in this column that women write for the free Self Breast Examination booklet.

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't ignore this letter because it sounds like a dumb crush that will blow over in a week. I need help.

This really groovy guy in my chemistry class is driving me out of my gourd. I first noticed him when I caught him staring at me. He never spoke a word—just stared. I found out from kids who know him that he has always been shy, so I decided to make the first move. I wrote a note and asked him if I remembered it a stupid question and I was ashamed of myself for writing that note so I heard his birthday was the following week, and I sent him a birthday card and wrote a few lines. No reply.

Yesterday I saw him staring at me again and decided to keep my eyeballs hooked into his until he looked away. Would you believe we stared at each other for a full 60 seconds. Finally, my eyes began to water and I had to turn away.

How can I find out his true feelings for me? Why would a guy stare at a girl for six months if he didn't dig her?—Should I ask him or what? What should my next move be?—Sick of Games

Dear S.O.G.: You're already made two moves and the next result has been zero. My advice is to write him off. If he wants to get to know you he'll stop staring and start talking.

Dear Ann Landers: "Beantown Readers" is right. Boston blacks think their wives should have a baby every year and I cheered when you trimmed the sails of those egomaniacal males who equate large families with virility.

I've had four children and six miscarriages in 18 years. Every time my husband has an affair he decides I should have another baby to square himself with the Lord. How do you explain an incredulous, guilt-ridden out like him?—Fertile Myrtle

Dear F.M.: I don't have to explain him. You did. He is inconsiderate, guilt-ridden and cute.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CORNWELL

Are children afraid of magic?

NO, first watch young faces light up when ineptness put on a show. Children, of course, attach an aura of magic to many things in life little more and more of its mysteries for them. Sure they seem to accept magic a little more enthusiastically than adults do but I think the children realize that most of the wonders they learn about turn out to have a logical explanation, so they want to hang onto "magic moments" as long as they can.

Can marriage survive boredom?

YES, if the people want to do something about saving their marriage. Perhaps all they need is to try to find out precisely why they feel bored. Being married to each other. The husband may have had doubts and fears that anyone could ever love him before he met his wife. Since these feelings probably were never resolved, they might now be surfacing in a different form—which is often erroneously called boredom.

Does self-control inhibit a person?

TOO LOT a rein all the time on one's reactions to emotions could prevent him from being the responsive person he could be. If he constantly restrains laughter, tears, anger, and so on, for fear of displaying his emotions, such an individual will become so inhibited, he will find himself insulated from everyone and everything around him. He might need professional help to learn when to use self-control and when to "let 'er rip."

Watch Your Children's Eyes

Consumers' Association of Canada warns that children under seven can be victims of a disease called lazy eye blindness. If detected in time, it can be corrected so that blindness does not result. CAC urges regular check-ups for all youngsters to be covered under Medicare plans. CAC headquarters are at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

There's more to that orange on the shelf than meets the eye. Gail Chapman, of Toronto, as Miss Jaffa, knows all about this Israelian orange, and can answer any questions about oranges. Miss Chapman, has found that modelling, her prime interest, doesn't clash with her promotional work for oranges. She still meets people and enjoys that most.

Oranges and Modelling? A Striking Combination

Israeli oranges which are now seen on grocery store shelves, labelled "Jaffa" are hand-picked with white gloves and go through a careful growing process before they are exported from Israel.

Informing the public of the nutritional values of oranges including the 60 milligrams of Vitamin C in each fruit is part of Miss Gail Chapman's promotional campaign as "Miss Jaffa".

In mid-January, Gail, a Toronto model, was chosen as Miss Jaffa to travel across Eastern Ontario and appear on television shows, radio and in newspapers promoting this product.

Following the short - term project, which will end in mid-April, when the orange season is over, Gail will return to her modelling career.

Miss Chapman said that oranges take 10 years to grow.

Lemon seeds are planted first and after the stalk has grown, an orange bud is grafted onto it in Israel. After five years, the fruit appears and then after 10 years, a full grove of orange trees is seen.

These oranges are Israels leading labor export. After the oranges are hand-picked they are washed, brushed, polished and stamped.

It takes 10 to 11 days for the transportation of these oranges from Israel to the Canadian supermarkets.

Miss Chapman said modelling is still her prime interest.

Gail said this promotional job is a challenge. She has to be well-informed about her product, as there are a variety of questions asked from how an orange grows to "how good is it?"

Meeting people is easy for Gail, and in her travels across Eastern Ontario, she welcomes each assignment.

Gail Chapman, when chosen as Miss Jaffa had a long list of credentials which included fashion shows in wholesale Toronto, magazine and catalogue modelling; in television and film appearances totalling seven and promotionals such as "Jaffa" and parade appearances.

Juvenile Offenders Face Test in Bush

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Will a 90-mile snowshoe trek show a juvenile offender the answer to his problem?

Project DARE—Development through Adventure, Responsibility and Education—has set out to pit 36 juvenile first-offenders against the bush and themselves to find that solution.

Jim Purcell, a former high-school teacher, and Bert Moorcroft, former officer of correctional institutions, have set up Camp Wendigo at a lake 30 miles south of here where the boys, 14 to 16, spend three months learning outdoor skills and survival techniques.

The boys, sentenced to training schools by the courts, are specially selected for the camp.

Similar wilderness camps have existed in British Columbia for about 10 years. One of them operates only on weekends, for boys found delinquent by the courts. The boys are picked up at their schools Friday afternoons and return to the city Monday mornings. The best-known camp in B.C., at Agassiz, is similar in operation to the Ontario experiment, with a strenuous training period ending in a survival hike that includes mountain climbing.

Project DARE doesn't want to make woodsmen out of the boys but camp organizers do hope they will be better able to get along with themselves and society.

Part of the boy's experience is a four-day solo hike through the northern bush with only a knife, matches, sleeping bag and pouch of dry soup. Organizers say four days alone and hungery give a boy time to think and straighten out.

Mr. Moorcroft said:

"We show him how to cope with the impossible with the idea of preparing him to go back on the street and give 100 per cent of himself."

In their first month, the boys first spend 110 hours in the classroom at the spartan logging camp learning to build fires, handle axes and make shelters. At the same time, they practise outdoor skills.

The routine begins at 6:30 a.m. with a three-mile run before breakfast. The boys were taking morning dips in Lake Wendigo until November, when the ice got too thick to open up easily.

In the second month the project becomes Outward Venture, in which the boys are pushed beyond their normal physical limits in mountain climbing, canoeing, marathon hiking and survival exercises, including the four-day ordeal.

A check is kept on the boys during the solo survival exercise, Mr. Purcell said.

Twelve boys start this week on the 90-mile snowshoe hike from their camp to a second Project DARE camp, north of Parry Sound.

The third month is a winding-down period called Community Involvement to prepare the boys to hit the streets again. They participate in hockey games, visit the Canada Manpower centre and the Canadian Forces Base in North Bay, and do forestry work for the ministry of natural resources.

"In the bush they have all worked together and now we want them to see how people in the community band together," said Mr. Moorcroft.

In the final month the boys also look after groups of school children who come to the camp for outdoor education.

Mr. Purcell said: "Our kids have to accept the responsibility for other kids."

Camp Wendigo, in operation since last May, has graduated only 18 boys, so it has few results by which to judge the success of the program.

The staff can judge only by the promises from its graduates who have said they'll be back—for a visit.

Set of Books Costs $64,150

LONDON (CP) — Parliament today accepted a full set of The British Parliament Papers, a 1,000-volume collection that the publishers say represents the largest-ever single publishing project.

Stacked on top of each other the set would tower 16-storeys. With a variety of complementary volumes in works or yet to be commissioned the project is growing.

Thirty-six volumes alone are devoted to Canada and to the Canadian boundary and this set carries a price tag of $2,408.

The project began in the early 1900s. Those who ordered a set then have been receiving volumes as they came off the press, starting in 1969. The full set costs 27,000 (64,150) and four of the 120 sets sold so far have gone to Canada—Laval University, Lakehead University, University of Western Ontario, the National Library, Ottawa, and the University of Saskatchewan.

Eighteen of the 26-volume Canada set also have been sold in Canada, say the publishers. Irish University Press, now owned by William Stern, a wealthy London property owner.

Actually the volumes are a condensation of some 7,000 volumes of parliamentary papers that accumulated between 1800 and 1925—the 40-odd Blue Books because of the blue paper used to bind them.

Sauve May Set Policy On Grants

OTTAWA (CP) — When new Science Minister Jeanne Sauve makes her maiden speech in the Commons, look for some indications on policy for providing research grants.

Chance remarks by Senator Maurice Lamontagne earlier this week indicated the department recently has been "looking with a great deal of interest" at his proposals for restructuring the three councils which now provide most research money for universities and individuals.

The three councils—the National Research, Medical Research and Canada Council division on social sciences and humanities—provided more than $220 million for research last year.

The NRC provided about $95 million, the MRC about $36 million and the Canada Council about $29 million.

The new policy probably won't coincide exactly with the proposals made in January, 1972, by the special Senate committee on science policy headed by Senator Lamontagne.

But there is no doubt committee proposals for separating the grant-giving functions of the NRC from its other duties was one of the major influences.

In Volume II of its report, the committee recommended a Canadian research board "set up, with three foundations for the physical sciences, the life sciences (including health and medical research) and the social sciences and humanities."

This board and its foundations would take over the granting functions from the three councils.

The committee's basic idea was that all research funding should be more co-ordinated and complementary.

All three councils have different methods for receiving, evaluating and approving research proposals.

Church Union Plan Won't Be Imposed

TORONTO (CP) — A plan for uniting three Protestant denominations will be presented to the memberships of the churches for study and recommendations but will not be imposed upon them, leaders of the three churches said Wednesday.

Leaders of the Anglican Church of Canada, United Church of Canada and Christian (Disciples of Christ) Church refused to indicate when a final vote will be held on the plan for union.

They also refused to say what percentage vote will be required of the nearly four million Christians involved to establish The Church of Christ In Canada.

The 108-page plan for union, which proposes among other things that women be eligible for all forms of ministerial duties, was unveiled Wednesday before the executive bodies of each of the churches.

Each group was to meet later in the day to discuss ways in which the plan will be distributed to their congregations and reaction received.

The leaders said there would be considerable involvement at "the grass roots levels" of each church.

"The day is gone when you can impose union," said Dr. N. Bruce McLeod, moderator of the United Church.

"Nobody can be compelled," said Archbishop E. W. Scott, primate of the Anglican church. "I'm opposed to a hard-sell from the top down."

They and Rev. Robert K. Lee, president of the Canada committee of the Christian Church, agreed the plan should be satisfied by as many congregation members as

The three agreed there has been considerable apathy among church members toward plans for union, mostly because the discussions have been going on for about 30 years.

"Now they have something to work with," said Mr. Leland.

Dr. McLeod said the plan, which is the result of five years of work by a general committee, "will re-awaken their enthusiasm."

Amendments to the plan can be suggested by the three churches or the general committee.

The plan does not call for uniformity among the churches.

"We can continue to worship in the way that means most to us," a church release states.

"Regional differences are recognized and provided for in its organization . . . it provides for a full ministry of the whole people of God: the laity, the bishops, the presbyters and the deaconry."

The plan includes 13 "articles of faith" which "make clear that The Church of Christ in Canada stands firm in the Catholic and evangelical faith of Christ's church proclaimed in all ages.

Indians Ask Drainage Assistance

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Seven southwestern Ontario Indian bands appealed Wednesday for changes in the Tile Drainage Act to provide assistance to Indians for drainage projects.

In a brief to the legislature's select committee on land drainage, holding a hearing here, the London District Council of Indian Bands said area Indians have been "unable to compete agriculturally with our non-Indian neighbors" because of their ineligibility for aid under the act.

George Hill, council chairman, told the committee this has caused hardship to some Indian farmers and has restricted operations of others.

However, Lorne Henderson, committee chairman, questioned whether the provincial government had any jurisdiction in matters involving Indian reserves.

He said he would arrange a meeting with the federal department of Indian affairs and northern development to discuss the problem.

The Indians propose that their reserves be classified as "unorganized territories without municipal organization" to be eligible for 80-per-cent subsidies on drainage projects in Ontario.

The brief also asks that all drains crossing reserves from surrounding municipalities be funded either by the county or the municipality involved in situations where no benefit is derived by the band.

House, Senate Bogged Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Government legislation bogged down in both the Commons and the Senate Wednesday as Conservative MPs sparked a lengthy procedural argument and senators complained they were being asked to rubber-stamp a bill approved earlier by the Commons.

The Commons imbroglio concerned government spending estimates totalling $1.35 billion for costs not foreseen in last year's main spending estimates. After a complex and technical wrangle, Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled in favor of Conservative arguments that they should be able to debate a committee report on the estimates in detail.

Their political harassment is expected to continue for several days.

In the Senate, a government bill to remove the $80-million ceiling on government advances to the Unemployment Insurance Commission was held over for committee study today.

The government had sought quick Senate approval of the bill to avoid interruptions in unemployment insurance payments. High unemployment has drained the account. The Senate was told that payment of about $15 million to about 225,000 claimants would be held up until the bill receives royal assent.

Several senators took affront at government pressure to push the bill through. They said the government was putting a gun to their heads by suggesting the bill had to pass by midnight Wednesday night.

Senator Hartland Molson (Montarville) called the government action "sheer arrogance."

"Surely there must be some way to make the House of Commons appreciate that with a House system adequate time has to be given for consideration of legislation," he said.

In the Commons, all opposition parties objected to a government proposal to set up a $350-million fund to loan money to the provinces this winter and during the next two years for job-creating winter-works projects.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) charged the measure should have been proposed in the form of a bill rather than as part of spending estimates.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) agreed, commenting that the estimate procedure "is a luxury of doing business."

Mr. Peters said a bill would have given MPs a chance to set criteria for the loans. The relatively small amount of money would be reserved to those communities that really need it.

Labor Force Growth To Out-distance Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner told the Commons Wednesday that labor force expansion will likely outdistance job creation in Canada for the next two or three years.

He said he expects this is occur in spite of the "very encouraging" efforts of the government to produce more jobs across the country.

He made his comments after Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield asked why the government is unable to meet the job-creation target set by the ministry in his first budget last May 8.

Lewis Believes Canadians Getting Better Government

TORONTO (CP) — New Democratic Party members of Parliament have had a considerable impact on proposed government legislation since the Oct. 30 election, NDP Leader David Lewis said Wednesday night.

"It is too early to pass judgment on the first month of our present minority Parliament, but as interim assessment shows that Canadians are getting better government and superior legislation than anything offered in the past four years."

Because of this, he told a party meeting, the decision of NDP members to support the government and give it a voting majority in the Commons is justified.

He listed several examples of proposed and promised legislation that have been improved, at least partially because of NDP pressure. He cited tougher regulations on foreign investment, expanded measures to assist house-buyers, increased old-age pensions, establishment of a Commons committee to study food prices and Commons discussion of possible energy shortages.

Mr. Lewis devoted most of his speech to proposed government measures to lighten the unemployment-insurance program, saying the legislation has been temporarily set aside by the government because of NDP opposition.

"The proposed tightening-up of regulations is intended to stop perhaps one per cent or less from abusing the insurance plan.

"Yet the proposed amendments would have infringed upon the rights and would unfairly penalize the other 99 per cent, who are the innocent victims of unemployment and are legally and morally entitled to benefits."

Ontario's PCs Meeting Today

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Progressive Conservative Party begins its annual meeting today with about 1,000 delegates and alternates paying up to $40 to attend the events of their choice.

It's designed as a political extravaganza for members who have been without an annual meeting since 1966. The 1970 meeting was postponed because of the impending departure of then premier John Robarts, and wasn't held in 1971 because of the provincial election, and dropped last year because of the federal election.

Conservations Buy Site from Developer

NIAGARA — ON — THE— LAKE, Ont. (CP) — A group of conservation- and history-minded citizens in this Niagara Peninsula community have prevented construction of an apartment building by buying the site from the would-be developer.

The four-acre lot has long been a winter haven for birds.

The citizens' group, led by Herman and Helma Moehl, two conservationists who live on the property adjacent to the site of the proposed apartment, raised the $25,000 necessary to acquire the lot.

The area, described by Gus Yaki, southern Ontario field representative for the Federation of Ontario Naturalists as "a rather unique spot," consists of both open field and dense bush.

The land, preserved as parkland for many years, was sold to Henry Klassen, a real estate man, in 1969 but a 1966 bylaw frees development on the property.

Municipal council last August approved changes in the bylaw to allow construction of the apartment. Residents were told they had two weeks in which to object to the proposed change before approval was sought from the Ontario Municipal Board. Forty-three residents filed letters of protest.

Then the residents learned that the bylaw n quest9999 never been registered with the OMB and as a result, previously existing bylaws would have allowed construction of the apartment all along.

"We were told the town could not refuse to grant Mr. Klassen a building permit if he sought one," Mrs. Moehl said, and it appeared the group would have to seek a court injunction to block the development.

"Then we thought, 'Isn't there a better way.'"

Mr. Moehl reached Mr. Klassen in an attempt to purchase the lot. A price of $25,000 was agreed upon and the agreement was signed. The group was given less than two weeks to raise the money.

Hoping to turn the area into a wildlife sanctuary, the group approached municipal council for $18,000 of the $25,000. But council turned down the request.

With only four days left, the Moehls finally managed to find guarantors for the $25,000.

Nude Dancing Barred

TORONTO (CP) — A divisional court judge has blocked an attempt to open a theatre featuring nude dancing in Peterborough.

It was the second time the matter had come before divisional court and the second time it had been denied. Divisional court acts as a form of appeal court for boards and councils.

Robert Marchant of Peterborough, operating under the business name of Aunt Bee's, had applied for a building permit and a theatre licence.

Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes said Wednesday that Peterborough city council had received a large number of petitions against the proposal and had turned down Mr. Marchant's application.

Mr. Justice Hughes said council didn't act in bad faith in turning down his second application Jan. 15.

Auto Workers Want Profit-sharing Plan

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock called Wednesday for a profit-sharing plan with the three largest American automakers unless "they reduce their monstrously high profit target and their price to the consumer."

Woodcock's proposal came in an address to nearly 1,200 delegates at the union's International skilled trades conference on collective bargaining.

"We should demand that they share those profits on an equitable basis," Woodcock told reporters after his address. The union leader said such profit-sharing could be handled in a number of ways, such as providing added benefits under present programs or cash payments.

Woodcock said the union had not proposed profit-sharing with the automakers "in a very serious way" since 1958. An outgrowth of that 1958 proposal was a profit-sharing plan to which American Motors agreed in 1961.

Further Delay Possible In Air-pollution Suit

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Thirteen Canadian families may face another delay of six to eight months in the air-pollution suit they filed against three Detroit companies two years ago.

Lawyer Donnelly Haiken of Detroit, who represents the families, said the latest delay could take place if an appeal of a dismissal motion by the defendants is heard.

The three companies are Great Lakes Steel, Allied Chemical and Detroit Edison.

CP News Roundup

Mishaps Fall After Studs Ban

TORONTO (CP) — The proportion of winter accidents on icy or snow-covered roads in Ontario has declined after the province banned studded tires, a provincial report said Wednesday.

The report by Peter Smith, director of engineering research for the transportation and communications ministry, said that while the total number of accidents rose from 86,000 in the 1970-71 winter to 90,579 last winter, "the number of collisions which occurred on icy or snow-packed roads remained about the same—32,348 and 32,324."

Mr. Smith, author of several reports criticizing studded tires on grounds they cause serious damage to road surfaces without reducing accidents, said that on a province-wide basis there was an increase in icy road conditions last winter compared with 1970-71.

Probe Death

WINDSOR (CP) — An Essex County coroner is investigating the case of a Windsor woman who died of a perforated ulcer two days after she was treated and released by Metropolitan Hospital here.

Duncan MacIntyre, assistant Crown attorney for the county, said in an interview Wednesday that a full coroner's report on the death of Doris Andersen, 38, is expected shortly.

200 Lack Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — About 200 of the 2,800 graduates from education facilities and colleges in Ontario last year, don't have teaching jobs, according to Education Minister Thomas Wells.

In an interview in the current edition of New Dimensions, a publication of the ministry of education for teachers and school trustees, Mr. Wells used the figures to illustrate that employment opportunities for secondary school graduates are as bleak as they have been painted.

May Aid Firms

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government may take measures to aid Canadian businesses that are hit by United States countervailing duties, the minister of regional economic expansion, Don Jamieson, indicated in the Commons Wednesday.

He was replying to Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova), who said there are indications that the U.S. government will impose special duties on products from Canadian firms that are partially subsidized by regional expansion incentive grants.

Less Strontium

OTTAWA (CP) — Levels of strontium-90 in milk continued to fall, the health department reported Wednesday.

In a written reply to Commons questions by Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East), the department said strontium 90 levels during January, 1972, ranged from 5.9 picocuries per litre of milk in British Columbia to 14 in Newfoundland. The maximum safe level is estimated to be 75 picocuries per litre.

Floods Feared

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A geographer who forecast last year's extensive flooding in Essex County warned Wednesday that spring floods could be much worse.

Prof. Paul Vandall of the University of Windsor said a combination of high water levels and spring storms could result in the "greatest natural catastrophe" in the county's history.

Probe Okay

MONTREAL (CP) — Attempts to thwart the provincial inquiry into convicted murderer Luis Rivard were turned down Wednesday by Quebec Superior Court which rejected five applications for writs seeking to bar the inquiry.

The five lawyers who filed the various writs on behalf of Rivard's clients were to appeal the decision today before the Quebec Court of Appeal.

The one writ of prohibition would have allowed persons to avoid testifying before the inquiry. Four writs of evocation would have required that the coroner's inquiry's evidence be turned over to Superior Court for examination.

Muskoka Freeway Planned
Indians Ask Drainage Help

TORONTO (CP) — A large demand for executives and professionals exists in Canada despite the general high level of national unemployment, figures from the Technical Service rise last year in such employ-

Council indicated Wednesday, The council, set up by industry to combat the "brain drain" to the United States, says there was a 40-per-cent

ment opportunities.

The council says the upturn is expected to continue this year and adds that some companies already are recruiting in Europe.

The council said the improved job situation applies to executives, accountants, engineers, scientists and other professionals. The survey covered 1,400 companies.

It says one Ontario manufacturer plans to recruit draftsmen in Europe, "having spent several thousand dollars in unsuccessful attempts to hire in Canada."

Executives, Professionals Are in Brisk Demand

TORONTO (CP) — A freeway from Toronto to Muskoka is being considered by the Ontario government as part of a long-term study of transportation needs in York, Simcoe and Ontario Counties.

Also under study are another highway from Toronto to New market, construction of Highway 407 in an east-west direction north of Toronto and the further widening of Highway 400 to eight lanes as far north as Barrie. Highway 407 would roughly follow the route of the present Highway 7.

An official of the ministry of transportation and communications said Wednesday the proposals are included in a plan made available to municipalities in the area.

The study suggests building a Toronto-to-Gravenhurst freeway east of Highway 48 as a method of expediting holiday traffic to Muskoka and proposes extending Toronto's Don Valley Parkway north to Newmarket.

No Parole

OTTAWA (CP) — The national parole board has turned down requests from Harold Ballard, imprisoned president of Maple Leaf Gardens, for parole under special circumstances.

Under normal circumstances, Mr. Ballard would not be eligible for parole until October, 1973, when one-third of his three-year term in Kingston penitentiary has expired.

Italian Judges Now Able To Grant Bail Equivalent

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON

ROME (AP) — Parliament has given judges in the 18,600 parsque held in Italian jails as suspects awaiting trial. This country has no bail.

The plight of the prisoners took on the proportions of a national scandal and led to a public outcry. In response, parliament passed legislation allowing judges to grant suspects provisional liberty.

Now suspects in jails from the Alps to Sicily are watching for the release of judges to the measure, which became law late last year upon publication in the official gazette.

The law allows judges to free suspects held in felony cases. In the past they could be held under preventive detention for up to four years without coming to trial.

Under the British and U.S. systems, suspects have the right in most cases, except murder, to obtain freedom upon posting of bond.

The change here is only a small reform, Roma's independent newspaper Il Messaggero says. It notes in the measure still leaves the fate of a suspect in the hands of a judge and fails to cut any of the red tape entangling Italy's court system.

The measure is popularly referred to as the Valpreda law for Pietro Valpreda, an anarchist ballet dancer who has been held in jail for 3 years awaiting trial for a bank bombing in Milan that killed 16 persons. On Dec. 12, the third anniversary of the bombing, thousands of young leftists and anarchists demonstrated in cities across Italy demanding Valpreda's freedom.

American actor William Berger was held in prison for seven months before he was brought to trial—and acquitted—on drug charges. His wife Carol, who suffered from hepatitis, died in a prison psychiatric hospital after two months of pretrial confinement.

In another case French actor Pierre Clementi spent seven months in jail before coming to trial and then waited nine months for the appeal to be heard. Then an appeals court overturned his conviction on grounds of insufficient evidence. That set him free after 16 months in prison.

There are thousands of other cases of trial delays that never come to the public's attention.

Hundreds of motorists, including foreigners, have spent months in jail as a result of automobile accidents before a court has ruled there was no cause for action.

According to lawyers, the case of Sinic Radison, a young Yugoslav immigrant, illustrates the plight of prisoners battling to be heard by an apparently indifferent judiciary.

Police arrested Radison on a Rome street last May 15, six days after he came to Italy to look for a job in the movie industry. He was charged with stealing a wallet containing 270 lire—the equivalent of 62 cents.

Radison spent 20 days in prison before being interrogated by a magistrate and then sat in jail another three months before he was able to get his version of the story, his lawyer said.

Trying to speed up the trial process, the lawyer arranged for Radison to be brought to the Palace of Justice for a hearing. This only resulted in a move to another cell from prison.

The first time the judges were on strike. The next trip was on a Friday and the police was deserted, everyone having left early for the weekend. The third time the court clerks were on strike.

Radison spent nine months in jail. Radison won provisional liberty. He was able to be freed because he was charged with a misdemeanor.

Regulation Hurting Car Firms

TORONTO (CP) — Too much government regulation in some areas and not enough in others is hurting automobile dealers and the car-buying public, says Grant G. Brown, president of the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations in Canada.

He said government insistence on new safety features is pushing the price of cars up. This was happening while existing safety features had not reduced the number of accidents.

On the other hand, lack of government regulation in licensing mechanics and of uniform laws concerning tampering with odometers (mileage recorders) was hurting the consumer.

Mr. Brown said that because of new safety feature regulations the public is told what it has to buy. Meanwhile, the government was not paying attention to the minimal number of persons wearing seat belts.

On emission control regulations, he said: "We can't get the proper engine tuning to time the engines of these cars with emission control devices." Accurate timing was needed for these devices to work.

A supporter of improved mass transit systems in urban areas, he said he believes that the industry must recognize that the car is not always the most efficient means of transportation for everyone.

Mr. Brown, who owns a General Motors dealership in Toronto, said he would like to see regular inspections of cars by government agencies but feels governments are afraid to adopt such programs because they would force owners to make costly repairs.

"They're afraid of forcing car owners to make repairs but not worried about forcing them to pay a high price for safety equipment."

Price Tag Switching Growing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sociologist says he has found that some persons who have strong moral codes against stealing apparently can justify another form of theft—price-tag switching.

A preliminary study on tag switching in stores was done by Dr. John Steiner, professor of sociology at California State University, Sonoma.

Authorities say the practice of removing tags from cheaper items and placing them on more expensive ones is becoming more widespread and generally increases during the holiday season.

Steiner says some of the switching tag switchers seem to be politically motivated

"They are upset about what they believe are the exploitative practices of large corporations and feel the only way to fight against it is to reduce exploitation to a minimum—is what they feel is a fair exchange," he said.

Other persons, too, see their action as a way of compensating for unreasonable prices, he said.

It is mainly luxury items that are bought for less by the switching method, said Steiner.

Most people will not tamper with the tags on necessities, he said, but will risk it on more extravagant items.

The researcher sees himself as a "cavalier derelict—a dispenser of instantaneous self-serviced justice," said Steiner.

Gauvin Dreams of Peace But Then Works for It

SAIGON (AP) — Michel Gauvin, the first chairman of Vietnam's international peacekeeping force, combines the Old World charm of his native Quebec with a seasoned diplomat's hard-nosed approach to peace at any time.

He is an optimist who dreams of peace, but a pragmatist in working to achieve it. He is outspoken in English and French.

Almost from the moment of ceasefire 10 days ago, Ambassador Gauvin has been the prime mover and doer on the International Commission of Control and Supervision, the man in a hurry to get prisoner exchanges started and observation teams into the field.

With the help of Indonesia, Gauvin persuaded Poland and Hungary, the other countries on the international body, that they could get rolling even while waiting for Viet Cong and North Vietnamese to join Americans and South Vietnamese on the Joint Military Commission in organizing transportation and security in the countryside.

"There were two distinct philosophies at the beginning," Gauvin said Wednesday in an interview. "One was the technical argument that the commission could not act without the co-operation of all four signatories to the ceasefire agreement.

"The other was the approach of practicability: That regardless of the fact that the Joint Military Commission was not yet working, certain steps could be taken, like setting up regional headquarters, that would put us ahead when they were ready.

"It was a question of whether the commission could just deal with two parties of former belligerents instead of four. Canada stood on the side of practicability."

Gauvin declined to discuss which two countries decided on the hard technical line. But sources inside the Indonesian contingent indicted their chief delegate, Lt. Gen. Dharsono, quickly lined up with Canada.

"I watch a war" and that the troops will be withdrawn in 60 days if there is no satisfactory progress.

Gauvin, on leave from the post as Canada's ambassador to Greece, has stressed that if there is dissension in the commission over ceasefire violations, prisoner exchanges or any issue, Canada will file its own minority report and tell the world why.

"We are not going to contribute to making this commission impotent for the sake of presenting a united front or for the sake of preserving the rule of unanimity," he said in the interview.

Allmand Tells Police Parole Being Overhauled

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand, facing police criticism of some aspects of the penal system, says he told police chiefs at a private meeting Wednesday that the program of parole and prison leave is being overhauled.

At the same time, he told reporters, some directors of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police expressed readiness to accept abolition of capital punishment provided there were guarantees that murderers would be put away for long terms.

The association last month presented a formal brief to the government calling for stricter systems for protecting society. It suggested retention of capital punishment for deliberate killings.

Mr. Allmand met for 90 minutes with the associations board of directors, holding a three-day closed meeting, and accepted an invitation to attend the association annual meeting in Charlottetown next August.

One of the main concerns expressed by the chiefs, Mr. Allmand said later, was that convicted criminals were getting out of prison too often or too soon under temporary leave or parole programs.

Parliament is considering extending another five years the trial abolition of hanging for all but killers of peace officers and prison guards.

Mr. Allmand did not identify chiefs who said they would agree to abolition provided there were long, minimum sentences without parole.

Highrise Freeze Backed

A subordinate board of the Quinte Planning Board last night passed a recommendation to city hall that a holding bylaw be imposed on 2-300 acres of downtown land to freeze the construction of anything larger than a duplex.

Termed a radical action by Chairman Alderman Arnold Orr, the move would be in direct conflict with a report from professional planning staff which was requested by the committee and city council two weeks ago.

Ald. Orr said he wanted council to light control of the building situation, particularly in light of public scorn of "indiscriminate highrise building". He said this holding bylaw would not outlaw any building in the B zone, but council would be able to take each development on its own merits and make a decision rather than the decision being automatic, according to the existing bylaw.

The professional planners say the city should hold off on action until the official plan is completed.

Ald. Orr said the city could not afford to wait and that this holding bylaw would be superseded by any bylaw laid out in the official plan.

The motion, if passed by council, the building inspector can withhold building permits if the development is not in accordance with the bylaw.

The recommendation will appear on the next agenda of city council.

Ald. Orr felt there was sufficient speculation in building highrise in the B zone that the amending bylaw be introduced as soon as possible.

First Try Wins Praise

Highrise buildings aren't popular to begin with, adding to Bill White's tension last night when he presented his nine-floor model to the subordinate planning advisory committee. It was the first highrise he had ever designed. The large citizens' delegation complimented the design and said the site on South Front Street was acceptable. The matter has been referred to professional planners. From there it will go to council for a decision.

Centennial Students Plan Touring Plays

Much of the Quinte district next summer will have its own band of strolling players — touring for fun.

That is, if the efforts of an enterprising group of high school students materialize.

The group — in Centennial Secondary School's upper grades — are hopeful of securing sufficient support to help win an Opportunities for Youth grant for their inspiration.

The CSS six — with music and arts a common bond at school — plan to tour Hastings and Prince Edward counties by bus for two months this summer. Campout out when needed, aboard the bus they will carry a style of theatre tailored for presentation in areas where stage productions would not normally be programmed: provincial parks, centres for the aged and handicapped, playgrounds, daycare centres and small communities.

OFY last year spent nearly $34 million, creating almost 30,000 student activities and jobs across Canada.

This year the OFY budget is up and the Belleville-area group is hopeful it'll receive a segment.

Thus far, the group's enterprise seems as long on energy as original ideas.

Already they've talked their project up with Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

Yesterday, they were down at city hall and won endorsation from Mayor Robin Jeffrey, who promised to write a favoring letter for their OFY application.

And, since they want to keep their demand on OFY funds as low as possible, the group has dashed off letters to private industries seeking donations.

In fact, says 17 - year - old Chris Alexander, one of the spokesmen for yesterdays city hall delegation, they hope to seek funds from any community source — outside of local governments.

Seeking municipal donations is "definitely out because it's already government, public, money we'd get if the OFY application was approved."

Thus, raising resources locally not only reduces the demand on public funding but "also gets the community involved."

So far, the group hasn't settled on a budget, except to estimate its OFY application at "several thousands."

Major expenses are transportation — the bus — and food — for the six and a supervisor they would hire. They would be an older person beyond school age, to oversee the group.

If the project receives OFY approval, they plan to start rehearsing in mid-June, after school closes for the summer, then take to the road in the age-old tradition of strolling players — except for the bus.

Their program would be a combination of works from the repertoire of professional theatre and their own creations — each program tailored to its audience. A common factor will be emphasis on audience participation.

The group's even originated a stage name — The Culp Factory, named for CSS art teacher Robert Culp.

They're hopeful their bid for some of the $40 million announced recently for 1973 OFY projects will be successful.

"For one thing it will take theatre to people and places who would not normally get that much chance to see it," says Chris.

Deadline for OFY applications is March 1.

More Funds Available

Opportunities for Youth — the federal program creating jobs and summer activities for Canadian students — last year funded several projects in the Quinte area from the $34-million budget.

This year, almost $40-million has been set aside for OFY programs, aimed at employing 34,000 students.

Some pointers for young people pondering projects:

(1) Applications must be in by March 1.

(2) Forms, instruction sheets are available at Canada Manpower Centre.

(3) Submit detailed plan, including community support, interest, outlining goals, methods and budget for salaries and administrative costs.

(4) Maximum weekly earnings are $90 for post - secondary students, $70 for high-schoolers.

(5) OFY criteria for assessing projects stresses community benefit, youth involvement, feasibility, innovative participants' needs.

Everyone Likes Harbor Highrise

The presentation of the project, on behalf of Lamplighter Realty, was done by architect Bill White. He described the unit as having nine floors with eight apartments on each.

The building is designed in a semicircular fashion with each apartment, which will be sold in or form of condominiums, having a view of the bay.

This development would be situated on the site of the Schuster Coal Dock area and stretch over three acres, accompanied by a docking area for tenants' boats.

A one-bedroom unit will cost in the area of $27,500. The three-bedroom unit would be in the range of $33,000. Jack Sills, a principal in the realty company, said it was a little "sticky" to nail down the price, saying it depended on how long it would take to get the building under way.

Bill Hockley, who in past meetings has shown a continuing concern for highrise complexes, said last night, "I am very pleased to have the opportunity to be able to commend such a plan after seeing and hearing of some of the other horrors scheduled for building."

Alderman Arthur Keegan, bringing word from Pinnacle Ward residents, said he and the general area were happy with the development and were in complete favor.

The matter was referred to planning staff before a final council to permit the necessary zoning bylaw change which would allow mull-unit construction.

$100,000 Is Sought For Bibles

The Canadian Bible Society is mounting a campaign to raise $100,000 in the Bay of Quinte district to provide funds for translation, production and distribution of the scriptures.

The Bay of Quinte district society, Rev. T. Rex Norman said he guest preacher at Bridge St. United Church Sunday at 11 a.m. and 8:15 p.m. He will also conduct an organizational meeting at the same church for clergy and laity of all denominations.

The Canadian Bible Society raises funds to provide Bibles at a price people can afford to pay for all denominations. The work carried across Canada and throughout the world. In 1972, $19,827 was raised in the Quinte district and 40,000 copies of the scriptures were distributed.

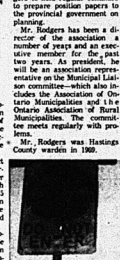
Last year the society distributed 2½ million copies of the Bible in 78 languages in Canada alone.

The society provides scriptures, free of charge, for the blind, the armed forces, citizenship courts, theological colleges, penitentiaries, correctional institutes, Indians and Eskimos literature for the aged and some schools.

Truck Crash Injures Driver

WAUPOOS — A Prince Edward County man was admitted to hospital Wednesday morning with head injuries received in a one-car collision on the Waupoos Road.

Injured was Stanley Cole, 40, of RR3, Picton, who was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital following the accident. Damage to his pickup truck was estimated at $800 by police.



Car Hits House

A Tyendinaga Township woman whose car was sent sliding into a house on Bridge Street Wednesday was released from Belleville General Hospital shortly after being treated for bruises and assorted aches.

Joan Ann Sine of the first concession, Tyendinaga, was east bound on Bridge Street when she was struck by another vehicle that missed a stop sign at the corner of Macdonald Ave.

When her car came to rest, it was rubbing a house at the corner of Bridge and Macdonald. City police said the house was undamaged, although Mrs. Sine's car was smashed considerably.

Marion Ruby Defoe, of 12 Main St., Foxboro, has been charged with going through a stop sign. She was not injured.

Well, Someone Might

Despite the sign forbidding use of street, this city worker's job isn't as unmerciful as it seems. The warning applies to vehicles on Market Square — not pedestrians, for whom sidewalk is being cleared.

Board Recommends Tight Controls

Controls that will cover everything to the color of the brick are to be imposed on developer Maurice Rollins if his condominium development in the east end of the city is to be accepted by council.

The Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee which last week deferred any decision after a lengthy public hearing, passed a recommendation to council last night saying the developer agree to implement be submitted to council for approval, and to limit also the further proposals of lawyer Gerald Murray (acting for Rollins) as amended (by SPAC).

Discussed several times was the concern of homeowners in the Elizabeth Street area that the development would not be as eye-appealing as the drawings and that they would further depreciate after their homes.

Proposed for the site are 80 condominium townhouse units to sell at a minimum of $20,000. This complex would be bordered by a buffer zone of single-family houses selling for a minimum of $28,000.

It was the lack of assurance of quality standards that fired council chambers last week and monopolized much of last night's meeting.

Four controls, outlined by the developer's legal staff, were "torn apart" last night with amendments including, before building permit is issued — council shall approve the color, combination, exterior materials and general scheme of the development; before a permit for the townhouses is issued, 45 to 50 per cent of the buffer zone homes must be at least roofed in; landscaping will be governed by the Condominium Act and the minimum price of units be $20,000.

There were the amended contents of Mr. Murray. Asked if Mr. Murray would have to agree to those amendments, chairman Arnold Orr said it depended on how badly Mr. Rollins wanted to build the development.

Cobourg, Counties Have Other Plans

The town of Cobourg and the united counties of Durham Northumberland have come up with their own separate alternatives to the provincial proposal for a regional government stretching east from Toronto to Colborne.

Details of the Cobourg-sponsored alternative are to be made public at a meeting in Cobourg this evening.

The Cobourg proposal, while including large parts of both Northumberland and Durham counties, accepts the fact that the eastern and the western limited counties are oriented toward the Golden Horseshoe.

It proposes a Cobourg-Port Hope centred regional government stretching along Lake Ontario from Oshawa township to the Cramahe-Brighton line east of Colborne and calls for the retention of Cobourg and Port Hope as area municipalities within the region.

On the other hand, the proposal of the United counties council calls for a regional government based on present county boundaries.

The provincial regional government proposal would see five townships and four urban municipalities in the eastern part of Northumberland joined to Hastings county for administration purposes.

This proposal has caused concern on the part of Hastings officials and will be the topic for discussion of a special meeting next week of council members and Donald Irvine, parliamentary assistant to the treasurer of Ontario. Mr. Irvine is responsible for municipal affairs in the area east of Toronto.

The council meeting with Mr. Irvine will be a closed session on Tuesday evening, called in conjunction with a two-day February meeting of the council body.

Damage $2,100 In Accident

A Kingston man is in Belleville General Hospital with head injuries after a car in which he was riding struck a hydro pole on Dundas St. East Wednesday afternoon.

Trent Mahoney, 19, owner of the 1965 Buick, was in the passenger seat. Driver Paul Shepherd, also 19 and from Kingston, was treated for cuts and released.

Shepherd was in the passing lane when the car went out of control and struck a hydro pole in the median. Damage was estimated by city police at $2,000.

Damage to the pole was $100.

Winter's Not Over

The fallout started about 2 a.m. in the Belleville-Trenton area and about two inches had fallen by mid-morning. It was expected to end this afternoon.

Falling temperatures came with the snow and the mercury began dipping from 34 degrees during the flurry, reported the CFB Trenton weather forecaster.

Belleville at 8 a.m. was down to 27 degrees and today's official high was expected to settle around 25 degrees.

Tonight's low was forecast around 18 degrees with tomorrow's high back up to 25.

The snowfall slowed traffic throughout the area and caused a number of accidents, none of them involving personal injuries, provincial police reported.

Oilers Switch Coaches

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Perhaps taking its cue from some of the teams in the rival National Hockey League, at least one World Hockey Association club switched coaches Wednesday and came up a winner.

A few hours before game time, general manager Bill Hunter of the Alberta Oilers announced that he was taking over from coach Ray Kinaseyich.

Hunter, also vice-president of the club, moved behind the bench before 3,000 fans and helped manoeuvre the Oilers to a 3-1 victory over new England Whalers.

Before the game, Hunter predicted confidently, "We are confident this move will stimulate our team . . . to win a playoff spot and to assure that we will be building a strong organization for the future."

The victory moved the Oilers, who have been in a slump since opening a lengthy home stand Jan. 19, to within two points of the idle fourth-place Los Angeles Sharks in the western division.

In other WHA games Wednesday, Quebec Nordiques blanked the desperate Philadelphia Blazers 3-0 and Houston Aeros climbed to within three points of the western section, leading Winnipeg Jets by downing the Jets 5-2.

Ken Baird, who is seldom used, scored a goal and added two assists as the Oilers made Hunter's night a success. The other Alberta goals were scored by Ross Perkins and Ron Walters. Terry Caffery responded for the Whalers, second in the eastern division.

"I think it's a great idea," Kinaseyich said after being told he would be expected to return as coach next year to fulfil the remainder of a two-year contract.

Bruins Win for Bep

By RON SUDLOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins made their first start under new coach Bep Guidolin Wednesday night and showed signs of snapping the slump that has tumbled them to third from first in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

But most of the credit for the 3-2 victory over the North Stars at Minnesota should go to the Stanley Cup champions' top line of Phil Esposito, Wayne Cashman and Johnny Bucyk.

Cashman, the Bruins boisterous winger, scored twice to raise his season output to 24 and Esposito, who figured in all Boston goals, tallied his 36th to give the Bruins a 3-1 cushion early in the final period.

Bucyk assisted on both of Cashman's markers.

But the win did little for the Bruins' bid to overhaul the front-running Canadiens as the Habs humbled Pittsburgh Penguins 5-2 at Montreal.

At New York, the Rangers kept four points behind Montreal by hammering the cross-town Islanders 6-0 to leave Boston nine points out of second.

In other games, Western Division leading Chicago Black Hawks nipped visiting Buffalo Sabres 2-1 to allow Detroit Red Wings to move into fourth in the east with a 5-3 cooling of the Flames in Atlanta.

BEP GUIDOLIN

The Sabres will have a chance to regain fourth place tonight when they entertain California and Minnesota travels to St. Louis to meet the Blues.

Toronto Maple Leafs beat California Golden Seals 5-3 and Los Angeles Kings nipped Philadelphia Flyers 2-1 on the West Coast to move into sixth place in the west.

At Minnesota, pepperpot Dennis Hextall scored the first goal of the game for the North Stars and picked up two major penalties for tangling with Esposito in the first period and Boston defenceman Carol Vadnais in the second.

Guidolin said after he accepted the Bruins coaching reins when Tom Johnson was moved upstairs Monday that "you have to hurt your bodies to win in this game" and apparently his charges were ready.

He also promised the Bruins will work hard after they managed 15 of a possible 24 points since they fell from first place.

Kozlick Surprises

By CHUCK SVOBODA

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Paul Konlik, 27-year-old St. Catharines businessman, came to the Ontario men's curling championship as a relative unknown but he has quickly built a reputation as a keen spoiler.

"And we'll try to rock a few more before we're finished," said Konlik after he knocked off Ted Brown of Kingston in the opening round Wednesday and then gave defending champion Eldon Coombe of Ottawa a scare in the second.

Few people here remembered that Konlik skipped a rink in the Ontario final in 1969 and he wasn't considered a serious threat this year because he had just picked up a new rink.

But the unflappable St. Catharines skip, oldest competitor in the provincial final, forced Brown to an extra end and scored a 9-8 victory here the Kingston rink which had been rated highly because it was making its second consecutive appearance here.

Then, after dropping to a 9-7 deficit in the 11th end against Coombe, Konlik came back to score two in the 12th end and force another extra-end cliffhanger.

Middleweights Face Tough Mat Test

The matches to watch in Saturday's Bay of Quinte high school wrestling competition will be in the middle weight classes according to wrestling convener Wally Uhrynuk.

"All schools have the 130, 136, and 141 pound classes filled," said Uhrynuk, "and they'll probably be the toughest matches."

Eight Belleville and area schools will be competing for the right to go to the COSSA finals to be held at Bayside Secondary Saturday 17th. The top four individual wrestlers in each weight class will be going as well as the school whose team accumulates the most points throughout the Bay of Quinte competition.

"Though you can't write anyone off," said the convener. "the competition, I would have to say, will be between Napanee, Quinte, Trenton and Centennial. Napanee has a full team, while Moire's and Centennial's team are pretty well full. We (Quinte) have two weight classes, the 168 pound and the unlimited, missing."

The Moira wrestlers should not be taken lightly according to Uhrynuk. They are the defending champions of the Bay of Quinte and the COSSA trophies.

This years Bay of Quinte competition will have some hold over rules from the American National Collegiate Athletic Association rulebook according to Uhrynuk, but "it will probably be the last year we do it (run the competition) this way. Next year we'll switch to the international free style and point system."

The wrestling finals will be held under the NCAA draw system which will allow a wrestler, if he loses in the second round or semi - finals to go over into the consolation series where if he wins he still stands to pick up four team points. The consolation draws also decides the third and fourth place wrestlers who will be eligible for COSSA.

The wrestler who defeats all his opponents by pins in his weight class stands to earn 15 team points.

The wrestlers will be weighing in at 9:00 a.m. Saturday, and according to the Quinte wrestling coach, Uhrynuk, "they have to weigh right on. There is no weight allowance given. If a boy entered at 139, and doesn't make the weight class, he doesn't wrestle."

After the wrestlers have done their calorie counted duties, the coaches of the eight schools will have a draw and seed meeting, another carry-over from NCAA rules. The meeting's purpose is to make certain that two top wrestlers don't meet in the first round thereby knocking one of themselves out of the competition, according to the convener.

Rollins Rip Kingston

Kingston Church Athletic's Mike Hennigan scored in the final minute of play against the Belleville Rollins pervee majors, but his goal had little effect on the result of the OMHA "AAA" hockey game.

The Rollins team took the second game of the OMHA playoffs 4-1 Wednesday night with goals coming from Nelson and Gary Frederick, Danny Duffy and Danny Jaques.

The Belleville pervees now hold a two game edge in the best of five playdowns.

Drew Stateleberg and Brian Cook played excellent goal for the club according to team manager Norm Harve.

Toughest Hockey Job Gets Least Coaching

By AL ZARAS

Most people would not like to see a man who has never had any coaching instruction, behind the wheel of a car and on the road. It is doubtful whether anyone would accept such a situation for very long.

But hockey fans have accepted a similar situation for many years now. The goalies that stand in the crease between the two red posts are for the most part without instruction, without the benefit of coaching, and are expected to provide goaltending that will consistently win games.

Ron Jury, Senior "A" Belleville Quintes goaltender, has spent approximately 14 years in the nets but the coaching he has received during this time is virtually nil.

"Most of my training was a trial and error," said Jury. "The only things coaches tell you to do is stand up, don't flop around, and come out to cut down on the angles. If they (the opposition) shoot the puck, and it goes in, then you know you're doing something wrong. You've got to correct it.

The 21-year-old Quintes netminder acquired most of his goaltending savvy by watching other goaltenders. But you've only pick up "little things" this way, according to Jury.

"I watched Steve Rexe (who guarded the Belleville Senior "A" nets last year)," said Jury, "and I picked up his practice of reaching back with his stick for the goal posts to find out where you are in the net."

Bob Moore, who has secured the nets for various teams ever since he was a tyke, is in a similar position in the Belleville Bobcats' nets. "All you can do is work on your angles," said Moore. "No one has coached me, but then no one knows too much about it."

Gord Bell, former goalie with the World Cup winning Belleville McFarlands, is the only former netminder besides Dixie Lee per wee minor's coach Bob Cook, who coaches a Belleville All-star team.

"We're way behind in our thinking about the game," said Bell. "Goalie coaches should have been implimented long ago. Baseball has pitching coaches after all.

"There used to be the day when coaches would put the worst skater in the net," said Bell, "but nowadays a goalie has to be mobile. There are more stand - in - front - of - net deflections, more passing, more ganging attacks where everybody comes up the ice. A goalie now has to stop a series of shots instead of one stop, then the defencemen clears.

The goaltender's duties are touch enough without putting in the semi circular crease according to the former Junior "A" goalie. "The round crease is the worst thing the NHL has done to the goaltender," said Bell. "It is hard to visualize where you are in the goal mouth. But there's supposed to be more area in front of the net, so keep players further away.

"The main thing is body positioning. You've got to be balanced all over, with the weight on the heels not on the toes, knees bent, back straight. It's pretty near the same as sitting in a chair, but not down as far. The feet have to be in front of the body. This way you're free to move all the limbs. Once a goalie falls, he's pretty well had the biscuit.

A goalie has to have strong legs according to Bell, and that comes from skating. But Jury does not work out with special exercises different from those that forwards and defencemen do.

"There are probably special exercises, but I don't know what they are," said the Quintes' goalie. "I haven't been taught any exercises that would be good for a goalie."

It's not as easy, as all that according to Bell. "Up to 15 or 16 years of age, a goalie should practice three or four times a week, but nothing will be done in Belleville for goalies until there is more ice time."

Bobby Orr, when he played with the Junior "A" Oshawa Generals, used to spend three or four hours after practice skating. "It's monotonous," said Bell, "but it sure paid off. It all boils down to the individual and how dedicated he is."

Coach Refutes Central Claims

Dear Sir:

I would like to state a few facts re Central Taxi pulling out of Quinte Hockey League, as your story of Friday, Feb. 2 would have many to believe that the Belvedere Hockey Club is the villain.

Do not get me wrong I am not saying we are little angels but we are not certainly do not take any blame for Central pulling out, this must fall on Mr. Carsons shoulders.

There are a few points to be considered regarding the incident:

(1) The hockey game was over and the players were going to their dressing rooms

(2) Both teams were keyed up as this was the first game of the playoffs and the close-checking resulted in a much rougher game than usual.

(3) What does Mr. Carsons fight with a spectator have to do wih pulling out his hockey team

(4) We have played Central Taxi at least 25 games over the past 3 yrs. Does one rough game mean we pick up our hockey puck and go home? If this is so we would have no hockey in the world today.

(5) Re their player receiving a cut over his eye this is very unfortunate, but in contact sport this is possible and certainly not intentional.

(6) Nothing was mentioned re Belvedere Hockey injuries received in the same game.

(1) cut nose (high stick) had to go to hospital

(2) bad shoulder (result of charging)

(3) burn around neck (high sticking)

(4) Bad bruise on thigh (kneeing)

we are not complaining and we are not withdrawing. The Belvedere team regrets that Central Taxi should want to pull out, as one game does not make a series. We also hope that this one incident does not stop other teams from joining the Quinte League in the future.

BILL VESTERFELT
Coach of Belvedere Hockey Team

Havlicek Makes Clutch Return

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Havlicek came back Wednesday night and he couldn't have picked a more opportune time.

Havlicek, returning to action after missing two games because of an inflamed knee tendon, hit a turnaround jump shot with two seconds left in overtime to clinch a 105-102 victory for Boston Celtics over Los Angeles Lakers in a National Basketball Association contest.

In other NBA action, Detroit Pistons beat Phoenix Suns 113-107, Baltimore Bullets crushed Atlanta Hawks 137-108 and Kansas City-Omaha Kings upset Milwaukee Bucks 105-98.

Dave Cowens led the celtics with 34 points, while Havlicek added 30. Gail Goodrich led the Lakers with 33, followed by Jerry West with 26.

Elvin Hayes scored 28 points and grabbed 15 rebounds in leading the Bullets over the Hawks.

Pete Maravich scored 34 points in the first half and then played only seven minutes in the second half and didn't score. The Bullets now lead the Hawks by five games in the Central Division.

The Pistons won their fifth straight game over the Suns and it marked the first time in two years the Pistons had won more than three in a row.

Sanderson Signs $200,000 Contract

By AL COLLETTI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Now that Derek Sanderson, the instant millionaire, and Boston Bruins have kissed and made up, will there be time for a honeymoon?

The flamboyant 26-year-old centre officially rejoined the Bruins Thursday when he signed a two-year contract for a reported $200,000.

But under the contract, Sanderson can be traded. There are rumors around the National Hockey League that the Bruins signed Sanderson only to use him as trade bait for a goalie, a position where the Bruins are weakest.

All along, Sanderson and his lawyer, Bob Woolf, had been insisting that Derek would return to the Bruins only if he had a no-trade contract.

But NHL bylaws forbid no-trade clauses.

"That's one of several reasons we delayed signing," Woolf said. "I wanted to make sure there was such a rule."

Sanderson was declared a free agent by the World Hockey Association after he settled his $2.6 million contract with Philadelphia Blazers for $1 million.

He jumped from the Bruins to the Blazers last summer and played in only eight games for the Philadelphia club, scoring three goals. A back injury kept him off the ice and later the Blazer management shunned him to the extent that he left the team.

THE WEATHER

Derek became valuable to the Bruins when they began a slide that dropped them from first place in the east division of the NHL to third and led to the firing of coach Tom Johnson last Monday.

Boston writers, almost to the man, have come out in support of Johnson, who was replaced by pepperpot Bep Guidolin.

Jerry Nason of the Evening Globe says Johnson was the fall guy for mistakes of the front-office under Harry Sinden, managing director of the Stanley Cup champions.

Johnson let slip one day "who had to be fingered to pay the ultimate price for the contract work in the Bruins' front office last spring that let Gerry Cheevers get away."

"Tom could never cope with the chain of disasters that followed hooboo triggered, and the players didn't help him much either. . . .

EFC Pushes Expanded Schedule

TORONTO (CP) — A bid by Eastern Football Conference clubs for a 16-game schedule is expected to be a big topic when the Canadian Football League executive committee meets today.

The increase is likely to be contingent on an adjustment of the league's gate-equalization scheme which is an irritant to some EFC clubs, mainly Toronto Argonauts.

The EFC clubs would like the extra home game to be exempt from the gate-equalization plan but one EFC spokesman said he suspects it will be rejected by the Western Football Conference clubs.

"You tell me why they would be against it," he said. "I don't know.

"I only know they will oppose it. It will probably be because of potential. They're always worrying about potential whatever the hell that is."

One thing is certain, the privately-owned clubs in the EFC have not seen eye-to-eye with the community-owned clubs in the WFC.

The five WFC teams play a 16-game schedule now and the four Eastern clubs play a 14-game schedule.

General managers from both conferences have been meeting here for two days on proposals to make to the CFL executive committee. The league's Canadian draft was held Tuesday.

Expansion into the United States is another topic to be put before the committee. Without saying they are in favor of expansion, the four EFC teams and British Columbia Lions of the WFC have indicated they'd like to see the idea explored.

The Eastern clubs have found a sympathetic listener on gate-equalization proposals in Gordon Muirhead, president of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and of the WFC.

"We're prepared to give a little on equalization if it is good for the league," he said. "Some adjustments may be necessary."

But he's not in favor of expansion.

"We don't believe the CFL is in jeopardy. People who talk about expansion are getting unnecessarily concerned."

Argo owner John Bassett has said that four U.S. franchises could be added immediately and would stabilize the league, especially in depressed football areas such as Montreal.

But Muirhead argued: "If we ever drop the Canadian identity of the game we will sacrifice a great heritage."

"The league is not in any danger. We're in a strong position in Winnipeg with our rebuilt stadium. Calgary is going to add 3,200 seats this year.

Producers Want More For Oil

LAGOS (AP) — Here's good four letter word to remember the next time you notice the cost of gasoline pinching your pocket.

The word is "OPEC"—standing for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries—which recently wrapped up a two-day conference in this steamy West African capital.

OPEC made clear its 11 members, who produce more than 80 per cent of the world's oil exports, intend to dig deeper into your wallet in coming years.

Put simply, OPEC wants to get as much money as it can out of the developed, industrialized nations of the world.

It's nothing personal, but OPEC represents oil-rich underdeveloped nations that want to become modern and grow prosperous like everyone else.

They know they are still dependent on continued investment and expert help from the developed world to get ahead, say oil experts here. So they won't, as one put, "kill the golden goose," but just fleece it a little.

A major consideration that could temper the demands of OPEC nations would be the availability in developed nations of cheap nuclear or other forms of energy to replace oil.

But they are going to charge as much as possible for their oil, and, one way or another, ultimately plan to take over the foreign-run oil companies operating in their countries.

Then they will have the last say on the supply of the world's most important source of energy.

So at the meeting here, they voiced support for Iraq, which seized foreign oil operations last summer.

And they moved closer to setting up a $220 million fund to protect OPEC nations from possible punitive measures by angry oil companies upset with OPEC member policies.

OPEC comprises Libya, Iraq, Iran, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi, Qatar, Algeria, Nigeria, Indonesia and Venezuela. Ecuador is expected to join up next year.

Bengalis Held Hostage For Pakistani Captives

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (Reuter) — The visit of United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to the subcontinent in February has raised hopes here of a breakthrough in the still unresolved human consequences of the 1971 Indo-Pakistan war.

For Pakistan, this means only one thing: Repatriation of the country's estimated 90,000 soldiers and civilians held captive in more than 50 Indian prisoner of war camps.

Pakistan has released all the 600 or so Indians captured in the two-week-long conflict 14 months ago but has failed to obtain the release of the 90,000.

The government - owned newspaper, Morning News, put it this way in an editorial: "The Indian attitude towards the release of the PoWs stands in the way of return of normality in the subcontinent."

It added: "Similarly, the situation in this part of the world will remain fraught with grave dangers so long as Bangladesh insists on the trial of the PoWs. Such an action is bound to have serious repercussions in Pakistan."

Such repercussions may already have begun. Press reports say hundreds of Bengalis currently stranded in Pakistan are to be on trial soon on charges of treason and espionage.

Statistics are imprecise. The Pakistan government refuses to disclose exactly how many Bengalis still are in the country.

But the number is believed to be much less than the often-quoted figure of 400,000-500,000. A consensus based on independent, non-government estimates, puts the figure at between 130,000 and 190,000.

Even so, the number is diminishing daily as the wealthier, Bengalis pay hundreds—sometimes thousands—of dollars to tribesmen to smuggle them through the Northwest Frontier to neighboring Afghanistan.

From the Afghan capital, Kabul, they fly on to New Delhi and Dacca.

Legal exit through orthodox channels is banned for Bengalis.

Thus, those able to do so sell all their possessions to pay the frontier tribesmen who know the smuggling routes and passes into Afghanistan.

About 40,000 Bengali personnel of the armed forces are also living in conditions of detention, disarmed and held in camps and garrisons in the frontier area.

In Islamabad, near Rawalpindi, about 7,000 Bengalis—ex-civil servants and their families—still are living in their government houses but receive only a fraction of their former income.

They are the Bengalis who, aided by the government last summer whether they wished to serve in West Pakistan or East Pakistan, chose the latter.

The following month they were told of their dismissal because they had opted for Bangladesh.

But most of the Bengalis stranded in Pakistan—about 199,005 of them—are stuck in the slums of Karachi, the country's only port city.

Left Over Funds

TEHRAN (AP) — The royal court of Iran said that $1.2 million left over from last year's celebration of the 2,500th anniversary of the monarchy would be used to build a new mosque.

Mohawks Reopen School As Cultural Institute

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A onetime Indian school has reopened here as a cultural centre for 20,000 woodland Indians in Ontario and Quebec. The centre will provide information for and about Indians of Eastern Canada and will constitute a conservatory for the artefacts of their culture.

The Six Nations Indians owns the property which was known as the Mohawk Institute, and until it closed three years ago it was a residential school for Indian youngsters from Eastern Canada.

The institute was closed and handed over to the Six Nations reserve by the federal government because of a drop in enrolment and an increase in educational facilities on provincial reserves.

Then came the federal white paper on Indians, proposing to make them all citizens of Canada. The white paper was opposed by the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians, whose formation grew out of the federal document.

Norman Lickers, 59-year-old chairman of the Six Nations board which holds the lease on the property, recalls that interest among the Indians in themselves and their history grew up quickly at that time.

Left with an empty and large school facility, the Six Nations elected council initiated a $15,000 study in 1971 on how best to use the site.

Then Thomas Hill, a member of the Six Nations band who works for the department of Indian affairs in Ottawa, came up with the idea of such a centre.

Keith Lickers, 31-year-old son of the chairman, was appointed director at $15,000 a year and began to put flesh on the idea.

Now the centre has hired an administrative secretary, an audio-visual co-ordinator, chief librarian, museum co-ordinator, a comptroller and a five-man maintenance staff.

The centre has received a $225,000 instalment on a federal grant which Indian officials hope will eventually total $2 million.

Young Lickers looks forward to the day when the centre will become financially self-sustaining. But he figures it will not be easy.

"Many Indians are skeptical of this whole thing," he said in an interview. "We've got a lot of hard work to put in before we can convince them."

"It will be a place where Indian artefacts, historical documents and cultural resources will be stored but where the main emphasis will be on education," he said.

His father looks at it from another angle: "It will be a storehouse containing all those different things which make up the cultures of Iroquois and Algonquin people."

Keith Lickers, once a history teacher on the Six Nations reserve, said that during his teaching years "I could find no Indian resources, no books or teaching materials."

"I thought then that if it was this way on a reserve, how must it be in other communities."

Now both father and son hope the centre will become renowned for its work and its collection.

Exchanges of Prisoners Will Commence Monday

SAIGON (AP) — The prisoner releases promised in the Vietnam ceasefire agreement will begin Monday morning, Saigon time, with 27 Americans and 1,000 North and South Vietnamese to be handed over at three sites in South Vietnam, officials of the International Commission of Control and Supervision announced today.

The Americans and 700 South Vietnamese will be handed over at the Quan Loi airstrip near An Loc, north of Saigon, and another 300 South Vietnamese will be released near Pleiku, in the central highlands, the official said.

At the same time the South Vietnamese will free 2,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong prisoners at Quan Loi and at Dong Ha, below the demilitarized zone.

The officials said the date and sites of the PoW transfer were fixed. Earlier, both Saturday and Sunday had been mentioned as days that the first groups of U.S. and Vietnamese prisoners would be handed over.

There still was no official word on the release of the first group of U.S. prisoners in Hanoi. But Pentagon sources in Washington indicated that it might occur during U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger's four-day visit to Hanoi, which begins Saturday.

North Vietnam has reported 562 U.S. servicemen being held prisoner, including 456 in the North, 80 in South Vietnam and seven in Laos. Hanoi also has reported 27 U.S. civilians being held in South Vietnam.

University Recruiting Rules Are Advocated

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's 14 publicly - supported universities are being asked to join in an agreement on recruitment of students for next fall.

The universities already have begun recruiting at many students as possible to bolster falling enrolment. Government grants are pegged to the number of students.

Last Fall, the University of Western Ontario found it had about 600 fewer students than expected and was forced to trim its budget of about $50 million by about $2 million. Several other universities and colleges suffered similar drops from forecasts.

The Council of Ontario Universities (COU) has asked each of its member universities to approve a 10-point guideline on recruitment.

D. Carlton Williams, Western's president and COU chairman, told Western's senate Thursday that all universities have been asked to consider the guidelines before the beginning of March.

A special COU committee last week unveiled the rules which among other things say it is "inappropriate" to pay travel, transportation, accommodation and meals for high school students brought to campus for a look.

The guidelines also call for avoiding the "hard-sell" type of advertising and especially "overt or implied comparison with other institutions."

While visits to campuses are encouraged for high-schoolers, telephone campaigns are out.

The universities are asked to avoid breaking the agreed-upon dates for offers of admission, residence or scholarships.

Any Ontario university may recruit any place in the province but "conspicuous and extravagant campaigns of advertising or recruiting tours outside Ontario should be avoided."

More Protestants Held Without Trial

BELFAST (Reuter) — Seven Protestants have been detained without trial following Wednesday's bloody riots in Belfast and 16 other towns across Northern Ireland, police chiefs close to the security forces said today.

It was the detention of two Protestants under new emergency powers that led to a general strike Wednesday.

The strike erupted into riots and ended with five persons being shot to death.

The sources could not immediately say how many Protestants were detained or give their names. When word of the detentions reached Protestant areas, a group of women massed outside Belfast prison, where the men are being held.

The women joined hands across the roadway and blocked traffic in the area.

The British Army said that troops shot one of the gunmen who killed a policeman Thursday night in the town of Dungannon.

The policeman, the fourth killed in Northern Ireland this year, was shot while he was on duty at the scene of a traffic accident.

An army spokesman said troops arrived at the scene quickly and fired at four gunmen who were operating from atop a Catholic school, hitting one of them. Afterwards they found two rifles on the school roof.

The killing capped another day of violence, with shooting incidents in Belfast, near Cladyon the border with the Irish republic, and in Portadown, a Protestant town near the capital.

A woman was injured in Belfast was caught in a crossfire between troops and Irish Republican Army (IRA) guerrillas.

Dear Food Ups Index

OTTAWA (CP) — With a sharp boost from soaring food prices, the consumer price index moved to 144.5 in January from 143.3 in December, sharpest rise between the two months in more than a decade, Statistics Canada reported today.

Base year for the index is 1961. The figures mean it cost $14.50 this month to buy what $14.33 bought in consumer goods in December and what $10 bought in 1961.

The food component of the index, which measures virtually everything consumers buy, showed a whopping two-per-cent increase in January over December. All major food items registered increases, the statistics bureau said, but the rises were particularly sharp for beef, eggs, fresh vegetables and milk.

Higher housing costs also helped push the index to its new peak. Food and housing are the two most important factors of the index. Housing accounts for 22 per cent of the consumer's disposable income and food for 27 per cent.

The index showed lesser increases in the health and personal care section, for recreation and reading and for tobacco and alcohol. There were slight drops in clothing and transportation costs.

Higher prices for both restaurant meals and food consumed in the home pushed the food index up.

Beef in January was up 5.8 per cent over December and pork up 2.7 per cent. Egg prices jumped 7.8 per cent and the cost for vegetables, fresh, frozen or canned, advanced 5.4 per cent.

The meat, fish and poultry index in January was more than 15 per cent higher than a year ago. Egg prices alone advanced 28 per cent in the year.

Eggs this month cost 20 per cent more than they did a year ago. The government last spring paid farmers a bonus to kill pullets in order to reduce egg production.

Fresh fruit prices rose 3.1 per cent as increases took effect in most Ontario cities and in St. John's, Nfld., Edmonton and Calgary.
